Tanganyika Troops Mutiny, Officers Hostages

British Dispatch Destroyer

Another Zanzibar Action Is Feared

LONDON (AP) — Troops in Tanganyika mutinied twice today. A British destroyer sped to the former East African colony as the situation appeared to be growing worse at nightfall.

Demanding more pay and better living conditions, several hundred troops seized their British officers at a barracks five miles north of the capital of Dar es Salaam.

Then they roared into Dar es Salaam in trucks brandishing automatic weapons, captured vital installations and for a time were said to have held moderate President Julius Nyerere.

Another Break

Twelve hours later, Nyerere went on the radio, announced he had intervened and the mutiny was over.

This afternoon Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys arose in the House of Commons in London and said the troops had broken out once more and may have taken control of the capital's airport.

With the situation again deteriorating, Sandys said the destroyer Rhyl with a company of British riflemen had been ordered in and was now offshore to protect the 5,000 British citizens in Tanganyika.

Zanzibar Case Feared

The former British colony of Zanzibar, only 22 miles off the coast of Tanganyika, was taken over Jan. 12 by leftist-inclined African nationalists.

A few hundred armed Tanganyika soldiers, demanding better pay and living conditions, had held their British officers as hostage for 12 hours. About 30 British officers were reported seized.

No British Troops

Britain has no troops stationed in Tanganyika except for British officers on loan to help.

Neyeere blamed the incident on a misunderstanding, but said it had been settled after he intervened.

Before the mutinous soldiers returned to camp, there were reports of beatings and looting by local Africans who took advantage of the situation.

About 50 U.S. government employes plus their dependents are in Tanganyika. The U.S. Embassy in London received a message that so far as was known, all Americans were safe.

Peace Corps There

The Americans include some 25 members of the Peace Corps, most of them engaged in a road-building project and a teaching program outside the capital.

Word reaching Nairobi, in neighboring Kenya, said troops of one battalion of the Tanganyika Rifles, the country's army, seized a barracks 10 miles from Dar es Salaam. Then they moved into the capital and grabbed the airport, the cable office, the post office and the official residence of President Juliuu Nyerere.

No Contact Made

It was not known immediately whether Nyerere was being detained. Miles said he tried to make contact with the president without success.

The acting British commissioner also appealed to the 10,000 Europeans in Dar es Salaam to stay indoors. He was understood to be personally sheltering several British families, including wives and children of some British officers seized by the mutineers.

First accounts indicated the mutiny was not particularly political in character. The soldiers were said to be disgruntled over their pay and conditions. It also was understood that some of the army was not involved.

Weakened Forces

The Tanganyika government had sent 300 policemen to Zanzibar to help restore order in that spice island, and the dispatching of these policemen seriously weakened Dar es Salaam's security forces.

The office of Central African Airways in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, said the Dar es Salaam Airport was closed to incoming traffic.

The BBC correspondent in the Tanganyika capital said shooting had broken out in the city's Oyster Bay area.

The correspondent said the Kennedy, Macapagal Think:

Early Summit Is Due On Malaysia Crisis

MANILA (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and President Diosdado Macapagal said today after a three-hour talk that prospects are encouraging for an early summit meeting on the Malaysia crisis.

Kennedy, here on the second leg of his peacemaking tour for President Johnson, briefed Macapagal on results of his talks with Indonesian President Sukarno, who has vowed to smash the new federation.

A statement said Macapagal told Kennedy the Philippines has tried all along to restore Maphilindo, the association of Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines which broke apart when Malaysia was formed in September. Although the Philippines also has not recognized Malaysia, Macapagal promised to continue his peace efforts.

Kennedy has been urging a three-nation conference to seek a peaceful settlement of the quarrel between Indonesia and Malaysia. Macapagal noted that the Philippines had been seeking the same thing since September.

Kennedy told newsmen on his arrival from South Korea Sunday night there was a good chance the crisis can be solved.

"Some progress has been made,'" he said.

Macapagal appeared pleased with his meeting with Kennedy and said it bolstered his hopes for a peaceful solution of the crisis.

Asked whether he will meet soon with Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman, he said, "it looks like it."

The Philippines has refused to recognize Malaysia because of a claim to the Malaysian state of Sabah, formerly British North Borneo. Sukarno claims Malaysia is a British plot to encircle Indonesia.

Opinion is divided whether Sukarno will try to patch up differences with Malaysia as a

Jury-Tampering Trial Starts

Courtroom Has Heavy Guard for Hoffa Case

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —A heavy guard was placed on the federal district courtroom as Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa's jury-tampering trial opened today.

Judge Frank Wilson swore in the first 100 prospective jurors, but indications were that several preliminary motions would delay the actual picking of jurors.

Every seat in the small courtroom was filled. The normal capacity is about 100 spectators.

Guards Inside, Out

A half-dozen U.S. marshals stood inside the courtroom to keep order and others — some from other cities—stood guard outside.

Defense lawyers are objecting particularly to Judge Wilson's order sealing the list of prospective jurors. The Judge has said he would make the names public when jury selection begins.

Want Backgrounds

Attorneys for Hoffa and five other defendants want the trial continued to allow them time to examine backgrounds of some 300 prospective jurors. Most, if not all, of the opening day was expected to be taken up by procedural matters.

The six defendants are charged with attempting to bribe jurors and prospective jurors in Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial in Nashville, Tenn. The trial ended with the jury deadlocked 7-5 for acquittal.

Others on Trial

Pickets Protest Arrests Here on Narcotics Charges

A picket line, which made no open claim to a connection with any organization, walked the sidewalk in front of City Hall from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Sunday, in reported protest against recent arrests here on narcotics, and because of what one in the group claims was a situation connected with them.

Authorities said that an investigation, which resulted in narcotic charges against 12 persons, had been under way for months. It was conducted by the district attorney's office, state narcotics agents and local police. Both Negro and white persons were arrested.

Police today had no comment. A brief blotter notation at 10 a. m. Sunday reported only that the pickets apparently walked in protest of the recent arrests, and noted that it was an "orderly demonstration." Reports beyond the blotter indicated that some in the group of about 12 were nonresidents.

Rocky's New Tax Plan Worries GOP Leaders

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Top Republicans in the Legislature fear trouble over a key feature in the austerity budget of nearly $3 billion that Gov. Rockefeller will submit Wednesday.

The sensitive spot is Rockefeller's plan—yet to be announced officially—to raise an extra $150 million in revenue by requiring business firms to pay half of next year's taxes in advance.

The Republican governor, in a tight fiscal squeeze, reportedly will recommend the speedup as a device to help strike the budget balance required by state law.

"Naturally, some businessmen aren't going to be too happy about it," Assembly Speaker Joseph F. Carlino conceded.

Advance word of the plan leaked out last week, prompting some grumbling in business circles. The major business organizations were withholding their fire, however, until the plan is confirmed.

Rockefeller will spell out his 1964-65 fiscal program in his annual budget message to the Senate and Assembly on Wednesday morning.

The same day the Legislature's special committee on ethics will convene at the Capitol for the first in a series of public hearings on ways to strengthen the code of ethics for state lawmakers.

Meanwhile, the Legislature will take up the $33.4 million deficiency budget bill Rockefeller submitted Jan. 8. It covers expenditures not anticipated when the 1963-64 budget was adopted last year.

By comparison with previous years, Rockefeller's new budget will be extremely conservative. The spending increase over the present $2.83-billion level will be less than $170 million, compared with a normal annual increase of $200 to $300 million.

Informed sources said the budget would propose no increase in tax rates, as Rockefeller had promised, and would recommend no costly new programs.

Rockefeller's political strategists were anxious to avoid submitting the first $3 - billion budget in the state's history at a time when the governor is stressing conservative fiscal policies in his campaign for the GOP presidential nomination.

Burglars Miss $600 At Ward's

Alarm Rings After They Take $240

A daring burglary early this morning at the Montgomery-Ward store in the Town of Ulster shopping center on Albany Avenue Extension netted the burglars about $240. Sounding of the burglar alarm system in the store apparently frightened the intruders away before they had discovered another $600.

It was about 3:10 a. m. today when the burglar alarm pilot in the sheriff's office sounded. Within five minutes Deputies Ronald Dietz and Silas Countryman were at the scene along with Troopers Thomas Crowley and John McMickle of the Lake Katrine station.

Force Rear Door

Entrance was gained to the store by forcing a rear door. The burglars then made their way to the office where they removed a ceiling panel to gain entrance to a strong room in one corner of the office. After climbing through the ceiling, panels were removed from the strong room ceiling and the burglars dropped down into the strongly protected room through the ceiling to a safe. It was contact with the safe that sent off the burglar alarm.

The store was searched for the burglars by sheriff's deputies and troopers but no one was found in the store.

Cash in Bags

After entering the room, which is of steel construction and bullet-proof windows, the burglars rifled a number of boxes in which small change is kept. This cash was in bags ready to be distributed to the cash registers when the store opened today.

Ulster County Investigator Thomas Mayone was notified of the burglary and went to the scene and with Investigator Richard Ryan of the Lake Katrine state police barracks continued the investigation. Mayone was assisted today by Deputy Sheriff Vincent Van Demark.

Safe Untouched

In addition to the $240 which was reported missing and additional $600 which was also in bags in other compartments on another shelf was overlooked. In all about 18 bags containing money in small denominations were taken.

No attempt was made to force the safe in the office.

Dutchess Road Fatal Is Among 11 Deaths in N.Y.

Eleven persons, including a Connecticut salesman, who was the victim of a highway fatality in Dutchess County Saturday, were killed in weekend accidents, according to The Associated Press.

Recorded 2 on Jan. 14

The first two highway fatalities in Dutchess County were recorded on Tuesday, Jan. 14, when Sig Buchmayr, of New York City and Manchester, Vt., and Mrs. Irmfried Ferenti, 42, also of Manchester were killed. Buchmayr, owner of a chain of ski and sporting goods stores, was a passenger in a car driven by the woman when the vehicle left Taconic Parkway, Town of East Fishkill, and hit a utility pole.

In 1963, the third highway death in Dutchess occurred on March 30 near Amenia. Highway accidents last year claimed the lives of 30 persons in that county.

South Millbrook State Police reported Sawyer was driving a car owned by a car rental agency at Hartford, and was on his way to Poughkeepsie when the vehicle left the highway east of Millbrook and hit a pole, after knocking down small reflectors.

A Millbrook ambulance crew administered first aid. Sawyer was pronounced dead by a physician. A Catholic priest gave the victim the last rites of the church.

Investigates Fatality

Dr. William G. Thompson, Rhinebeck, a Dutchess County assistant medical examiner, investigated the fatality with South Millbrook troopers.

Concerning Nonaggression

LBJ Calls on Khrush For Much Broader Pact

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has called on Soviet Premier Khrushchev to broaden his proposal for a worldwide nonaggression pact to outlaw "indirect" as well as direct aggression and provide greater security for West Berlin.

In a letter made public today, the President proposed four "guidelines" for international agreement which he said would be "even broader and stronger" than Khrushchev's proposed ban on the use of force in territorial disputes.

Johnson did not specify Berlin or its access routes across Communist East Germany in his reply to Khrushchev's Dec. 31 message.

Berlin in Mind

But administration officials said he had the Berlin problem in mind in asking agreement to prohibit the use or threat of force to change "arrangements or procedures concerning access to, passage across or the administration of those areas where international agreeement or practice has established or confirmed such arrangements or procedures."

The President urged Khrushchev to join in taking "concrete action" both to end the nuclear arms race and bar the spread of nuclear weapons and to outlaw aggression and subversion.

Johnson's guidelines constituted an omnibus package for negotiation between the United States and Russia and among the nations of the world generally if Khrushchev is interested. The President stopped short of suggesting a new treaty specifically, though he did not rule one out.

As a diplomatic maneuver,

Store, Automobile And Other Thefts Are Being Probed

Theft of several pellet guns and money from the Thomas L. Maines sporting goods store, 359 Broadway, of an automobile, and several others over the weekend are under investigation.

Reported entered also were the branch laboratory of the New York State Veterinary College, 88 Prince Street, and the Patsy Petramale home, 57 Boulevard.

The latter badly damaged early Thanksgiving by fire, is under repair. Entrance was gained by the forcing of a front door lock. Nothing of value was reported missing.

Money was reported taken from a poor box in the vestibule of St. Peter's Church, an attempt was made to enter the Rosendale Florist building, 375 Broadway, and possible theft of money from a coin machine at the East O'Reilly Street Laundromat, was reported.

Gives Rosy Picture Of Future

Congress Receives Economic Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson predicted today record-smashing prosperity in 1964 if Congress acts—"not in one or two or three months but now"—on the $11 billion tax cut. without it, Johnson warned the legislators, the rosy picture could become harsh — "dashed expectation could turn expansion into recession."

In his first economic report to Congress, the new President also cautioned against inflationary price rises.

"A series of specific price increases in recent months — expecially in manufactured goods—gives me some cause for concern," he said, although he doesn't anticipate a renewal of the wage-price spiral.

To Nip Inflation

He urged business and labor to continue their "excellent" record of price and cost settlements but said he is setting up an "early warning system" guard against potentially inflationary price and wage increases.

"In the face of a 44 per cent increase in corporate profits in less than three years and the prospect of further increases to come with the tax cut, I see no warrant for inflationary price rises," he declared.

In the economic report Congress, required annually der the 1946 Employment Johnson made clear he was new wagonmaster for the New Frontier legislative train. And he pointed with pride at the big steps the country made since 1961, years under Democratic administrations.

Pass Vital Milestones

"Our record $100 billion expansion since early 1961 has carried us past important milestones in the march toward a better life," he said.

Turning to last year specifically, he said these advances were made for the first time in history:

—The Gross National Product (GNP) — The total output of goods and services—passed the $600 billion mark by year-end.

Personal income before taxes) reached an average rate of some $2,500 per capita by year-end.

—After-tax income of individuals exceeded $400 billion for the year.

—Corporate profits exceeded $50 billion before taxes and $25 billion after taxes.

— Residential construction passed $25 billion.

— Civilian employment exceeded 70 million for the year.

Johnson said this $600 billion annual rate the GNP reached in the fourth quarter of 1963 is a 16 per cent increase since 1961.

With the tax cut, he added, GNP should soar to a whopping $623 billion in 1964.

When fully effective in 1965, he asserted, the cut will "send well over $11 billion annually of the private economy."

Benefits will be reaped year after year, he said, and will lead "at long last to a balanced budget in a balanced economy at full potential."

Other Items

Also on Johnson's list of legislation he wants whipped through were these items, practically all bearing the Kennedy administration label:

1. Higher penalty rates for overtime pay to stimulate new hiring by some industries without resorting to a 35-hour week which he said would "only redistribute work, not expand it."
2. Federal aid to upgrade children of the poor, so that they need not follow their parents in poverty."
3. Hospital insurance under Social Security for the aged.
4. Federal aid to cities in modernizing mass transit.
5. Renewal and strengthening of a number of expiring housing laws, including low-rent public housing, renewal of decayed city areas, and special housing for the elderly.
6. Coverage of some 2.5 million more workers by the $1.25 minimum wage law, including some 650,000 hotel, motel, restaurant, laundry, dry cleaning and farm-processing workers.
7. Permanent improvement in the duration and benefits of unemployment insurance.
8. A rash of legislation "to

Dutchess Road Fatal Is Among 11 Deaths in N.Y.

Eleven persons, including a Connecticut salesman, who was the victim of a highway fatality in Dutchess County Saturday, were killed in weekend accidents, according to The Associated Press.

Dutchess County recorded its third highway fatality of 1964 when Thomas O. Sawyer, 48, of 232 Farmington Avenue, Hartford, Conn., was killed after a 1963 rented automobile he was driving veered off Sharon Turnpike, the Millbrook by-pass, and hit a utility pole.

Recorded 2 on Jan. 14

The first two highway fatalities in Dutchess County were recorded on Tuesday, Jan. 14, when Sig Buchmayr, of New York City and Manchester, Vt., and Mrs. Irmfried Ferenti, 42, also of Manchester were killed. Buchmayr, owner of a chain of ski and sporting goods stores, was a passenger in a car driven by the woman when the vehicle left Taconic Parkway, Town of East Fishkill, and hit a utility pole.

In 1963, the third highway death in Dutchess occurred on March 30 near Amenia. Highway accidents last year claimed the lives of 30 persons in that county.

South Millbrook State Police reported Sawyer was driving a car owned by a car rental agency at Hartford, and was on his way to Poughkeepsie when the vehicle left the highway east of Millbrook and hit a pole, after knocking down small reflectors.

A Millbrook ambulance crew administered first aid. Sawyer was pronounced dead by a physician. A Catholic priest gave the victim the last rites of the church.

Investigates Fatality

Dr. William G. Thompson, Rhinebeck, a Dutchess County assistant medical examiner, investigated the fatality with South Millbrook troopers.

Concerning Nonaggression

LBJ Calls on Khrush For Much Broader Pact

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Diplomatic Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has called on Soviet Premier Khrushchev to broaden his proposal for a worldwide nonaggression pact to outlaw "indirect" as well as direct aggression and provide greater security for West Berlin.

In a letter made public today, the President proposed four "guidelines" for international agreement which he said would be "even broader and stronger" than Khrushchev's proposed ban on the use of force in territorial disputes.

Johnson did not specify Berlin or its access routes across Communist East Germany in his reply to Khrushchev's Dec. 31 message.

Berlin in Mind

But administration officials said he had the Berlin problem in mind in asking agreement to prohibit the use or threat of force to change "arrangements or procedures concerning access to, passage across or the administration of those areas where international agreeement or practice has established or confirmed such arrangements or procedures."

The President urged Khrushchev to join in taking "concrete action" both to end the nuclear arms race and bar the spread of nuclear weapons and to outlaw aggression and subversion.

Johnson's guidelines constituted an omnibus package for negotiation between the United States and Russia and among the nations of the world generally if Khrushchev is interested. The President stopped short of suggesting a new treaty specifically, though he did not rule one out.

As a diplomatic maneuver,

Store, Automobile And Other Thefts Are Being Probed

Theft of several pellet guns and money from the Thomas L. Maines sporting goods store, 359 Broadway, of an automobile, and several others over the weekend are under investigation.

Reported entered also were the branch laboratory of the New York State Veterinary College, 88 Prince Street, and the Patsy Petramale home, 57 Boulevard.

The latter badly damaged early Thanksgiving by fire, is under repair. Entrance was gained by the forcing of a front door lock. Nothing of value was reported missing.

Money was reported taken from a poor box in the vestibule of St. Peter's Church, an attempt was made to enter the Rosendale Florist building, 375 Broadway, and possible theft of money from a coin machine at the East O'Reilly Street Laundromat, was reported.

Gives Rosy Picture Of Future

Congress Receives Economic Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson predicted today record-smashing prosperity in 1964 if Congress acts—"not in one or two or three months but now"—on the $11 billion tax cut. without it, Johnson warned the legislators, the rosy picture could become harsh — "dashed expectation could turn expansion into recession."

In his first economic report to Congress, the new President also cautioned against inflationary price rises.

"A series of specific price increases in recent months — expecially in manufactured goods—gives me some cause for concern," he said, although he doesn't anticipate a renewal of the wage-price spiral.

To Nip Inflation

He urged business and labor to continue their "excellent" record of price and cost settlements but said he is setting up an "early warning system" guard against potentially inflationary price and wage increases.

"In the face of a 44 per cent increase in corporate profits in less than three years and the prospect of further increases to come with the tax cut, I see no warrant for inflationary price rises," he declared.

In the economic report Congress, required annually der the 1946 Employment Johnson made clear he was new wagonmaster for the New Frontier legislative train. And he pointed with pride at the big steps the country made since 1961, years under Democratic administrations.

Pass Vital Milestones

"Our record $100 billion expansion since early 1961 has carried us past important milestones in the march toward a better life," he said.

Turning to last year specifically, he said these advances were made for the first time in history:

—The Gross National Product (GNP) — The total output of goods and services—passed the $600 billion mark by year-end.

Personal income before taxes) reached an average rate of some $2,500 per capita by year-end.

—After-tax income of individuals exceeded $400 billion for the year.

—Corporate profits exceeded $50 billion before taxes and $25 billion after taxes.

— Residential construction passed $25 billion.

— Civilian employment exceeded 70 million for the year.

Johnson said this $600 billion annual rate the GNP reached in the fourth quarter of 1963 is a 16 per cent increase since 1961.

With the tax cut, he added, GNP should soar to a whopping $623 billion in 1964.

When fully effective in 1965, he asserted, the cut will "send well over $11 billion annually of the private economy."

Benefits will be reaped year after year, he said, and will lead "at long last to a balanced budget in a balanced economy at full potential."

Other Items

Also on Johnson's list of legislation he wants whipped through were these items, practically all bearing the Kennedy administration label:

1. Higher penalty rates for overtime pay to stimulate new hiring by some industries without resorting to a 35-hour week which he said would "only redistribute work, not expand it."
2. Federal aid to upgrade children of the poor, so that they need not follow their parents in poverty."
3. Hospital insurance under Social Security for the aged.
4. Federal aid to cities in modernizing mass transit.
5. Renewal and strengthening of a number of expiring housing laws, including low-rent public housing, renewal of decayed city areas, and special housing for the elderly.
6. Coverage of some 2.5 million more workers by the $1.25 minimum wage law, including some 650,000 hotel, motel, restaurant, laundry, dry cleaning and farm-processing workers.
7. Permanent improvement in the duration and benefits of unemployment insurance.
8. A rash of legislation "to

Johnson Report To Congress in Highlight Form

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of President Johnson's economic report to congress:

The 1963 Record

— Gross national product passed the $600 billion level — up $100 billion in less than three years since early 1961.

— Personal income reached an average rate per capita of $2,500.

—After-tax income of individuals reached $500 billion.

— Corporate profits reached $50 billion before taxes, $25 billion after taxes.

— Employment exceeded 70 million.

Extent of the Advance

—Since early 1961, gross national product has risen 16 per cent.

—Industrial production is up 23 per cent.

—Personal income is up $70 billion—17 per cent.

—Total after-tax income is up $56 billion—16 per cent.

— Corporate profits before taxes are up $17 billion — 44 per cent.

Problems Ahead

—An unemployment rate of 5½ per cent continues to "cast a long shadow over our pride in this achievement" and reminds us that far too much of our precious human potential lies idle."

—Men, machines and materials that lie idle today could readily add about $30 billion more to our $600 billion GNP

— Operating rates in manufacturing average 87 per cent of capacity, compared with 92 per cent preferred by business managers.

—We need about 2 million new jobs each year.

— Balance of payments deficits—though only half as large in 1963 as in 1962 — have not been eliminated.

Effect of Tax Cut

—Will provide a greater net stimulus to the economy in 1964 than in any other peacetime year in history.

— Gross national product should rise from $585 billion for 1963 to $623 billion for 1964; without tax cut, level will be $10-$15 billion lower.

Johnson Says

lift the forgotten fifth of our nation above the poverty line."

For this "war on poverty" which Johnson declared in his State of the Union message, the President said he would present details in later special message to Congress. But he declared:

"Americans today enjoy the highest standard of living in the history of mankind. But for nearly a fifth of our fellow citizens this is a hollow achievement. They often live without hope, below minimum standards of decency."

Johnson said the per capita income "of these 35 million men, women and children" was only $590 in 1962, against $1,900 per capita for the nation as a whole.

But, Johnson told the legislators, no single Washington program can do the job. Instead, he said, all the federal, state, local and private programs must work together, and communities must be assisted in developing their own programs.

But Johnson put heaviest stress on need for a reduction in taxes. Declaring he wanted thet ax cut bill now, he also said it should be "not in diluted, but in strengthened form."

The "strengthened" bill he asked for would cut the withholding rate on paychecks to 14 per cent immediately. Now the rate is 18 per cent; the measure as pending would reduce it to 15 per cent this year, 14 per cent next year.

At the 14 per cent rate, the tax cut would reduce individual taxes by $8.8 billion this year, in addition to a $1.5 billion cut in corporation taxes.

Admiral Waits

SYDNEY (AP) — Rear Adm. John W. Ailes, U.S. naval inspector general, spent four hours in Australia today—in the quarantine room at Sydney Airport.

Ailes couldn't produce a certificate of smallpox vaccination, and he refused to be revaccinated. An aide said the admiral feared a possible reaction from another vaccination.

Mrs. LBJ in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson arrived here today from Washington as a coach passenger on a regular airliner.

The nation's First Lady flew in aboard an American Airlines plane.

Mrs. Johnson will attend a preview performance of Arthur Miller's new play, "After the Fall," tonight and presumably will do some shopping.

LBJ Calls

Johnson placed heavy emphasis on declaring the peace aims of his foreign policy instead of replying at length to points in Khrushchev's letter to which he and his advisers strongly objected.

Johnson did reassert, however, the U.S. commitment "to the peaceful unification of Germany" and to Nationalist China and he declared U.S. "forces and bases abroad are for collective defense."

Major Points Covered

Johnson's four guidelines covered these major points:

1. All governments or "regimes" — which would include Red China—"shall abstain from the direct or indirect threat or use of force" to change international boundaries or dividing lines established by international practice, to upset truce agreements, or to alter existing arrangements for access to or administration of areas where the arrangements are established by international agreement or practice. This first guideline would also ban the use of threat or of force by any government to enlarge its control of territory by overthrowing "established authority."

2. The prohibition on aggressive action "shall apply regardless of the direct or indirect form which such threat or use of force might take, whether in the form of aggression, subversion, or clandestine supply of arms" and regardless of the reasons given or of any questions of diplomatic recognition or differences in political systems.

3. The nations involved in any serious dispute "shall seek a solution by peaceful means" including the possibility of action through the United Nations or a regional U.N. agency.

4. The obligations covered in the guideline "would have to be quite generally observed" and would not impair the "inherent right of self defense" which is recognized by the U.N. charter.

Johnson said the United States believes the peacekeeping processses of the United Nations and particularly its security council "should be more fully used and strengthened."

"In conclusion with our allies," the President wrote Khrushchev, "we shall offer specific proposals along these lines in the weeks ahead. Both the Geneva Disarmament Conference and the United Nations are appropriate places for such discussions."

Store, Automobile

Qualtere, of 150 Linderman Avenue, reported stolen at 2:55 p. m., from near 243 Wall Street, was recovered a short time later on Crown near John Street by officers James Scott and Raymond Wells.

Local police were notified that the car had been spotted and chased on Route 28 by state police, but it got away in traffic in or near the city as they were about to overtake it.

Enter Through Cellar

Arnold Cohn, of 111-B Fairmont Avenue reported a cigarette lighter and gear shift knob taken from his car Saturday night while it was parked in a Brewster Street lot.

Entrance to the Maines store was gained through a cellerway. Some $5 in cash, some $16 worth of school bus tickets, were taken along with the pellet guns, two of which were found nearby in a yard. The missing guns are valued at about $100.

A transistor radio and stamps were reported taken from the branch laboratory of the state veterinary college and desks were ransacked. Entrance was gained through a window in the men's room.

73 Face Trial In March, Melee On City Jail

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventy - three persons face trial in Atlanta Municipal Court today as a result of a melee and protest march on city jail during the weekend.

The first group of 24 was arrested after Negroes picketed a segregated lunch counter in which several members of the Ku Klux Klan were drinking coffee.

The others were taken into custody at the city jail when they protested the earlier arrests. They were arrested for refusing to move when ordered to do so by a policeman.

A few white persons were among those arrested. One told police he is a student at Emory University, Atlanta.

A Georgia Klan leader demanded an investigation by the Justice Department of what he called a conspiracy between some Atlanta officials and civil rights groups.

Calvin Craig, grand dragon of the Georgia Klan, said the so-called conspiracy was "well illustrated by the mob rule in Atlanta Saturday night. The Atlanta police were undermanned either by orders from the mayor or police chief so as to let such proceed."

Craig said he considers the incident similar to Communist rioting in Panama.

Atlanta police have adopted a policy of refusing to arrest demonstrators at business establishments unless proprietors swear out warrants against demonstrators.

In other racial developments, the Civil Rights Commission in Washington said federal compulsion to breach barriers that continue to bar Negroes from skilled crafts and jobs probably is inevitable.

The commission reported only meager increases in Negro and minority apprenticeships and employment have resulted from intensified government prodding, voluntary understandings with industry and civil rights pressures.

After studying reports from eight states and the District of Columbia, the commission reached the conclusion that administrative changes and basic reforms in law "will probably become inevitable."

The Justice Department was advised of a series of cross-burnings in Negro communities in southeastern Louisiana. An anonymous telephone caller told the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate the incidents were a revival of Klan activity in that area.

The cross-burnings apparently were aimed at Negro voter registration activity.

A 16-year-old white youth, Larry Joe Sims, remained free under $10,000 bond in Birmingham, after he was convicted of second-degree manslaughter in the Sept. 15 pistol slaying of a 13-year-old Negro, Virgil Ware.

A state court jury fixed Sims' sentence at seven months in jail.

Tanganyika

Army's British commander, Brig. Patrick Sholto - Douglas, had tried to contact other units 400 miles from the capital, but couldn't find out whether they had joined the mutiny.

Britain has no troops in Tanganyika, which it administreed until independence was granted Dec. 9, 1961. It supplies officers, however, to help train and command the native force.

Britain has a company of troops within easy reach aboard a British navy frigate standing off Zanzibar to help evacuate British civilians.

Have Phone Control

Tanganyika radio went off the air this morning, and a responsible British source in London said Dar es Salaam's international telephone exchange was in rebel hands.

The outbreak came two days after "Field Marshal" John Okello, military chief of the Zanzibar revolution, flew to Dar es Salaaam ostensibly seeking talks with President Julius Nyerere and other leaders of Tanganyika.

British press reports said Nyerere, considered one of the most moderate of the new African leaders, snubbed Okello and took a five-day trip into the interior.

After 75 years of German and British colonial rule, Nyerere shepherded Tanganyika to independence without a shot being fired. Retaining British officials in his government, Nyerere has worked hard to try to improve Tanganyika's economic lot.

Johnson Report To Congress in Highlight Form

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of President Johnson's economic report to congress:

The 1963 Record

— Gross national product passed the $600 billion level — up $100 billion in less than three years since early 1961.

— Personal income reached an average rate per capita of $2,500.

—After-tax income of individuals reached $500 billion.

— Corporate profits reached $50 billion before taxes, $25 billion after taxes.

— Employment exceeded 70 million.

Extent of the Advance

—Since early 1961, gross national product has risen 16 per cent.

—Industrial production is up 23 per cent.

—Personal income is up $70 billion—17 per cent.

—Total after-tax income is up $56 billion—16 per cent.

— Corporate profits before taxes are up $17 billion — 44 per cent.

Problems Ahead

—An unemployment rate of 5½ per cent continues to "cast a long shadow over our pride in this achievement" and reminds us that far too much of our precious human potential lies idle."

—Men, machines and materials that lie idle today could readily add about $30 billion more to our $600 billion GNP

— Operating rates in manufacturing average 87 per cent of capacity, compared with 92 per cent preferred by business managers.

—We need about 2 million new jobs each year.

— Balance of payments deficits—though only half as large in 1963 as in 1962 — have not been eliminated.

Effect of Tax Cut

—Will provide a greater net stimulus to the economy in 1964 than in any other peacetime year in history.

— Gross national product should rise from $585 billion for 1963 to $623 billion for 1964; without tax cut, level will be $10-$15 billion lower.

Johnson Says

lift the forgotten fifth of our nation above the poverty line."

For this "war on poverty" which Johnson declared in his State of the Union message, the President said he would present details in later special message to Congress. But he declared:

"Americans today enjoy the highest standard of living in the history of mankind. But for nearly a fifth of our fellow citizens this is a hollow achievement. They often live without hope, below minimum standards of decency."

Johnson said the per capita income "of these 35 million men, women and children" was only $590 in 1962, against $1,900 per capita for the nation as a whole.

But, Johnson told the legislators, no single Washington program can do the job. Instead, he said, all the federal, state, local and private programs must work together, and communities must be assisted in developing their own programs.

But Johnson put heaviest stress on need for a reduction in taxes. Declaring he wanted thet ax cut bill now, he also said it should be "not in diluted, but in strengthened form."

The "strengthened" bill he asked for would cut the withholding rate on paychecks to 14 per cent immediately. Now the rate is 18 per cent; the measure as pending would reduce it to 15 per cent this year, 14 per cent next year.

At the 14 per cent rate, the tax cut would reduce individual taxes by $8.8 billion this year, in addition to a $1.5 billion cut in corporation taxes.

Admiral Waits

SYDNEY (AP) — Rear Adm. John W. Ailes, U.S. naval inspector general, spent four hours in Australia today—in the quarantine room at Sydney Airport.

Ailes couldn't produce a certificate of smallpox vaccination, and he refused to be revaccinated. An aide said the admiral feared a possible reaction from another vaccination.

Mrs. LBJ in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson arrived here today from Washington as a coach passenger on a regular airliner.

The nation's First Lady flew in aboard an American Airlines plane.

Mrs. Johnson will attend a preview performance of Arthur Miller's new play, "After the Fall," tonight and presumably will do some shopping.

LBJ Calls

Johnson placed heavy emphasis on declaring the peace aims of his foreign policy instead of replying at length to points in Khrushchev's letter to which he and his advisers strongly objected.

Johnson did reassert, however, the U.S. commitment "to the peaceful unification of Germany" and to Nationalist China and he declared U.S. "forces and bases abroad are for collective defense."

Major Points Covered

Johnson's four guidelines covered these major points:

1. All governments or "regimes" — which would include Red China—"shall abstain from the direct or indirect threat or use of force" to change international boundaries or dividing lines established by international practice, to upset truce agreements, or to alter existing arrangements for access to or administration of areas where the arrangements are established by international agreement or practice. This first guideline would also ban the use of threat or of force by any government to enlarge its control of territory by overthrowing "established authority."

2. The prohibition on aggressive action "shall apply regardless of the direct or indirect form which such threat or use of force might take, whether in the form of aggression, subversion, or clandestine supply of arms" and regardless of the reasons given or of any questions of diplomatic recognition or differences in political systems.

3. The nations involved in any serious dispute "shall seek a solution by peaceful means" including the possibility of action through the United Nations or a regional U.N. agency.

4. The obligations covered in the guideline "would have to be quite generally observed" and would not impair the "inherent right of self defense" which is recognized by the U.N. charter.

Johnson said the United States believes the peacekeeping processes of the United Nations and particularly its security council "should be more fully used and strengthened."

"In conclusion with our allies," the President wrote Khrushchev, "we shall offer specific proposals along these lines in the weeks ahead. Both the Geneva Disarmament Conference and the United Nations are appropriate places for such discussions."

Store, Automobile

Qualtere, of 150 Linderman Avenue, reported stolen at 2:55 p. m., from near 243 Wall Street, was recovered a short time later on Crown near John Street by officers James Scott and Raymond Wells.

Local police were notified that the car had been spotted and chased on Route 28 by state police, but it got away in traffic in or near the city as they were about to overtake it.

Enter Through Cellar

Arnold Cohn, of 111-B Fairmont Avenue reported a cigarette lighter and gear shift knob taken from his car Saturday night while it was parked in a Brewster Street lot.

Entrance to the Maines store was gained through a cellerway. Some $5 in cash, some $16 worth of school bus tickets, were taken along with the pellet guns, two of which were found nearby in a yard. The missing guns are valued at about $100.

A transistor radio and stamps were reported taken from the branch laboratory of the state veterinary college and desks were ransacked. Entrance was gained through a window in the men's room.

73 Face Trial In March, Melee On City Jail

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seventy - three persons face trial in Atlanta Municipal Court today as a result of a melee and protest march on city jail during the weekend.

The first group of 24 was arrested after Negroes picketed a segregated lunch counter in which several members of the Ku Klux Klan were drinking coffee.

The others were taken into custody at the city jail when they protested the earlier arrests. They were arrested for refusing to move when ordered to do so by a policeman.

A few white persons were among those arrested. One told police he is a student at Emory University, Atlanta.

A Georgia Klan leader demanded an investigation by the Justice Department of what he called a conspiracy between some Atlanta officials and civil rights groups.

Calvin Craig, grand dragon of the Georgia Klan, said the so-called conspiracy was "well illustrated by the mob rule in Atlanta Saturday night. The Atlanta police were undermanned either by orders from the mayor or police chief so as to let such proceed."

Craig said he considers the incident similar to Communist rioting in Panama.

Atlanta police have adopted a policy of refusing to arrest demonstrators at business establishments unless proprietors swear out warrants against demonstrators.

In other racial developments, the Civil Rights Commission in Washington said federal compulsion to breach barriers that continue to bar Negroes from skilled crafts and jobs probably is inevitable.

The commission reported only meager increases in Negro and minority apprenticeships and employment have resulted from intensified government prodding, voluntary understandings with industry and civil rights pressures.

After studying reports from eight states and the District of Columbia, the commission reached the conclusion that administrative changes and basic reforms in law "will probably become inevitable."

The Justice Department was advised of a series of cross-burnings in Negro communities in southeastern Louisiana. An anonymous telephone caller told the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate the incidents were a revival of Klan activity in that area.

The cross-burnings apparently were aimed at Negro voter registration activity.

A 16-year-old white youth, Larry Joe Sims, remained free under $10,000 bond in Birmingham, after he was convicted of second-degree manslaughter in the Sept. 15 pistol slaying of a 13-year-old Negro, Virgil Ware.

A state court jury fixed Sims' sentence at seven months in jail.

Tanganyika

Army's British commander, Brig. Patrick Sholto - Douglas, had tried to contact other units 400 miles from the capital, but couldn't find out whether they had joined the mutiny.

Britain has no troops in Tanganyika, which it administreed until independence was granted Dec. 9, 1961. It supplies officers, however, to help train and command the native force.

Britain has a company of troops within easy reach aboard a British navy frigate standing off Zanzibar to help evacuate British civilians.

Have Phone Control

Tanganyika radio went off the air this morning, and a responsible British source in London said Dar es Salaam's international telephone exchange was in rebel hands.

The outbreak came two days after "Field Marshal" John Okello, military chief of the Zanzibar revolution, flew to Dar es Salaaam ostensibly seeking talks with President Julius Nyerere and other leaders of Tanganyika.

British press reports said Nyerere, considered one of the most moderate of the new African leaders, snubbed Okello and took a five-day trip into the interior.

After 75 years of German and British colonial rule, Nyerere shepherded Tanganyika to independence without a shot being fired. Retaining British officials in his government, Nyerere has worked hard to try to improve Tanganyika's economic lot.

Discussion Likely Next Month on Taconic Addition

Possible extension of the Taconic Parkway will be discussed next month at a meeting of representatives of the Greater Hudson Chamber of Commerce, the New Lebanon Businessmen's Association and state authorities.

Albert S. Callan Jr., of Old Chatham arranged the meeting through the cooperation of Alexander Aldrich, of Chatham Center, executive assistant to Governor Rockefeller.

According to reports, it is possible that Assemblyman Willard C. Drumm of Niverville, will attend the session geared to induce the Legislature to consider extending the present terminus of the Taconic Parkway beyond the Berkshire spur of the New York Thruway to Route 20 in Rensselaer County.

The Hudson Chamber of Commerce already has forwarded appeals to Assemblyman Drumm and Congressman J. Ernest Wharton to exert every possible effort to acquire construction work of any kind, federal or state, that would take up the slack now that Taconic Parkway construction has come to an end.

Gus Kramer, executive secretary of the Greater Hudson Chamber of Commerce emphasized that the Chamber is not only interested in work for Hudson, but is concerned with the economy of all Columbia County. He said, "What's good for Columbia County is good for Hudson."

The meeting with Charles Merritt, chairman of the East Hudson Parkway Authority, is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 4-5 in Albany.

This was the word today from Chief Petty Officer Joseph E. Brown Jr., of the loocal Navy recruiting station, Room 2, Central Post Office Building.

FOOD FOR REFLECTION

The report of the U.S. Surgeon General's Advisory Committee on Smoking and Health leaves no doubt that present evidence shows cigarette smoking to be a menace to health. The general conclusion of this authoritative committee of scientists is that the health hazard is sufficient to "warrant appropriate remedial action."

This conclusion is supported by separate indictments of cigarette smoking as a factor of varying intensity in numerous ailments, including lung cancer and some other cancers, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema and coronary disease.

It does not necessarily follow that there will be any significant long-run decline in cigarette smoking, though this would be a good thing. It does not follow that the tobacco companies will produce a harmless cigarette, or even tone down their effort to recruit more and more young Americans for the army of smokers. It does not follow that the government will undertake substantial corrective action, or that if it did so this would sharply reduce cigarette smoking in the United States.

What does follow, unless Americans are far more foolish and heedless than we believe, is that the federal report will stimulate a lot of sober reflection. It is a fair guess that a sound effort, through education and legislation, eventually will be made to minimize this hazard. Though millions are addicted to the cigarette habit, we think their addiction is not as slavish as is commonly supposed.

USING WATER TWICE

From time to time there are reports that indicate awareness of the need to learn how communities can re-use water instead of wasting it after one use. This need will become more pressing as our rising population makes heavier and heavier demands on water supplies that are far from limitless.

The most recent news along these lines comes from Los Angeles County in California, where a varied attack is being made on the problem of getting further use out of municipal waste water. A new way to remove detergents by blowing air through the water is to be tested at Pomona, and in Lancaster algae will be removed from water destined for recreational lakes. A cost study of sewage processing will be made at the Whittier Narrows Reclamation Plant.

The problem is more immediate in Southern California than in some other parts of the country. The problem will make itself felt increasingly elsewhere, however, as the nation's water needs grow. A many-faceted approach must be made to conserving water supplies. One of the most promising afforts is the development of means of making municipal waste water usable again.

NEW CLAIM FOR ASPIRIN

The pressures of modern living seems to be getting heavy for more and more of us.

With seemingly no way out, it now appears that even chickens seem to be caught up in our pressurized living.

At least, this is what you might conclude in light of the results of two researchers at the University of Arizona. They find that by giving chickens aspirin, they'll lay more eggs.

In two tests involving 180 white leghorns, the scientists added acetyl salicycle acid (better known to ordinary folks as aspirin) to a poultry ration. Results: Six per cent more eggs.

Why?

"We don't know," say the researchers frankly.

The hens must be wondering, too.

Ike sends a friendly word to President Johnson to take it easy. It's good advice—but about like urging a juggler to let a ball go by now and then.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

HOW DOES COPE STAND ON FREE SPEECH?

COPE, or the Committee on Political Education of the AFL-CIO, is up in arms about "right wing radio broadcasters." It is busy circulating a horrendous map of the United States which pinpoints the stations where the so-called "extremists" manage to open their mouths in spite of the objections of "liberals" who no longer believe with Mr. Justice Holmes that the test of truth is in the marketplace.

On the "menace list" put out by COPE are Carl McIntire's Twentieth Century Reformation Hour (530 stations); H. L. Hunt's Life Lines (324 stations); the Manion Forum (313 stations); Billy James Hargis (200 stations); Howard Kershner (148 stations); and Dan Smoot (133 stations). Since your servant finds the telephone a far more useful instrument than radio or television in the assembling of information, he cannot say that he has followed even a tenth part of everything broadcast by the stations which so displease COPE. But the blanket condemnation of "right-ist" programs works a great injustice against particular broadcasts or quotations from broadcasts that have happened to come this columnist's way.

For example, COPE indiscriminately condemns H. L. Hunt's Life Lines. Now, H. L. Hunt is an oil tycoon who happens to be a multi-millionaire, and for all I know, he may not love labor unions. I don't know Mr. Hunt personally, but I seem to be on his mailing list for at least some of the material that COPE describes as "propaganda." Checking back through some of Mr. Hunt's releases, I find a number of them which deplore the spread of anti-Semitism in Soviet Russia. The wholly commendable activity of Mr. Hunt in combatting race prejudice ought to merit praise from COPE instead of a sniffish enmity.

Then there is the Manion Forum. Not so long ago Captain Eddie Rickenbacker used his opportunity as a Manion Forum guest to ask a most vital question, "Are We Pledged to Protect Communism in Cuba?" How does COPE answer this question? The AFL's George Meany certainly doesn't want to protect Communism in his own unions. As for Walter Reuther, he rose to power in the United Automobile Workers and in the CIO by making relentless warfare on labor leaders who were suspected of Communist ties. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker happens to think the Communists are just as dangerous to U.S. interests in the western hemisphere as they are to the cause of free American labor. If the AFL-CIO has the right to speak out against the internal Communist menace as it affects the labor movement, why shouldn't Captain Eddie Rickenbacker have a similar right to air his views on anti-Communist foreign policy over the Manion Forum's wave length?

This columnist has never listened to Howard Kershner's air programs. But he has often read Dr. Kershner's publication, "Christian Economics." The article in this publication are based on the eminently respectable Christian doctrine that good and evil have no meaning if men are not free to make their own choices. The AFL-CIO might wish to argue against any hard-and-fast application of this doctrine in the field of labor relations. But is that any justification for trying to force Dr. Kershner off the air?

This columnist disagrees with certain right-wing crusades, such as the one designed to bring about the impeachment of Chief Justice Earl Warren. When a man has been nominated and confirmed as a judge, the nation must bear with him as long as he practices common honesty in reaching his decisions. But this does not mean that the Warren Court is not subject to criticism in a free country, or that radio stations shouldn't broadcast such criticism when it exists.

So fie upon COPE's blanket-condemnatory map. We'll stick to that old-fashioned liberal, Voltaire, who thought that all voices have a right to be heard. Or to Mr. Justice Holmes, who spent a lifetime dissenting from the majority view.

THE WELL CHILD

Understanding Eases Growth Problem for Youth

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

As a boy reaches the age of 12 to 15, he may undergo an enlargement of the breasts. This is caused by the changes in hormone secretions associated with puberty. In some boys, the breasts may even be slightly sore when this enlargement first occurs. The enlargement usually lasts from a few months to two years and then subsides. If this is understood and proper reassurance is given selfconsciousness or embarrassment can be minimized.

In extreme instances, some form of treatment may be advisable. Male hormones have been tried, but without success. The only satisfactory treatment is surgical removal. If this is done, it should be performed by a plastic surgeon who will restore the normal contours, and leave an inconspicuous scar.

If the enlargement persists past age 18 or has its onset between ages 18 and 20, a tumor of one of the glands of internal secretion should be suspected. In this case, a biopsy specimen of the breast should be examined and other tests made to determine the cause. If a tumor is found, it should be removed without delay.

Q—My daughter, 16 months old, hasn't many teeth and can't chew meat. She won't eat baby food, so I've been giving her plenty of eggs. Could you suggest some meats she could chew or some substitute for meat?

A—It is most unusual for a baby not to accept the specially prepared baby foods that consist of meat or mixed meat and vegetables. Have you given up too easily? You may, however, give a 16-month-old baby finely ground round steak cooked without seasoning and without being made into patties.

What would cause my 10-year-old daughter to have a large amount of very long black hair on her arms and legs? Should she be allowed to shave her arms and legs? Does she have too many male hormones? She is very self-conscious about her hairiness.

A—Excessive hair on the arms and legs is usually inherited from one or both parents. Hair growth is controlled by the glands of internal secretion. Shaving will do no harm, but it will not solve the problem permanently.

STATISTICS ON ROMANCE

Now is the time for all smart girls to come to the aid of themselves, for things are likely to get a bit more competitive over the next couple of years.

Reason is that girls generally marry before they are 20, while most boys marry between 22 and 23. This means that girls born in the postwar baby-boom years of 1946 to 1949 will be looking for prospective bridegrooms among the young men born in the leaner war years of 1942-45.

According to statisticians at the University of Dayton, by 1966 girls in the one category will outnumber eligible men in the other category by 364,764. In 1967 it will be a little better, with a surplus of only 316,629 girls.

Remember, the next Leap Year won't be until 1968.

"I'd Look Positively Silly"

Washington News

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Short, paunchy Co. L. Vallerino is commandant of the Panama National Guard, the country's combined army and police.

When called into action, Col. Vallerino's troops did a rapid and efficient job of quelling the rioters and helping bring peace and order.

The story was different in the big anti-U. S. riots in Panama just over four years ago. Then, the Panamanians were unable to curb the disturbances. U. S. troops had to do the job.

American experts say it was because in 1959 Col. Vallerino just didn't care.

BEHIND THIS difference there's a story of little things.

It's a story of a Capt. Angel Arauz of the Panama National Guard being asked by the U. S. Army to be sports liaison officer. This seems like a trivial thing, but the captain loved it.

The captain is now Major Arauz, commander of the Palace Guard. His influence was important in getting action on putting down the riots.

Then there's Col. Vallerino himself. He was invited to study at the U. S. Army School of the Americas and graduated with honor. This gives him considerable prestige. The Army organized special courses to train his key officers and men. His military police were invited to co-patrol with Americans in some trouble spots. His troops were provided military equipment and sports supplies.

By Latin standards, the colonel's outfit became a spit-and-polish unit with pride, discipline and ability. That showed up in the riot control.

Col. Vallerino is a good man to have on our side. He's apparently afraid of nothing.

The Arias family, most powerful in Panama, has been out to oust him because he dared jail one of the Arias boys, first for a revolutionary attempt and second for smuggling. But they haven't been able to touch him.

THE CASE OF Maj. Arauz and Col. Vallerino are typical of the seemingly small but very real individual gains the U. S. military and foreign service groups have made in Panama since the 1959 riots.

The 1964 riots make it clear, however, that some major problems are still unsolved:

PROBLEM 1—The four-headed jumble of U.S. authority in the zone—the U.S. governor who reports to the Army, the commanding general of the U.S. Southern Command who reports to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the ambassador who reports to Secretary of State Rusk, and some U.S. congressmen who step in directly in various Canal Zone affairs.

Suggested solution: one top man.

PROBLEM 2 — The vested-interest second and third generation group of zone employes who State and Defense Department private reports say have taken on the attitude of French colonialists in Algiers and of the British Colonel Blimps in the old Indian Empire.

Solutions suggested by Army and zone "veterans": Rotate zone employes periodically as is done with U.S. diplomats and military men, and give more qualified Panamanians access to professional jobs in the zone.

SOME U.S. EXPERTS believe it will also be necessary to adjust the wages of Panamanian zone employes, raise U.S. Canal Zone payments to Panama, expand aid for low-cost Panamanian housing, help establish more local small industry.

But with all that, State and Defense Department specialists say the basic cause of the anti-U.S. riots in Panama may be something the U.S. can't solve itself.

That is, they say, you have a country, Panama, with some very rich and many very poor. In the center of that country you have, in the Canal Zone, an "island of good living" inhabited by "foreigners" (Americans) whose "wealth" apparently comes from the Panama Canal.

The envy and resentment will not be wiped out, these experts think, until the poor raise themselves and Panama builds a strong, steady middle class.

The Alliance for Progress started out with the idea of encouraging just this. It obviously has not succeeded. Key State and Defense Dept. men now say the Panamanians must accomplish the job themselves if it's to be done.

Today in World Affairs

Aim of De Gaulle of France, Red China and the U. S.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—President de Gaulle of France may not fully realize what he is doing, but he is about to take a step which could result in the first serious estrangement between France and the United States in more than a century. For the Paris government is soon to recognize Communist China. This is in utter disregard of the position of the United States and of the principles which have caused the government here during more than a decade to refuse to enter into diplomatic relations with Red China.

The prospective action of France, will, in effect, tell the world that aggression — which has been specifically denounced in the basic principles of the United Nations Charter — now gets a peculiar kind of reward.

The State Department here only a week ago said that French recognition of China would "not be a service" to the United States or to the Atlantic Alliance and would enhance China's ability to promote its goal of imposing communism in other countries by any means at hand. The Soviet Union, despite its so-called "split" with Red China, has just indicated it will welcome French recognition of the Peiping regime.

The U. S. has befriended France time after time and has come to its rescue in two world wars in this century by sending millions of troops 3,000 miles across the ocean. Many American lives have been sacrificed to repel aggression against France. The U. S. has provided the French people with about $10 billion in economic and military aid since World War II and has given moral support also for the maintenance of solidarity as against potential Communist aggression in Europe.

If there were involved only the fact that the Communist Chinese actually exercise control over a vast territory of the mainland of Asia, there would be less opposition here to diplomatic recognition of the Red China government. But the Communist Chinese made war on the UN troops in Korea from 1950 to 1953, defying the organization which had been set up by the governments of the world to maintain peace.

What President de Gaulle now is saying, in effect, is that, no matter what an aggressor nation does, it can get from the French government full diplomatic recognition. This is an encouragement of aggressor states and a disregard of the proponents of moral force, who have felt that the way to secure peace is not by military action but by a concerted world opinion—the support of peoples who favor free governments and a free society.

But President de Gaulle sweeps all this aside and extends his hand to the Red Chinese as if they had committed no crime in world affairs and as if they were eligible to be an ally of France.

The new development has been under discussion in diplomatic circles here for several weeks. The U. S. has endeavored to persuade the French government not to recognize Red China, particularly since the UN itself has refused to accept Red China into its membership But evidently there are materialistic interests in France that want to trade with Communist China. Apparently the French are also seeking some sort of new influence in Southeast Asia, where the next development to bring about the "reunification" of what used to be known as French Indo-China, but which now is divided into North and South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

The objective of the Red Chinese, of course, is to control Southeast Asia, and they will welcome French policy as assisting them in paralyzing the influence of the U. S. in that area. Once this is done, a Communist takeover is simplified.

It has often been said of Gen. de Galle that he is a nationalist at heart and looks after the interests of his own country. But, in a world of turmoil, no nation can afford to disregard its most powerful ally. The best explanation of Gen. de Gaulle's current move is that he believes the people of the U. S. will be indifferent and that this country will continue to do everything it has been doing in the past to assist France. But public opinion can be volatile and for France to fly in the face of the record of aggression by the Red Chinese is to arouse resentment in America.

It has been argued that Great Britain has also recognized the Peiping government. But those who make that point forget that the British had recognized Red China early in 1950—before the Red Chinese aggression in Korea.

The American people have always been friendly to France. But a coolness will undoubtedly arise when it is formally announced that the French government has turned its back on the U. S. and has embraced the Red Chinese rulers who are responsible for the killing and wounding of more than 135,000 Americans in Korea.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

In case you are planning to run for President, there are a few ground rules which you should understand. These are basic:

Do not enter any state primaries, unless you are a guaranteed winner. This is an obstacle course and, unless you have lots of money and wind, you may lose your shirt (See Humphrey, Hubert). A pledged delegation is good for only one ballot at the convention and you know, Buster, that you cannot make it in one. (See Johnson, Lyndon B. 1960).

Get your personal house in order now. If your son drives fast girls in fast cars, if your wife bets on canasta and horses, if you must have a little old drinkee before breakfast, if you share separate bedrooms, close ranks and stop all nefarious activity until Jan. 21, 1965. If there are bona fide nuts in your family, secure all hospital records and burn at once. If you have ever been in jail yourself, get a judge to paint you as a martyr.

Get a hack to write your biography. Pay him because in that way you maintain a lien on his typewriter. Have an assistant help him dig up all the homey material—the unpainted shack in which you were born; the little schoolhouse where you first printed your name on a slate; the teacher who predicted that you would someday be President of the United States; your poor old mother's struggle to keep the children fed. If your mother was rich, tell about her deep religious feelings and her charity.

Make speeches, lots of speeches. Don'tbe specific about anything, because anything specific is bound to alienate at least one wing of your party and give ammunition to the opposition. Tell your speech writer that you want to sound like a statesman: (1) Condemn Russia but you are willing to extend the hand of peace; (2) You will clean up the Cuban mess, but don't mention how; (3)You will keep the nation mighty in defense, but will cut spending and give a tax break to the poor and the corporations.

You are unalterable in favor of civil rights. It isn't necessary to state which side. You are aware of the great heritage of the Negro, and you aim to see that he gets what's coming to him. (This goes over big in North and South.) Have yourself photographed saying hello to a prominent Catholic, preferably a Cardinal. Speak lovingly of our Jewish brethren, and send a peace telegram to Nasser. Go to church regularly (Baptist is the biggest Protestant denomination) and conclude all speeches with a reference to God.

Do not permit yourself to be drawn into television debates by a candidate who can think on his feet. He represents the worst kind. Decline the invitation by stating that you have made your position clear on all issues, and you wish your opponent would do the same. Your best bet on television is to do a guest shot on the Jack Parr program. It might have elected Nixon, except that the Kennedys got on too.

You must hammer something. If you are a Republican, hammer the do-nothing 88th congress. If you are a Democrat, hammer the obstructionist tactics of Ev and Charlie in the 88th Congress. Whether you are Democrat or Republican, take a shot at Krushchev. Try not to take the same shot as your opponent.

Be human. Be a plain man. Get a dog. Be a duffer at golf, a loser at bridge, require assistance to get on a horse. Wear a Robert Hall suit with the label showing. Put your arm around your wife. Quote from the bible— preferably Old Testament. Smile. Put on a miner's hat and go down a shaft. Join an Indian tribe. Spurn the extreme left wing and the extreme right wing without mentioning them by organizations.

Talk about a new summit. Recite nice things about Kosciusko, Garabaldi, the Pope, George Washington Carver and Ireland's Easter Rebellion. Be an implacable enemy of the "drop-out." Oppose the four-day week and feather-bedding. Walk a tight wire by saying that you favor unions but oppose crooked union leaders. Make certain that your scotch is served in a glass of milk.

Listen to your advisers, and ignore their opinions. Use phrases like "the hustings," "groundswell," "grass roots." (See Hoover, Herbert 1932). When you speak, address the people as "You and I know . . .". They don't, but you'll make them think they do.

Items to be mentioned, but not explored deeply: NATO, the United Nations, Spain, Common Market, Surplus Commodities, budget deficit, debt ceiling, Orval Faubus, sit-ins, slums, crowded classrooms, desegregation, offshore oil, etc. It is sufficient if, after mentioning each of these, you put on a wise look and say: "You and I and all of us know how we stand on that question."

If, in spite of all this, you should lose, for goodness sake don't burst into tears . . .

FOOD FOR REFLECTION

The report of the U.S. Surgeon General's Advisory Committee on Smoking and Health leaves no doubt that present evidence shows cigarette smoking to be a menace to health. The general conclusion of this authoritative committee of scientists is that the health hazard is sufficient to "warrant appropriate remedial action."

This conclusion is supported by separate indictments of cigarette smoking as a factor of varying intensity in numerous ailments, including lung cancer and some other cancers, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema and coronary disease.

It does not necessarily follow that there will be any significant long-run decline in cigarette smoking, though this would be a good thing. It does not follow that the tobacco companies will produce a harmless cigarette, or even tone down their effort to recruit more and more young Americans for the army of smokers. It does not follow that the government will undertake substantial corrective action, or that if it did so this would sharply reduce cigarette smoking in the United States.

What does follow, unless Americans are far more foolish and heedless than we believe, is that the federal report will stimulate a lot of sober reflection. It is a fair guess that a sound effort, through education and legislation, eventually will be made to minimize this hazard. Though millions are addicted to the cigarette habit, we think their addiction is not as slavish as is commonly supposed.

USING WATER TWICE

From time to time there are reports that indicate awareness of the need to learn how communities can re-use water instead of wasting it after one use. This need will become more pressing as our rising population makes heavier and heavier demands on water supplies that are far from limitless.

The most recent news along these lines comes from Los Angeles County in California, where a varied attack is being made on the problem of getting further use out of municipal waste water. A new way to remove detergents by blowing air through the water is to be tested at Pomona, and in Lancaster algae will be removed from water destined for recreational lakes. A cost study of sewage processing will be made at the Whittier Narrows Reclamation Plant.

The problem is more immediate in Southern California than in some other parts of the country. The problem will make itself felt increasingly elsewhere, however, as the nation's water needs grow. A many-faceted approach must be made to conserving water supplies. One of the most promising afforts is the development of means of making municipal waste water usable again.

NEW CLAIM FOR ASPIRIN

The pressures of modern living seems to be getting heavy for more and more of us.

With seemingly no way out, it now appears that even chickens seem to be caught up in our pressurized living.

At least, this is what you might conclude in light of the results of two researchers at the University of Arizona. They find that by giving chickens aspirin, they'll lay more eggs.

In two tests involving 180 white leghorns, the scientists added acetyl salicycle acid (better known to ordinary folks as aspirin) to a poultry ration. Results: Six per cent more eggs.

Why?

"We don't know," say the researchers frankly.

The hens must be wondering, too.

Ike sends a friendly word to President Johnson to take it easy. It's good advice—but about like urging a juggler to let a ball go by now and then.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

HOW DOES COPE STAND ON FREE SPEECH?

COPE, or the Committee on Political Education of the AFL-CIO, is up in arms about "right wing radio broadcasters." It is busy circulating a horrendous map of the United States which pinpoints the stations where the so-called "extremists" manage to open their mouths in spite of the objections of "liberals" who no longer believe with Mr. Justice Holmes that the test of truth is in the marketplace.

On the "menace list" put out by COPE are Carl McIntire's Twentieth Century Reformation Hour (530 stations); H. L. Hunt's Life Lines (324 stations); the Manion Forum (313 stations); Billy James Hargis (200 stations); Howard Kershner (148 stations); and Dan Smoot (133 stations). Since your servant finds the telephone a far more useful instrument than radio or television in the assembling of information, he cannot say that he has followed even a tenth part of everything broadcast by the stations which so displease COPE. But the blanket condemnation of "right-ist" programs works a great injustice against particular broadcasts or quotations from broadcasts that have happened to come this columnist's way.

For example, COPE indiscriminately condemns H. L. Hunt's Life Lines. Now, H. L. Hunt is an oil tycoon who happens to be a multi-millionaire, and for all I know, he may not love labor unions. I don't know Mr. Hunt personally, but I seem to be on his mailing list for at least some of the material that COPE describes as "propaganda." Checking back through some of Mr. Hunt's releases, I find a number of them which deplore the spread of anti-Semitism in Soviet Russia. The wholly commendable activity of Mr. Hunt in combatting race prejudice ought to merit praise from COPE instead of a sniffish enmity.

Then there is the Manion Forum. Not so long ago Captain Eddie Rickenbacker used his opportunity as a Manion Forum guest to ask a most vital question, "Are We Pledged to Protect Communism in Cuba?" How does COPE answer this question? The AFL's George Meany certainly doesn't want to protect Communism in his own unions. As for Walter Reuther, he rose to power in the United Automobile Workers and in the CIO by making relentless warfare on labor leaders who were suspected of Communist ties. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker happens to think the Communists are just as dangerous to U.S. interests in the western hemisphere as they are to the cause of free American labor. If the AFL-CIO has the right to speak out against the internal Communist menace as it affects the labor movement, why shouldn't Captain Eddie Rickenbacker have a similar right to air his views on anti-Communist foreign policy over the Manion Forum's wave length?

This columnist has never listened to Howard Kershner's air programs. But he has often read Dr. Kershner's publication, "Christian Economics." The article in this publication are based on the eminently respectable Christian doctrine that good and evil have no meaning if men are not free to make their own choices. The AFL-CIO might wish to argue against any hard-and-fast application of this doctrine in the field of labor relations. But is that any justification for trying to force Dr. Kershner off the air?

This columnist disagrees with certain right-wing crusades, such as the one designed to bring about the impeachment of Chief Justice Earl Warren. When a man has been nominated and confirmed as a judge, the nation must bear with him as long as he practices common honesty in reaching his decisions. But this does not mean that the Warren Court is not subject to criticism in a free country, or that radio stations shouldn't broadcast such criticism when it exists.

So fie upon COPE's blanket-condemnatory map. We'll stick to that old-fashioned liberal, Voltaire, who thought that all voices have a right to be heard. Or to Mr. Justice Holmes, who spent a lifetime dissenting from the majority view.

THE WELL CHILD

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

As a boy reaches the age of 12 to 15, he may undergo an enlargement of the breasts. This is caused by the changes in hormone secretions associated with puberty. In some boys, the breasts may even be slightly sore when this enlargement first occurs. The enlargement usually lasts from a few months to two years and then subsides. If this is understood and proper reassurance is given selfconsciousness or embarrassment can be minimized.

In extreme instances, some form of treatment may be advisable. Male hormones have been tried, but without success. The only satisfactory treatment is surgical removal. If this is done, it should be performed by a plastic surgeon who will restore the normal contours, and leave an inconspicuous scar.

If the enlargement persists past age 18 or has its onset between ages 18 and 20, a tumor of one of the glands of internal secretion should be suspected. In this case, a biopsy specimen of the breast should be examined and other tests made to determine the cause. If a tumor is found, it should be removed without delay.

Q—My daughter, 16 months old, hasn't many teeth and can't chew meat. She won't eat baby food, so I've been giving her plenty of eggs. Could you suggest some meats she could chew or some substitute for meat?

A—It is most unusual for a baby not to accept the specially prepared baby foods that consist of meat or mixed meat and vegetables. Have you given up too easily? You may, however, give a 16-month-old baby finely ground round steak cooked without seasoning and without being made into patties.

What would cause my 10-year-old daughter to have a large amount of very long black hair on her arms and legs? Should she be allowed to shave her arms and legs? Does she have too many male hormones? She is very self-conscious about her hairiness.

A—Excessive hair on the arms and legs is usually inherited from one or both parents. Hair growth is controlled by the glands of internal secretion. Shaving will do no harm, but it will not solve the problem permanently.

STATISTICS ON ROMANCE

Now is the time for all smart girls to come to the aid of themselves, for things are likely to get a bit more competitive over the next couple of years.

Reason is that girls generally marry before they are 20, while most boys marry between 22 and 23. This means that girls born in the postwar baby-boom years of 1946 to 1949 will be looking for prospective bridegrooms among the young men born in the leaner war years of 1942-45.

According to statisticians at the University of Dayton, by 1966 girls in the one category will outnumber eligible men in the other category by 364,764. In 1967 it will be a little better, with a surplus of only 316,629 girls.

Remember, the next Leap Year won't be until 1968.

"I'd Look Positively Silly"

Washington News

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Short, paunchy Co. L. Vallerino is commandant of the Panama National Guard, the country's combined army and police.

When called into action, Col. Vallerino's troops did a rapid and efficient job of quelling the rioters and helping bring peace and order.

The story was different in the big anti-U. S. riots in Panama just over four years ago. Then, the Panamanians were unable to curb the disturbances. U. S. troops had to do the job.

American experts say it was because in 1959 Col. Vallerino just didn't care.

BEHIND THIS difference there's a story of little things.

It's a story of a Capt. Angel Arauz of the Panama National Guard being asked by the U. S. Army to be sports liaison officer. This seems like a trivial thing, but the captain loved it.

The captain is now Major Arauz, commander of the Palace Guard. His influence was important in getting action on putting down the riots.

Then there's Col. Vallerino himself. He was invited to study at the U. S. Army School of the Americas and graduated with honor. This gives him considerable prestige. The Army organized special courses to train his key officers and men. His military police were invited to co-patrol with Americans in some trouble spots. His troops were provided military equipment and sports supplies.

By Latin standards, the colonel's outfit became a spit-and-polish unit with pride, discipline and ability. That showed up in the riot control.

Col. Vallerino is a good man to have on our side. He's apparently afraid of nothing.

The Arias family, most powerful in Panama, has been out to oust him because he dared jail one of the Arias boys, first for a revolutionary attempt and second for smuggling. But they haven't been able to touch him.

THE CASE OF Maj. Arauz and Col. Vallerino are typical of the seemingly small but very real individual gains the U. S. military and foreign service groups have made in Panama since the 1959 riots.

The 1964 riots make it clear, however, that some major problems are still unsolved:

PROBLEM 1—The four-headed jumble of U.S. authority in the zone—the U.S. governor who reports to the Army, the commanding general of the U.S. Southern Command who reports to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the ambassador who reports to Secretary of State Rusk, and some U.S. congressmen who step in directly in various Canal Zone affairs.

Suggested solution: one top man.

PROBLEM 2 — The vested-interest second and third generation group of zone employes who State and Defense Department private reports say have taken on the attitude of French colonialists in Algiers and of the British Colonel Blimps in the old Indian Empire.

Solutions suggested by Army and zone "veterans": Rotate zone employes periodically as is done with U.S. diplomats and military men, and give more qualified Panamanians access to professional jobs in the zone.

SOME U.S. EXPERTS believe it will also be necessary to adjust the wages of Panamanian zone employes, raise U.S. Canal Zone payments to Panama, expand aid for low-cost Panamanian housing, help establish more local small industry.

But with all that, State and Defense Department specialists say the basic cause of the anti-U.S. riots in Panama may be something the U.S. can't solve itself.

That is, they say, you have a country, Panama, with some very rich and many very poor. In the center of that country you have, in the Canal Zone, an "island of good living" inhabited by "foreigners" (Americans) whose "wealth" apparently comes from the Panama Canal.

The envy and resentment will not be wiped out, these experts think, until the poor raise themselves and Panama builds a strong, steady middle class.

The Alliance for Progress started out with the idea of encouraging just this. It obviously has not succeeded. Key State and Defense Dept. men now say the Panamanians must accomplish the job themselves if it's to be done.

Today in World Affairs

Aim of De Gaulle of France, Red China and the U. S.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—President de Gaulle of France may not fully realize what he is doing, but he is about to take a step which could result in the first serious estrangement between France and the United States in more than a century. For the Paris government is soon to recognize Communist China. This is in utter disregard of the position of the United States and of the principles which have caused the government here during more than a decade to refuse to enter into diplomatic relations with Red China.

The prospective action of France, will, in effect, tell the world that aggression — which has been specifically denounced in the basic principles of the United Nations Charter — now gets a peculiar kind of reward.

The State Department here only a week ago said that French recognition of China would "not be a service" to the United States or to the Atlantic Alliance and would enhance China's ability to promote its goal of imposing communism in other countries by any means at hand. The Soviet Union, despite its so-called "split" with Red China, has just indicated it will welcome French recognition of the Peiping regime.

The U. S. has befriended France time after time and has come to its rescue in two world wars in this century by sending millions of troops 3,000 miles across the ocean. Many American lives have been sacrificed to repel aggression against France. The U. S. has provided the French people with about $10 billion in economic and military aid since World War II and has given moral support also for the maintenance of solidarity as against potential Communist aggression in Europe.

If there were involved only the fact that the Communist Chinese actually exercise control over a vast territory of the mainland of Asia, there would be less opposition here to diplomatic recognition of the Red China government. But the Communist Chinese made war on the UN troops in Korea from 1950 to 1953, defying the organization which had been set up by the governments of the world to maintain peace.

What President de Gaulle now is saying, in effect, is that, no matter what an aggressor nation does, it can get from the French government full diplomatic recognition. This is an encouragement of aggressor states and a disregard of the proponents of moral force, who have felt that the way to secure peace is not by military action but by a concerted world opinion—the support of peoples who favor free governments and a free society.

But President de Gaulle sweeps all this aside and extends his hand to the Red Chinese as if they had committed no crime in world affairs and as if they were eligible to be an ally of France.

The new development has been under discussion in diplomatic circles here for several weeks. The U. S. has endeavored to persuade the French government not to recognize Red China, particularly since the UN itself has refused to accept Red China into its membership. But evidently there are materialistic interests in France that want to trade with Communist China. Apparently the French are also seeking some sort of new influence in Southeast Asia, where the next development to bring about the "reunification" of what used to be known as French Indo-China, but which now is divided into North and South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

The objective of the Red Chinese, of course, is to control Southeast Asia, and they will welcome French policy as assisting them in paralyzing the influence of the U. S. in that area. Once this is done, a Communist takeover is simplified.

It has often been said of Gen. de Galle that he is a nationalist at heart and looks after the interests of his own country. But, in a world of turmoil, no nation can afford to disregard its most powerful ally. The best explanation of Gen. de Gaulle's current move is that he believes the people of the U. S. will be indifferent and that this country will continue to do everything it has been doing in the past to assist France. But public opinion can be volatile and for France to fly in the face of the record of aggression by the Red Chinese is to arouse resentment in America.

It has been argued that Great Britain has also recognized the Peiping government. But those who make that point forget that the British had recognized Red China early in 1950—before the Red Chinese aggression in Korea.

The American people have always been friendly to France. But a coolness will undoubtedly arise when it is formally announced that the French government has turned its back on the U. S. and has embraced the Red Chinese rulers who are responsible for the killing and wounding of more than 135,000 Americans in Korea.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

In case you are planning to run for President, there are a few ground rules which you should understand. These are basic:

Do not enter any state primaries, unless you are a guaranteed winner. This is an obstacle course and, unless you have lots of money and wind, you may lose your shirt (See Humphrey, Hubert). A pledged delegation is good for only one ballot at the convention and you know, Buster, that you cannot make it in one. (See Johnson, Lyndon B. 1960).

Get your personal house in order now. If your son drives fast girls in fast cars, if your wife bets on canasta and horses, if you must have a little old drinkee before breakfast, if you share separate bedrooms, close ranks and stop all nefarious activity until Jan. 21, 1965. If there are bona fide nuts in your family, secure all hospital records and burn at once. If you have ever been in jail yourself, get a judge to paint you as a martyr.

Get a hack to write your biography. Pay him because in that way you maintain a lien on his typewriter. Have an assistant help him dig up all the homey material—the unpainted shack in which you were born; the little schoolhouse where you first printed your name on a slate; the teacher who predicted that you would someday be President of the United States; your poor old mother's struggle to keep the children fed. If your mother was rich, tell about her deep religious feelings and her charity.

Make speeches, lots of speeches. Don'tbe specific about anything, because anything specific is bound to alienate at least one wing of your party and give ammunition to the opposition. Tell your speech writer that you want to sound like a statesman: (1) Condemn Russia but you are willing to extend the hand of peace; (2) You will clean up the Cuban mess, but don't mention how; (3)You will keep the nation mighty in defense, but will cut spending and give a tax break to the poor and the corporations.

You are unalterable in favor of civil rights. It isn't necessary to state which side. You are aware of the great heritage of the Negro, and you aim to see that he gets what's coming to him. (This goes over big in North and South.) Have yourself photographed saying hello to a prominent Catholic, preferably a Cardinal. Speak lovingly of our Jewish brethren, and send a peace telegram to Nasser. Go to church regularly (Baptist is the biggest Protestant denomination) and conclude all speeches with a reference to God.

Do not permit yourself to be drawn into television debates by a candidate who can think on his feet. He represents the worst kind. Decline the invitation by stating that you have made your position clear on all issues, and you wish your opponent would do the same. Your best bet on television is to do a guest shot on the Jack Parr program. It might have elected Nixon, except that the Kennedys got on too.

You must hammer something. If you are a Republican, hammer the do-nothing 88th congress. If you are a Democrat, hammer the obstrucationist tactics of Ev and Charlie in the 88th Congress. Whether you are Democrat or Republican, take a shot at Krushchev. Try not to take the same shot as your opponent.

Be human. Be a plain man. Get a dog. Be a duffer at golf, a loser at bridge, require assistance to get on a horse. Wear a Robert Hall suit with the label showing. Put your arm around your wife. Quote from the bible— preferably Old Testament. Smile. Put on a miner's hat and go down a shaft. Join an Indian tribe. Spurn the extreme left wing and the extreme right wing without mentioning them by organizations.

Talk about a new summit. Recite nice things about Kosciusko, Garabaldi, the Pope, George Washington Carver and Ireland's Easter Rebellion. Be an implacable enemy of the "drop-out." Oppose the four-day week and feather-bedding. Walk a tight wire by saying that you favor unions but oppose crooked union leaders. Make certain that your scotch is served in a glass of milk.

Listen to your advisers, and ignore their opinions. Use phrases like "the hustings," "groundswell," "grass roots." (See Hoover, Herbert 1932). When you speak, address the people as "You and I know . . .". They don't, but you'll make them think they do.

Items to be mentioned, but not explored deeply: NATO, the United Nations, Spain, Common Market, Surplus Commodities, budget deficit, debt ceiling, Orval Faubus, sit-ins, slums, crowded classrooms, desegregation, offshore oil, etc. It is sufficient if, after mentioning each of these, you put on a wise look and say: "You and I and all of us know how we stand on that question."

If, in spite of all this, you should lose, for goodness sake don't burst into tears . . .

U.S. Military Activities in the Canal Zone

CANAL ZONE'S MILITARY IMPORTANCE — The U.S. Southern Command—a unified Army-Navy-Air Force operation of 10,000 men—is the top headquarters in the Canal Zone and directs U.S. military activities in 18 Latin-American countries and U.S. participation in hemispheric defense efforts. The Army's School of the Americas and the Air Force's School for Latin America are military training schools which have graduated more than 19,000 Latin-Americans since 1949. Also located in the zone are the Inter-American Police Academy, an Alliance for Progress project for training Latin-American police officers and the Army's Inter-American Geodetic Survey.

$1M to 23 Cents

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A 17-year-old boy has a bill for $1,111,112.36 because a machine apparently made a mistake.

Ronald A. Guy received a bank notice Friday which said he had an income of more than $1 million from stock dividends last year. Ronald owns a single share of a stock which currently sells for approximately $65 a share.

He received a total of 23 cents from the stock during 1963. However, according to the corporation's records, the youth received the million - plus income.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Winton F. Guy, of nearby North Chili, said they would wait and see what, if anything the Internal Revenue Service would do before they took any action.

Fur, Not Feathers

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A student in James O. Martin's eighth grade science class caught a baby rabbit and brought it to school.

After the class had examined it, Martin took it home for his children. For want of a better place, they kept it in a bird cage.

A neighbor's child, age 6, wandered in one day and was intrigued by the furry creature. The child walked around the cage several times, peering intently at the rabbit.

Finally he said, "Mrs. Martin, are you absolutely sure that's a bird?"

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — "Art washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life," said Picasso.

Art critic Aline Saarinen Sunday night used the quotation to explain what paintings mean to five private citizens on a warm, rich NBC special program called "the art of collecting."

With the knowledgeable Mrs. Saarinen as guide, the cameras showed us some of the old masters in the fabulous collection owned by a New York financier, the varied collection — ranging from dolls to textiles—of a New Mexico architect, the mixture of old masters and moderns assembled by a Los Angeles businessman, and the modern paintings and sculpture owned by the governor of New York.

We saw a king's ransom in Rembrandts, El Grecos, Matisses, Picassos and Degas. But perhaps the most interesting was the collection of a Seattle airline pilot who simply bought paintings that he liked.

Donnizetti's music is delightful and the NBC Opera Company sang his "Lucia Di Lammermoor" in great style Sunday. The production was great and so were the voices.

But there is one thing to be said in favor of opera when it is sung in a language the listener does not understand. The libretto does not get in the way of music appreciation.

NBC had an English language version of the Italian opera about the Scottish lass. Every single syllable came over as clear as Ethel Merman doing "No Business Like Show Business," and that creaky old plot, a stepchild of "Romeo and Juliet" certainly interfered with the beautiful sounds.

The Bob Hope Christmas show, which turns up on NBC around this time every year, is not much if one is looking for a slick, fast-paced variety show. But year after year it turns out to be a happy heart-warming experience for millions.

Friday night's 90-minute special was a patchwork of film shot during the holiday trip Hope and his troupe made to Greece, Turkey and Italy among other stops, to entertain servicemen in our military outposts.

The real stars of the program were the servicemen — mostly youngsters — in the audience. They roared at Hope's wisecracks about the brass, the food the recreation and transportation.

Recommended tonight: "East Side, West Side," CBS, 10-11 (EST) — the usually serious-minded show tries a light-hearted theme, beatniks vs. conservative politicians.

Life Insurance Queries Answered

As a public service in cooperation with the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the following questions and answers on life insurance are presented. Queries may be sent to American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, 270 Bryn Mawr Avenue, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Question:—Some friends boasted to me that the wife was insured for $25,000, the husband for only $15,000. Is this possible? Is it wise? Can a wife be insured for more than her husband?

Answer:—Yes, this is possible and, in many cases fully warranted. The criterion is "need"If the wife's insurance needs add up to more than the husband's, then this case is justified. Usually, however, there must be special circumstances involved to warrant this relative balance of policy amounts. Tax involvements on individualy owned investments or some special family situation, for instance.

A recent case showed a similar balance of policies because the family, with a one-year old infant, agreed that if the husband died in the early years, the wife and child would want to "go home to mother," but if the wife died, the husband wanted to be financially able to "prevent" the mother-in-law from coming in to help out or take over.

Another special circumstance, not uncommon today, is found in the family where the wife is a career woman, possibly earning more than the husband. If they have undertaken heavy commitments, such as an expensive new home based on the dual income, it might be warrantable for her to be insured for more than the husband.

This is one of the striking illustrations of the rapidly changing world—insurance included. Women now own over $100,000,000,000 of life insurance in the United States, and about two-thirds of all women are now insured. And as their "economic net worth" grows, their insurance needs grow. Not only career woman, but also the housewife today is recognized as representing a large "family equity." If she dies, the replacement value of her services to the family may be huge. If there are young children and no substitute "homemaker," an annual need of at least $5,000 or $6,000 is probable until the oldest child can take over—adding up to $50,000 or more if the oldest child is very young. Her death also would cause an income tax increase for the husband.

Survival Exercise For 200 Successful

MARLTON, N.J. (AP) — A survival exercise involving more than 200 persons who spent 25 hours in a concrete bunker has been described as completely successful.

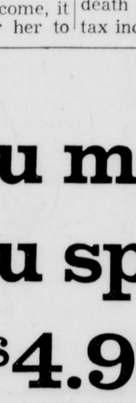

Participants, ranging in age from 14 months to 75 years, emerged Sunday from the 65 by 55 foot bunker, once used as a NIKE missile base. They had three meals of a cupful of water and four biscuits, and slept on cots and the floor.

Three peace demonstrators who infiltrated the bunker to distribute anticivil defense literature remained throughout the exercise. "Once they were in, they had to stay," said Edmond J. Maguiren, Burlington County coordinator of civil defense.

$1M to 23 Cents

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A 17-year-old boy has a bill for $1,111,112.36 because a machine apparently made a mistake.

Ronald A. Guy received a bank notice Friday which said he had an income of more than $1 million from stock dividends last year. Ronald owns a single share of a stock which currently sells for approximately $65 a share.

He received a total of 23 cents from the stock during 1963. However, according to the corporation's records, the youth received the million - plus income.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Winton F. Guy, of nearby North Chili, said they would wait and see what, if anything the Internal Revenue Service would do before they took any action.

Fur, Not Feathers

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A student in James O. Martin's eighth grade science class caught a baby rabbit and brought it to school.

After the class had examined it, Martin took it home for his children. For want of a better place, they kept it in a bird cage.

A neighbor's child, age 6, wandered in one day and was intrigued by the furry creature. The child walked around the cage several times, peering intently at the rabbit.

Finally he said, "Mrs. Martin, are you absolutely sure that's a bird?"

NEW YORK (AP) — "Art washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life," said Picasso.

Art critic Aline Saarinen Sunday night used the quotation to explain what paintings mean to five private citizens on a warm, rich NBC special program called "the art of collecting."

With the knowledgeable Mrs. Saarinen as guide, the cameras showed us some of the old masters in the fabulous collection owned by a New York financier, the varied collection — ranging from dolls to textiles—of a New Mexico architect, the mixture of old masters and moderns assembled by a Los Angeles businessman, and the modern paintings and sculpture owned by the governor of New York.

We saw a king's ransom in Rembrandts, El Grecos, Matisses, Picassos and Degas. But perhaps the most interesting was the collection of a Seattle airline pilot who simply bought paintings that he liked.

Donnizetti's music is delightful and the NBC Opera Company sang his "Lucia Di Lammermoor" in great style Sunday. The production was great and so were the voices.

But there is one thing to be said in favor of opera when it is sung in a language the listener does not understand. The libretto does not get in the way of music appreciation.

NBC had an English language version of the Italian opera about the Scottish lass. Every single syllable came over as clear as Ethel Merman doing "No Business Like Show Business," and that creaky old plot, a stepchild of "Romeo and Juliet" certainly interfered with the beautiful sounds.

The Bob Hope Christmas show, which turns up on NBC around this time every year, is not much if one is looking for a slick, fast-paced variety show. But year after year it turns out to be a happy heart-warming experience for millions.

Friday night's 90-minute special was a patchwork of film shot during the holiday trip Hope and his troupe made to Greece, Turkey and Italy among other stops, to entertain servicemen in our military outposts.

The real stars of the program were the servicemen — mostly youngsters — in the audience. They roared at Hope's wisecracks about the brass, the food the recreation and transportation.

Recommended tonight: "East Side, West Side," CBS, 10-11 (EST) — the usually serious-minded show tries a light-hearted theme, beatniks vs. conservative politicians.

Life Insurance Queries Answered

As a public service in cooperation with the Eastern New York Chapter of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the following questions and answers on life insurance are presented. Queries may be sent to American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, 270 Bryn Mawr Avenue, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Question:—Some friends boasted to me that the wife was insured for $25,000, the husband for only $15,000. Is this possible? Is it wise? Can a wife be insured for more than her husband?

Answer:—Yes, this is possible and, in many cases fully warranted. The criterion is "need"If the wife's insurance needs add up to more than the husband's, then this case is justified. Usually, however, there must be special circumstances involved to warrant this relative balance of policy amounts. Tax involvements on individualy owned investments or some special family situation, for instance.

A recent case showed a similar balance of policies because the family, with a one-year old infant, agreed that if the husband died in the early years, the wife and child would want to "go home to mother," but if the wife died, the husband wanted to be financially able to "prevent" the mother-in-law from coming in to help out or take over.

Another special circumstance, not uncommon today, is found in the family where the wife is a career woman, possibly earning more than the husband. If they have undertaken heavy commitments, such as an expensive new home based on the dual income, it might be warrantable for her to be insured for more than the husband.

This is one of the striking illustrations of the rapidly changing world—insurance included. Women now own over $100,000,000,000 of life insurance in the United States, and about two-thirds of all women are now insured. And as their "economic net worth" grows, their insurance needs grow. Not only career woman, but also the housewife today is recognized as representing a large "family equity." If she dies, the replacement value of her services to the family may be huge. If there are young children and no substitute "homemaker," an annual need of at least $5,000 or $6,000 is probable until the oldest child can take over—adding up to $50,000 or more if the oldest child is very young. Her death also would cause an income tax increase for the husband.

Survival Exercise For 200 Successful

MARLTON, N.J. (AP) — A survival exercise involving more than 200 persons who spent 25 hours in a concrete bunker has been described as completely successful.

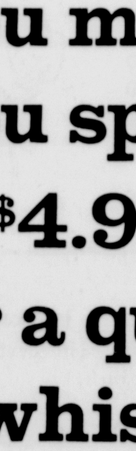

Participants, ranging in age from 14 months to 75 years, emerged Sunday from the 65 by 55 foot bunker, once used as a NIKE missile base. They had three meals of a cupful of water and four biscuits, and slept on cots and the floor.

Three peace demonstrators who infiltrated the bunker to distribute anticivil defense literature remained throughout the exercise. "Once they were in, they had to stay," said Edmond J. Maguiren, Burlington County coordinator of civil defense.

Ambulance Driver Faces Charge in Abortion Attempt

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — An ambulance-driver is accused of first-degree manslaughter in the death of a 19-year-old student nurse who, a coroner says, died as the result of an attempted abortion.

Police Sunday arrested Benjamin Harris, 31, of Syracuse, and charged him in the death of Miss Madeline McClintock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. McClintock of Scarsdale.

Dr. Martin F. Helfinger Jr., Onondaga County medical examiner, said the girl died from a pulmonary air embolism resulting from an attempted abortion.

Police said the attempted abortion took place in Harris' apartment.

Miss McClintock was a sophomore at the Syracuse University School of Nursing.

Harris is an employe of Eastern Ambulance Service, police said.

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

Federal Property: The federal government is worth more money than it owes, a congressional committee says.

In its annual report, the House Committee on 'government Operations reported Sunday that the government owned $315 billion worth of land and property around the world as of June 30.

This is $9 billion more than the federal debt was then. And the committee thinks the $315 billion figure is a conservative one.

For example, the 18 acres of White House grounds was listed on the federal books as worth $1,000.

Although the committee did not explain why the White House grounds were valued so low, it noted that most government property is valued at its original cost.

Boyd: President Johnson has given Alan S. Boyd a new one-year term as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Boyd has been under fire from some New England congressmen for his vote against allowing Northeast Airlines to continue on the New York-Miami run. Boyd cast the decisive vote in the case.

Reports that House Speaker John W. McCormack had protested to the President against renaming Boyd were described as untrue Saturday by Andrew T Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary.

Robert T. Murphy was named by Johnson to a new one-year term as vice chairman of the CAB.

Boyd and Murphy have been chairman and vice chairman since 1961.

Lynda Bird: Lynda Bird Johnson, 19-year-old daughter of President and Mrs. Johnson, has enrolled for the spring term at the capital's George Washington University.

Lynda's roommate at the University of Texas, Warrie Lynn Smith, is transferring to George Washington and at the Johnsons' invitation will live at the White House.

The girls, who are second term sophomores, will begin classes at George Wahington Feb. 3. Lynda is a history major.

Johnson-TV: President Johnson says the television industry acted swiftly, surely and in good taste in its coverage of the news surrounding President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

In a statement published in the current issue of TV Guide magazine, the President said:

"I take this opportunity to add my voice to those who already have recognized television's historic contribution."

Central Schools Find $600 Yearly Average Difficult

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 85 per cent of the central schools — generally located in rural and semi - rural areas— cannot meet the average per-pupil expenditure of $600 annually, says a statewide educational group.

The statement was made Sunday by the New York State Central School Boards Committee for Educational Research. Commonly known as the Central School Study (CSS), it is a unit of the State School Boards Association. The CSS represents 360 central school districts serving about 800,000 children.

The CSS said many central school districts could raise their spending level if state aid were based on current operating budgets rather than on the previous year's expenditures as now required.

The committee also called for raising the current $500-per pupil maximum state allowance for local operating expenses.

No Real Basic Changes Made From Time JFK Took Office

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is three years today since President John F. Kennedy took office. It is almost two months since he died. Nothing basic has changed in the three years or two months. But there have been changes.

Kennedy had no illusions about the future. In his inaugural talk on that cold, bright, windy Jan. 20, 1961 he said the problems facing the nation might not be solved "in our lifetime."

Few were solved in his. Yet, he gave the country a sense of life, of youth, of bustle, which it needed. And he gave it a sense of hope, vague as it might have been. If he had lived, the record might have been shining.

Relations with an old foe, the Soviet Union are better; with an old friend, France, worse. The economy is in far better shape. But racial tensions increased until possible explosions lie below the surface of American life.

Militarily, Americans feel far more able to cope with an enemy. But the Atlantic alliance is no stronger. And any hope Kennedy had of a miracle in relations with Latin America was not realized.

Remain Unfinished

The four biggest domestic programs of Kennedy's presidency —federal aid to education, medical care for the aged, a tax cut, and a strong civil rights bill—were all unfinished business when he died.

He might have made progress on some of them this year, or later if he had been re-elected, which he almost certainly would have been had he lived.

Right there, in the American attitude toward him, came the most obvious change in all his presidency. In the 1960 election he had barely squeezed into the White House.

But at the time of his death Kennedy was so enormously popular at home and abroad, as the universal grief at his death showed, there could have been little doubt about his success if he ran again.

Russia Big Change

In the long run the most significant change may have been in the attitude of the Soviet Union. Kennedy must get great credit for that, but not all. Two other factors were Red China and the depressed Russian economy.

The Russians are still an antagonist. But in the strange chemistry of history they may have undergone a shift in thinking which is not yet fully apparent but may turn out to be profound.

When Kennedy took office Premier Khrushchev was still seething at President Dwight D. Eisenhower, although this may have been an act he felt he had to put on, because of the American plane shot down over the Soviet Union in 1960.

Khrushchev's Mistake

Khrushchev must have mistaken Kennedy for a boy on a man's errand. He pushed his luck. His luck ran out. He threw up the Berlin wall. Kennedy instantly enlarged the American forces.

Khrushchev broke a voluntary nuclear test ban and resumed testing. Kennedy did the same. Khrushchev then tried his biggest push, putting missiles in Cuba. Kennedy forced him to back down. Khrushchev changed.

He signed a nuclear test-ban treaty. His attitude changed. He became more friendly. It was Kennedy who made this possible by refraining from belligerency. This was one of his great achievements.

Other Forces Figure

But other forces were working to take some of the belligerency out of Khrushchev's attitude toward the West: His economy was in trouble, he needed wheat; and Soviet-Red Chinese relations crashed. In Kennedy's short presidency the Soviet Union definitely lost dominion over the Communist world.

French President Charles de Gaulle became increasingly troublesome and obstinate but no doubt he would have been that way with any president, as he just showed. With President Johnson in the White House, De Gaulle is now going to recognize Red China, which this country had hoped he wouldn't.

Kennedy clearly adopted Eisenhower's placid and very often ineffectual technique of trying to avoid disputes at home, particularly with Congress. As a result, Kennedy fought far less fiercely for his programs than he might have. As a result, Congress treated him pretty coolly.

Some of last year's racial explosions might have been avoided if Kennedy had done more fighting with Congress, specifically if he had proposed and insisted upon a strong civil rights program.

Instead, it was the explosions themselves that forced him into offering such a program. Now it's Johnson's baby. It remains to be seen how hard he'll fight for it.

6-Year Car Plate Estimated to Save State $100,000

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A six-year automobile license plate has been proposed by State Sen. William T. Conklin, chairman of the Joint Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee on Motor Vehicles.

The Brooklyn Republican said Sunday night his plan would save the state $100,000 annually. An unremovable plastic sticker would validate the plate yearly.

Conklin also said elimination of the metal tabs now used to validate plates for the second year would save the state $500,000.

Other recommendations he said would be submitted to the Legislature include ending the practice of carrying over a driver's convictions to his new license and eliminating free automobile registration for public authorities and commissions.

Your Income Tax: First of Five Articles

Changes, Other Vital Points Given In Making Out Tax Return for 1963

EDITOR'S NOTE—There are some important changes in the method for filing your tax return on 1963 income. Here, in the first of five special articles, is a rundown of changes and a report on other principal points you should keep in mind.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

Main points in filing your tax return on 1963 income: Deadline—midnight, April 15.

Income—Report only the taxable kind; not the non-taxable, like Social Security payments.

Dividends and Interest — Something new has been added. Since Jan. 1, 1963 organizations paying you interest or dividends of $10 or more have had to inform the Internal Revenue Service. So be sure to report yours.

$5 Penalty Without Number

Social Security Number—List yours on your return. There's a $5 penalty for failing to do so.

W-2 Withholding Statements—These receipts for tax withheld from your 1963 pay must be enclosed with your return.

Return Forms—Generally the choice is between form 1040 and 1040A. Anyone can use 1040. But only people with less than $10,000 income can use 1040A and then only if, in that income, there is not more than $200 in dividends or interest and wages from which tax was not withheld.

Refunds—If too much tax was withheld from your income in 1963, you can get a refund but only by filing a return.

Something new has been added here. Now you can ask for your refund in U.S. Savings Bonds. Or, as in the past you can get it in cash or have it credited to your estimated tax on 1964 income.

Who must file a return? You must, whether or not you owe tax, if:

Those Who Must File

1. You were under 65—this includes children — and had income of $600 or more.

2. You were 65 on or before Jan. 1, 1964 and had income of $1,200 or more.

If you were self-employed you must file a return and pay a Social Security tax of 5.4 per cent on your net income from $400 to $4,800. The net is what's left after deducting business expenses.

Note: This self-employment tax is in addition to the regular income tax you pay, like everyone else.

Even if you're 65 or older, but are self-employed, you must pay the 5.4 per cent Social Security tax on your $400-to-$4,800 income although you may be receiving Social Security payments.

Since there are limits on how much income a person over 65 can earn and still draw Social Security payments, be sure you understand them.

There are two big helps in making out your return—the instruction sheet and the booklet:

1. IRS sends every taxpayer an instruction sheet with the tax-rates, tax-tables, and answers to questions.

2. For more detailed information than you find in this series or the instruction sheet, get "Your Federal Income Tax" from the nearest IRS office. It's a 144-page booklet, costs 40 cents, and is very good.

Claim All You Can

Deductions—Claim all you can to reduce your income before what's left is taxable. Examples: State income taxes, house mortgage interest, state gasoline taxes, charitable contributions.

Everyone, without the need to itemize his deductions or prove he had them, gets a standard deduction of 10 per cent of his income up to a limit of $1,000 for non-business expenses. Example: Charitable contributions medical bills, interest on the house mortgage.

If your expenses were higher than the standard allows for, then itemize them and claim them in full.

Note this: When married couples file separate returns each is allowed a standard deduction of no more than $500 each.

Some examples of taxable income which must be reported:

Wages, salaries, tips, bonuses, commissions, rents, profits from a business, profession or farm; interest on savings accounts, stock dividends, dividends (which are really interest) from savings and loan association, profits from the sale or exchange of property, gambling winnings, severance pay, generally strike benefits paid by unions, income from estates and trusts, prizes for which you did something to win.

Some examples of non-taxable income which doesn't have to be reported:

Federal Social Security benefits; veterans benefits from the Veterans Administration to veterans and their families, interest on state and municipal bonds, subsistence and rental allowance to members of the armed forces, public assistance payments to the blind, gifts in money or anything of value for which you performed no service, unemployment compensation paid by a state, although supplemental employment benefits from a company-financed supplemental employment fund are taxable.

Next: Which tax return form to use.

Include the relish with the meat! Add a couple of tablespoons (or more) of sweet pickle relish to a pound of ground beef for hamburgers.

Pontifical Requiem for Late President

Kennedy Eulogized as Having Greatness to Illumine Ages

BOSTON (AP) — The late President John F. Kennedy was eulogized in a pontifical solemn Requiem Mass Sunday as having a greatness "which will illumine the ages."

The Mass was sung by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston. Mozart's "Requiem in D-Minor" was performed in conjunction with the Mass by the Boston Symphony and a 180-voice choir.

"It was magnificent," the President's widow told Cardinal Cushing. "I'll never forget it."

Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, also was among the 1,800 invited guests at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston.

A number of Protestant ministers and Jewish rabbis attended.

Cardinal Cushing compared Kennedy and Mozart, the Austrian composer who died of typhus at the age of 35 as he was writing the moving "Requiem."

"The genius of art and the genius of leadership are joined together in this single event," the cardinal said.

"Separated by centuries, these two men were touched by a creative instinct uncommon in any generation; both thought out of their youth a shining light which will illumine the ages; both were summoned to eternity at a moment which to mortals must seem untimely."

Mrs. Kennedy, seated in the front pew with her mother-in-law and the President's youngest brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and his wife, occasionally wiped a tear during the two-hour service.

Behind her were Francis McDermott, chief of the Boston office of the Secret Service, and Mrs. Sargent Shriver, the late President's sister.

"No tribute...to our beloved President and his charming wife could be more appropriate than the spiritual, artistic and liturgical service of this morning," Cardinal Cushing said.

"No prayer to the memory of that scholarly, dedicated leader and to the cultural background of his bereaved wife and loved ones could be more fitting."

Mrs. Kennedy kept her eyes on the altar and the cardinal most of the time. The first tears slipped down her cheeks as the chorus sang the benediction—"Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

After the Mass, Cardinal Cushing escorted her into the sanctuary to meet Erich Leinsdorf, conductor of the symphony.

Leinsdorf had selected Mozart's "Requiem" for the Mass as "the unfinished work of a genius dedicated to the unfinished work of another genius."

Seek Legislation For $200 Million HighwayBondBill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Construction workers are asking Gov. Rockefeller and the Legislature to raise $200 million for road building by selling bonds approved by the voters in 1956.

Gov. Rockefeller had said he would not issue bonds to obtain finances.

The workers' request was made Sunday at the New York State Conference of Operating Engineers, legislative session of the state's International Union of Operating Engineers.

Union leaders said the 40,000 members would face rising unemployment if there were not more road building.

Union Secretary Daniel R. McGraw Jr. said, "Unemployment for us this year will be higher than for any year in the last 10."

Completion of access roads to the New York World's Fair will be a big factor in the increase in unemployment, he said.

The State County Highway Superintendents Association also has proposed that bonds be sold to raise highway appropriations.

Courtroom Under

president of the Teamsters Local in Nashville.

The trial originally was scheduled for Nashville, but was shifted to Chattanooga because of publicity given the case in the Tennessee capital city.

Hoffa, 50-year-old head of the nation's largest labor union, arrived by plane Sunday night, jovial as a politician running for re-election and elated at his airport reception.

This is Hoffa's fifth federal court trial since 1957. He has been acquitted twice and the other two trials ended in hung juries.

In the Nashville case, which lasted nine weeks, Hoffa was accused of conspiring to violate the Taft-Hartley Act by taking an alleged $1 million kickback from a Michigan trucking firm in exchange for labor peace.

Hold Aluminum Price

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Aluminum Co. of America announced today it would maintain its price of aluminum ingot at 23 cents a pound.

Alcoa is the nation's No. 1 aluminum producer, and the action immediately raised the question of whether other producers would rescind one-cent a pound increases announced last week.

They include Reynolds, Kaiser, Consolidated Aluminum and Aluminium Ltd. Aluminium, a Canadian firm, announced the new price would affect its ingot sales only in the United States.

Ruby in Court to Seek Bail As He Faces Murder of Oswald

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Ruby returned to court under tight security guard today to seek release on bond while awaiting trial on a charge of murdering Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

"I feel wonderful," said the 53-year-old night club operator while photographers were being permitted to make pictures before the proceedings opened.

How long the hearing will last will depend on whether State Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown agrees to a defense request to present evidence it says will prove Oswald the assassin of President Kennedy and the slayer of police officer J. D. Tippit.

If the judge rules that it is pertinent to the issue of whether Ruby should be released on bond, the hearing could last a week since chief defense Atty. Melvin Belli has subpoenaed nearly two dozen witnesses. If the request is denied, the hearing could end quicker.

The current bond hearing is a continuation of one started in late December, but recessed because of the Christmas holidays.

Ruby has been held without bond since he shot and killed Oswald before a nationwide television audience Nov. 24 as the accused assassin was being transferred from the city to the county jail.

Oswald's death came less than 48 hours after President Kennedy was assassinated, Gov. John Connally of Texas was wounded, and Tippit was shot to death. Oswald was charged in all three shootings.

In a 30-page petition filed with the court last week, the defense said that the President's assassination, the wounding of Gov. Connally, and the slaying of Tippit "enraged their cline to such an extent that their client was temporarily insane".

"The defense must prove Oswald was the man who assassinated the President and shot officer Tippit," the petition said.

At the December hearing, Ruby's lawyers sought to know that the case was not a capital one since they contended their client was temporarily insane and that bond should be granted.

Ruby's trial has been set for Feb. 3 in Dallas, but at the December hearing Belli told Judge Brown he would seek a change of venue. Belli said that because of news stories published in Dallas, his client could not obtain a fair trial.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved irregularly early this afternoon, with aluminums and cigarette issues weak. Trading was active.

The aluminums trimmed recent gains as word came that Alcoa, the biggest producer, has decided not to go along with Reynolds Metals and other major producers in raising the price of aluminum ingot.

The cigarettes continued to decline, with a week gone by since the report of the U.S. surgeon general's committee on the health hazards involved in cigarette smoking. Cigar manufacturers resumed their rise on balance because of the gentle treatment cigar-smoking received in the report.

Some market hesitation was ascribed to suspense over what President Johnson would say in his economic message to Congress. The President predicted an economic advance if the tax-cut legislation is passed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .7 at 209.7 with industrials up .9, rails up .5 and utilities up .3.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up .53 at 776.22.

As the tobaccos speeded their decline, Liggett & Myers slipped more than a point. Philip Morris and Lorillard fell about a point and American Tobacco a fraction.

Katsbaan Tavern Entered; Liquor And Money Taken

Burglars smashed their way into the Katsbaan Tavern off Route 32, near Katsbaan Corner, Town of Saugerties, sometime during the night and made off with 12 bottles of choice whiskey and the contents of two vending machines.

Mrs. Everett Mertz, who operates the tavern with her husband said she discovered the place had been entered at 7:15 a. m. today. She notified Kingston state police and special town police officers. Mrs. Mertz said the intruders broke a rear window and ripped off boards from the windows of the dining hall which was the scene of a fire last November 15.

Mrs. Mertz reported a door was forced open leading from the dining hall into the tavern. The liquor was taken from the back bar and an undetermined amount of cash was taken from a juke box and shuffle board machine.

BCI Senior Investigator Frank Stainkamp is investigating.

Tool Engineers Elect Officers

Catskill Region Chapter No. 151, American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers, held its annual election of officers at the regular dinner meeting, last week at the Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen.

Candidates were presented by a nominating committee made up of past chairmen of the local chapter, Howard Bertholf, George Berk, John Kelly and Bernard Martin.

Newly elected officers were Victor F. Patience, chairman; Wendell H. Gray, first vice chairman; Alvin V. Parnett, second vice chairman; Horst Bach, third vice chairman; William G. Kaznowski, secretary; and James H. Peterson, treasurer. Retiring chairman Andrew J. Horvath officiated at the election.

The regular meeting was held after the election and guest speaker Warren Mang, manager of Herf Dynapak Division of General Dynamics Corp., presented a lecture on Dynapak—a second generation tool. Mang highlighted his talk with a movie and color slides. Dynapak is a simple tool used to do complex forming operations in a single blow of the ram.

Coffee speaker Ernest Friedli discussed the role of the manufacturing engineer and product designer in accomplishing the many phases of design and engineering necessary to produce a product in time to compete with an ever changing demand.

Pickets Protest

feller had replied to a letter from them and asked why Mayor John J. Schwenk had not.

The letter mainly protested return of a 15-year-old girl to her New York home from here at a time when police were investigating local traffic in narcotics and making arrests. The girl admitted she had run away from home, authorities said.

Held for Return

The protest, it was learned originated with a former Kingston resident, who now lives in New York. He had appeared at a local house, authorities said, when an arrest was being made, and the teenage girl was also there. Those who made the arrest held the girl here only pending her return to New York. She was not under arrest nor was the man who protested in her behalf held on any charge, authorities said.

It is held by the group that procedure in the narcotics was discriminatory. Authorities said they were concerned only with traffic in narcotics and those allegedly involved.

Early Summit

result of his talks with Kennedy.

Some observers believe that the damage the feud is doing to Indonesia's economy and Sukarno's fear that the Philippines will recognize the federation, thus isolating Indonesia, will force him to back down.

Some Western diplomats contend, however, that Sukarno will continue his "crush Malaysia campaign" until the federation collapses or joins the Indonesian orbit. These sources believe Sukarno has gone too far to pull back without a victory.

Meanwhile, in Jakarta, capital of Indonesia, workers moved to seize the property of the Shell Oil Co. and other British firms, but acting president Johannes Leimena called for a halt to all attempts to take over British business interests.

Leimena, in a statement published by the official Antara news agency, pointed out that Sukarno was still abroad. He asked that all people comply with presidential decree isssued following the seizure in September of some British properties. Most of these firms are now operated by government-management teams.

Decision Refused In Baton Rouge Injunction Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court refused today to rule on the question whether Baton Rouge, La., was properly denied an injunction against demonstrations by the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

John Christian, mayor-president of Baton Rouge, appealed to the high tribunal to overturn a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans.

The litigation developed from demonstrations in Baton Rouge on Dec. 15, 1961 by Negro students of Southern University, in Scotlandville, La. They marched to Baton Rouge and after a crowd of Negroes, including the students, gathered in the courthouse area. Police made a number of arrests on charges that traffic was blocked.

The U.S. District Court in Baton Rouge granted the city an injunction to bar breaches of the peace and agitation likely to cause violence. CORE appealed to the Circuit Court and won reversal of the District Court order.

Newburgh Man Is Found Overcome In Car, Revived

A 31-year-old Newburgh man was reported in critical condition today at St. Luke's Hospital, that city, where he is under treatment for carbon monoxide poisoning.

Highland State Troopers John Salters and Robert Whalen were on patrol Saturday night when they saw a man slumped over the steering wheel of a car parked off Route 300 near Wallkill in the Town of Shawangunk.

Troopers were unable to arouse the motorist, and Wallkill firemen were summoned. Firemen and troopers worked about a half hour with a resuscitator and revived the man identified as David James Koechel, of Quaker Street. Newburgh.

Koechel was rushed to St. Luke's Hospital. Troopers said the motor of the car was running when they discovered Koechel unconscious on the front seat.

Reserves Decision In Suit Against State

Decision has been reserved by Supreme Court Justice Russell G. Hunt, Albany, in a $100,000 claim against the state by Walter H. Smith, Rhinebeck, who charges malicious prosecution in a 1958 arrest. Smith, a former special game protector, was charged with impersonating a game protector after he no longer was on duty. A Dutchess county court jury acquitted Smith in 1959.

Forego Current Income To Build Inflation Hedge

Q) "We have $100,000 invested in insured savings and loans and an equal amount in Series H savings bonds. We feel these are the safest investments to provide us with adequate income. However, we fear inflation — which seems to come closer all the time. Will you please recommend some stocks which would be a hedge against inflation?"—M. McD.

A) I will be very glad to do so.

You understand, I hope, that to follow the course you suggest will result in considerable loss of current income.

The only stocks that I consider suitable as a hedge against inflation are those which are growing in earnings, dividends, and price at a rate faster than any possible dollar devaluation. These growth stocks are highly valued by the market and offer a relatively low yield.

You might put $25,000 into equal dollar amounts of Corn Products; Bristol-Myers; Merck & Company; Sears, Roebuck; Texas Utilities. This would give you strong representation in packaged foods; drugs and toiletries; pharmaceuticals; merchandising and electricity.

Q) "Five years ago, I inherited 70 shares of American Airlines convertible preferred stock, and have been disappointed with the performance of the shares until recently. I am confused by the company's earnings pattern over the past ten years. Would you advise switching into another stock at this time?" — R. Y.

A) The earnings pattern for the airlines generally has been one of wide variation rather than growth over the past decade.

During 1963, the airline group moved up consistently and was one of the best acting of all those that I study. I believe further good performance will be seen this year.

The airlines have been showing rising earnings due to increased traffic and debt repayment. American doubled its share earnings last year, according to my estimate, and I look for another good gain in 1964.

Your preferred is convertible into 4.84 shares common and sells right at its conversion value. I believe you are justified in holding for higher prices.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Bus-Car Collision Near New Paltz

Forty persons, including 39 members of the Poughkeepsie Yacht Club on their way home in a chartered bus after attending the National Boat Show in New York City, escaped injury Saturday night in a bus-car collision on Route 299, about a quarter of a mile from the Thruway exit near New Paltz.

Thomas Prendergast, Clintondale, owner of the car, was ejected from his vehicle after the impact. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by the New Paltz Fire Department ambulance.

Highland troopers reported Prendergast suffered a possible skull fracture and a fractured arm and hand.

According to a report of Trooper Wallace Mahan, the bus, owned by the Mt. View Coach Lines and operated by Edward Quick, 48, of 714 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, was traveling north in the South Ohioville Road, when the crash occurred.

The bus was taken to the company's terminal in Highland for inspection. The Yacht Club members were returned to Poughkeepsie in another bus driven by Floyd Mackey, Highland.

Two Are Suspended, Absent for Funeral

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (AP)—Two brothers have been suspended from the Elliot Lake High School for refusing to serve an hour's detention for staying away from school to watch President Kennedy's funeral on television.

The boys are Rainer and Gerhard Warkholdt, 17 and 15. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Warkholdt, said they kept the boys home to watch the Nov. 25 telecast.

School Board Chairman Charles Eaket said the youths would not be allowed to return to school until "they agree to pay their debt to society."

Mr. and Mrs. Warkholdt, who emigrated from Germany in the early 1950s, said they had retained a lawyer to investigate the case.

"I was raised under a dictatorship, with no freedom of speech, thinking or actions," Mrs. Warkholdt told a newsman. "I feel offended by this decision."

Pontifical Requiem for Late President

Kennedy Eulogized as Having Greatness to Illumine Ages

BOSTON (AP) — The late President John F. Kennedy was eulogized in a pontifical solemn Requiem Mass Sunday as having a greatness "which will illumine the ages."

The Mass was sung by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston. Mozart's "Requiem in D-Minor" was performed in conjunction with the Mass by the Boston Symphony and a 180-voice choir.

"It was magnificent," the President's widow told Cardinal Cushing. "I'll never forget it."

Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, also was among the 1,800 invited guests at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in Boston.

A number of Protestant ministers and Jewish rabbis attended.

Cardinal Cushing compared Kennedy and Mozart, the Austrian composer who died of typhus at the age of 35 as he was writing the moving "Requiem."

"The genius of art and the genius of leadership are joined together in this single event," the cardinal said.

"Separated by centuries, these two men were touched by a creative instinct uncommon in any generation; both thought out of their youth a shining light which will illumine the ages; both were summoned to eternity at a moment which to mortals must seem untimely."

Mrs. Kennedy, seated in the front pew with her mother-in-law and the President's youngest brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and his wife, occasionally wiped a tear during the two-hour service.

Behind her were Francis McDermott, chief of the Boston office of the Secret Service, and Mrs. Sargent Shriver, the late President's sister.

"No tribute...to our beloved President and his charming wife could be more appropriate than the spiritual, artistic and liturgical service of this morning," Cardinal Cushing said.

"No prayer to the memory of that scholarly, dedicated leader and to the cultural background of his bereaved wife and loved ones could be more fitting."

Mrs. Kennedy kept her eyes on the altar and the cardinal most of the time. The first tears slipped down her cheeks as the chorus sang the benediction—"Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

After the Mass, Cardinal Cushing escorted her into the sanctuary to meet Erich Leinsdorf, conductor of the symphony.

Leinsdorf had selected Mozart's "Requiem" for the Mass as "the unfinished work of a genius dedicated to the unfinished work of another genius."

Seek Legislation For $200 Million HighwayBondBill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Construction workers are asking Gov. Rockefeller and the Legislature to raise $200 million for road building by selling bonds approved by the voters in 1956.

Gov. Rockefeller had said he would not issue bonds to obtain finances.

The workers' request was made Sunday at the New York State Conference of Operating Engineers, legislative session of the state's International Union of Operating Engineers.

Union leaders said the 40,000 members would face rising unemployment if there were not more road building.

Union Secretary Daniel R. McGraw Jr. said, "Unemployment for us this year will be higher than for any year in the last 10."

Completion of access roads to the New York World's Fair will be a big factor in the increase in unemployment, he said.

The State County Highway Superintendents Association also has proposed that bonds be sold to raise highway appropriations.

president of the Teamsters Local in Nashville.

The trial originally was scheduled for Nashville, but was shifted to Chattanooga because of publicity given the case in the Tennessee capital city.

Hoffa, 50-year-old head of the nation's largest labor union, arrived by plane Sunday night, jovial as a politician running for re-election and elated at his airport reception.

This is Hoffa's fifth federal court trial since 1957. He has been acquitted twice and the other two trials ended in hung juries.

In the Nashville case, which lasted nine weeks, Hoffa was accused of conspiring to violate the Taft-Hartley Act by taking an alleged $1 million kickback from a Michigan trucking firm in exchange for labor peace.

Hold Aluminum Price

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Aluminum Co. of America announced today it would maintain its price of aluminum ingot at 23 cents a pound.

They include Reynolds, Kaiser, Consolidated Aluminum and Aluminium Ltd. Aluminium, a Canadian firm, announced the new price would affect its ingot sales only in the United States.

Ruby in Court to Seek Bail As He Faces Murder of Oswald

DALLAS (AP) — Jack Ruby returned to court under tight security guard today to seek release on bond while awaiting trial on a charge of murdering Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

"I feel wonderful," said the 53-year-old night club operator while photographers were being permitted to make pictures before the proceedings opened.

How long the hearing will last will depend on whether State Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown agrees to a defense request to present evidence it says will prove Oswald the assassin of President Kennedy and the slayer of police officer J. D. Tippit.

If the judge rules that it is pertinent to the issue of whether Ruby should be released on bond, the hearing could last a week since chief defense Atty. Melvin Belli has subpoenaed nearly two dozen witnesses. If the request is denied, the hearing could end quicker.

The current bond hearing is a continuation of one started in late December, but recessed because of the Christmas holidays.

Ruby has been held without bond since he shot and killed Oswald before a nationwide television audience Nov. 24 as the accused assassin was being transferred from the city to the county jail.

Oswald's death came less than 48 hours after President Kennedy was assassinated, Gov. John Connally of Texas was wounded, and Tippit was shot to death. Oswald was charged in all three shootings.

In a 30-page petition filed with the court last week, the defense said that the President's assassination, the wounding of Gov. Connally, and the slaying of Tippit "enraged their cline to such an extent that their client was temporarily insane".

"The defense must prove Oswald was the man who assassinated the President and shot officer Tippit," the petition said.

At the December hearing, Ruby's lawyers sought to know that the case was not a capital one since they contended their client was temporarily insane and that bond should be granted.

Ruby's trial has been set for Feb. 3 in Dallas, but at the December hearing Belli told Judge Brown he would seek a change of venue. Belli said that because of news stories published in Dallas, his client could not obtain a fair trial.

Katsbaan Tavern Entered; Liquor And Money Taken

Burglars smashed their way into the Katsbaan Tavern off Route 32, near Katsbaan Corner, Town of Saugerties, sometime during the night and made off with 12 bottles of choice whiskey and the contents of two vending machines.

Mrs. Everett Mertz, who operates the tavern with her husband said she discovered the place had been entered at 7:15 a. m. today. She notified Kingston state police and special town police officers. Mrs. Mertz said the intruders broke a rear window and ripped off boards from the windows of the dining hall which was the scene of a fire last November 15.

Mrs. Mertz reported a door was forced open leading from the dining hall into the tavern. The liquor was taken from the back bar and an undetermined amount of cash was taken from a juke box and shuffle board machine.

BCI Senior Investigator Frank Stainkamp is investigating.

sociated Press listed the death of three young sisters who perished in a fire that destroyed their home near Binghamton.

The girls, all members of the same family, were among the five persons who perished in fires in the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday. The death toll included three persons killed in traffic mishaps and two others who died in other types of accidents.

In Greene, near Binghamton, fire tore through a two-story frame house Saturday night, bringing death to Gracia Niles, 8, and her sisters, Sybil, 6, and Patty, 4.

One Sister Saved

Another sister, Judy, 2, was saved from the flames by her father, who dropped her out of a second-story window of the house. Paul Niles suffered severe burns of the arms and face in his desperate effort to reach his other daughters.

Other deaths, by community:

Tool Engineers Elect Officers

Catskill Region Chapter No. 151, American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers, held its annual election of officers at the regular dinner meeting, last week at the Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen.

Candidates were presented by a nominating committee made up of past chairmen of the local chapter, Howard Bertholf, George Berk, John Kelly and Bernard Martin.

Newly elected officers were Victor F. Patience, chairman; Wendell H. Gray, first vice chairman; Alvin V. Parnett, second vice chairman; Horst Bach, third vice chairman; William G. Kaznowski, secretary; and James H. Peterson, treasurer. Retiring chairman Andrew J. Horvath officiated at the election.

The regular meeting was held after the election and guest speaker Warren Mang, manager of Herf Dynapak Division of General Dynamics Corp., presented a lecture on Dynapak—a second generation tool. Mang highlighted his talk with a movie and color slides. Dynapak is a simple tool used to do complex forming operations in a single blow of the ram.

Coffee speaker Ernest Friedli discussed the role of the manufacturing engineer and product designer in accomplishing the many phases of design and engineering necessary to produce a product in time to compete with an ever changing demand.

Pickets Protest

feller had replied to a letter from them and asked why Mayor John J. Schwenk had not.

The letter mainly protested return of a 15-year-old girl to her New York home from here at a time when police were investigating local traffic in narcotics and making arrests. The girl admitted she had run away from home, authorities said.

Held for Return

The protest, it was learned originated with a former Kingston resident, who now lives in New York. He had appeared at a local house, authorities said, when an arrest was being made, and the teenage girl was also there. Those who made the arrest held the girl here only pending her return to New York. She was not under arrest nor was the man who protested in her behalf held on any charge, authorities said.

It is held by the group that procedure in the narcotics was discriminatory. Authorities said they were concerned only with traffic in narcotics and those allegedly involved.

Early Summit

result of his talks with Kennedy.

Some observers believe that the damage the feud is doing to Indonesia's economy and Sukarno's fear that the Philippines will recognize the federation, thus isolating Indonesia, will force him to back down.

Some Western diplomats contend, however, that Sukarno will continue his "crush Malaysia campaign" until the federation collapses or joins the Indonesian orbit. These sources believe Sukarno has gone too far to pull back without a victory.

Meanwhile, in Jakarta, capital of Indonesia, workers moved to seize the property of the Shell Oil Co. and other British firms, but acting president Johannes Leimena called for a halt to all attempts to take over British business interests.

Leimena, in a statement published by the official Antara news agency, pointed out that Sukarno was still abroad. He asked that all people comply with presidential decree isssued following the seizure in September of some British properties. Most of these firms are now operated by government-management teams.

Decision Refused In Baton Rouge Injunction Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court refused today to rule on the question whether Baton Rouge, La., was properly denied an injunction against demonstrations by the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

John Christian, mayor-president of Baton Rouge, appealed to the high tribunal to overturn a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans.

The litigation developed from demonstrations in Baton Rouge on Dec. 15, 1961 by Negro students of Southern University, in Scotlandville, La. They marched to Baton Rouge and after a crowd of Negroes, including the students, gathered in the courthouse area. Police made a number of arrests on charges that traffic was blocked.

The U.S. District Court in Baton Rouge granted the city an injunction to bar breaches of the peace and agitation likely to cause violence. CORE appealed to the Circuit Court and won reversal of the District Court order.

Newburgh Man Is Found Overcome In Car, Revived

A 31-year-old Newburgh man was reported in critical condition today at St. Luke's Hospital, that city, where he is under treatment for carbon monoxide poisoning.

Highland State Troopers John Salters and Robert Whalen were on patrol Saturday night when they saw a man slumped over the steering wheel of a car parked off Route 300 near Wallkill in the Town of Shawangunk.

Troopers were unable to arouse the motorist, and Wallkill firemen were summoned. Firemen and troopers worked about a half hour with a resuscitator and revived the man identified as David James Koechel, of Quaker Street, Newburgh.

Koechel was rushed to St. Luke's Hospital. Troopers said the motor of the car was running when they discovered Koechel unconscious on the front seat.

Reserves Decision In Suit Against State

Decision has been reserved by Supreme Court Justice Russell G. Hunt, Albany, in a $100,000 claim against the state by Walter H. Smith, Rhinebeck, who charges malicious prosecution in a 1958 arrest. Smith, a former special game protector, was charged with impersonating a game protector after he no longer was on duty. A Dutchess county court jury acquitted Smith in 1959.

DISCUSS PROGRAM—Officials of Catskill Region Chapter 151, American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers discuss topic and program with guest speaker at recent meeting held at the Capri Restaurant, Port Ewen. Officers for the coming year were elected. Discussing the program here are (l-r) Fred Brammer, program chairman; Warren Mang, manager of Herf Dynapak Division, General Dynamics Corp., guest speaker, and Andrew J. Horvath, chapter chairman. Guest speaker Mang explains an intricate forming problem that had been solved with the high energy rate forming technique in a dynapak machine.

Forego Current Income To Build Inflation Hedge

Q) "We have $100,000 invested in insured savings and loans and an equal amount in Series H savings bonds. We feel these are the safest investments to provide us with adequate income. However, we fear inflation — which seems to come closer all the time. Will you please recommend some stocks which would be a hedge against inflation?"—M. McD.

A) I will be very glad to do so.

You understand, I hope, that to follow the course you suggest will result in considerable loss of current income.

The only stocks that I consider suitable as a hedge against inflation are those which are growing in earnings, dividends, and price at a rate faster than any possible dollar devaluation. These growth stocks are highly valued by the market and offer a relatively low yield.

You might put $25,000 into equal dollar amounts of Corn Products; Bristol-Myers; Merck & Company; Sears, Roebuck; Texas Utilities. This would give you strong representation in packaged foods; drugs and toiletries; pharmaceuticals; merchandising and electricity.

Q) "Five years ago, I inherited 70 shares of American Airlines convertible preferred stock, and have been disappointed with the performance of the shares until recently. I am confused by the company's earnings pattern over the past ten years. Would you advise switching into another stock at this time?" — R. Y.

A) The earnings pattern for the airlines generally has been one of wide variation rather than growth over the past decade.

During 1963, the airline group moved up consistently and was one of the best acting of all those that I study. I believe further good performance will be seen this year.

The airlines have been showing rising earnings due to increased traffic and debt repayment. American doubled its share earnings last year, according to my estimate, and I look for another good gain in 1964.

Your preferred is convertible into 4.84 shares common and sells right at its conversion value. I believe you are justified in holding for higher prices.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column.

Bus-Car Collision Near New Paltz

Forty persons, including 39 members of the Poughkeepsie Yacht Club on their way home in a chartered bus after attending the National Boat Show in New York City, escaped injury Saturday night in a bus-car collision on Route 299, about a quarter of a mile from the Thruway exit near New Paltz.

Thomas Prendergast, Clintondale, owner of the car, was ejected from his vehicle after the impact. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by the New Paltz Fire Department ambulance.

Highland troopers reported Prendergast suffered a possible skull fracture and a fractured arm and hand.

According to a report of Trooper Wallace Mahan, the bus, owned by the Mt. View Coach Lines and operated by Edward Quick, 48, of 714 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, was traveling north in the South Ohioville Road, when the crash occurred.

The bus was taken to the company's terminal in Highland for inspection. The Yacht Club members were returned to Poughkeepsie in another bus driven by Floyd Mackey, Highland.

Two Are Suspended, Absent for Funeral

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (AP)—Two brothers have been suspended from the Elliot Lake High School for refusing to serve an hour's detention for staying away from school to watch President Kennedy's funeral on television.

The boys are Rainer and Gerhard Warkholdt, 17 and 15. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Warkholdt, said they kept the boys home to watch the Nov. 25 telecast.

School Board Chairman Charles Eaket said the youths would not be allowed to return to school until "they agree to pay their debt to society."

Mr. and Mrs. Warkholdt, who emigrated from Germany in the early 1950s, said they had retained a lawyer to investigate the case.

"I was raised under a dictatorship, with no freedom of speech, thinking or actions," Mrs. Warkholdt told a newsman. "I feel offended by this decision."

Seek to Enshrine Burroughs Field Site in Roxbury

A concerted effort to establish a State Historic Site at Roxbury, honoring the American naturalist and writer John Burroughs has been announced this week by William G. Fennell, president of the Association.

Letters are being sent this week by the association to some 2500 leaders in nature, conservation, and historic organizations asking their support of a measure now before the State Legislature under which the state would acquire John Burroughs Memorial Field in Roxbury, Delaware County, where the late naturalist-writer is buried.

Author Buried There

Memorial Field, a 3½-acre section of the family farm on which John Burroughs was born in 1837 and grew up, is now owned and maintained by the John Burroughs Memorial Association, Inc. It contains the large glacial boulder to which Burroughs refers in his writings as "Boyhood Rock," a point commanding a superb view of the Catskill Mountains. Burroughs died in 1921 and was buried beside the rock which was later inscribed with his epitaph.

Popular interest in John Burroughs, which was widespread during his lifetime when more than one million 25-volume sets of his books were sold, has increased greatly in recent years, Fennell said. Travelers from all over the world visit the Burroughs farm which includes, in addition to his grave, his rustic summer home called Woodchuck Lodge. During the summer months of 1963, more than 1300 people — including visitors from the British Isles, Europe, India, Japan, and the Philippines —signed a guest register at the site.

In the autumn of 1963, the United States Department of the Interior recognized John Burroughs as a national historic figure by placing a bronze plaque on Woodchuck Lodge, designating it a National Historic Landmark.

The measure now before the State Legislature would "provide for the acquisition of John Burroughs Memorial Field in the Town of Roxbury, Delaware County, for historical and educational purposes; authorizing the Commissioner of Education as agent of the state to acquire the same as an historic site and making an appropriation to the Department of Education therefor."

Introduced by Bush

The proposal is contained in Senate Introductory Bill No. 630, introduced by Senator E. Ogden Bush, and Assembly Introductory Bill No. 108, introduced by Assemblyman Edwyn E. Mason. The bills provide for appropriating $2,000, of which $1,500 would cover restoration and maintenance of the grounds during the first year and $500 would meet the expenses of the State Law Department in acquiring title to the property.

In 1961, the Joint Legislative Committee on the Preservation and Restoration of Historic Sites recommended the acquisition of Memorial Field by the state. (Page 28 of the Committee's Report, 1961.)

As an interpreter of nature, John Burroughs was the best known and most popular American writer of his period. His first book, "Wake-Robin," recounts his youthful experiences on his family's Catskill Mountain farm. In addition to his extensive writings on wildlife, he produced accounts of his travels in England, Alaska, and Jamaica, and essays on literature, science and philosophy.

NEW YORK (AP)— The federal government collects more money and pays out more money than shows up in the administrative budget that President Johnson is sending to Congress Tuesday.

That's where much of the confusion arises among taxpayers over budget savings and Treasury deficits.

Not All in Budget

It is this actual cash flow that affects the economy—how much the government actually is taking out of the public's pockets, and how much it is putting back through its purchases, benefit payments of many types, loans, grants and subsidies.

Most shows up in the official budget that Congress is to consider. But a lot doesn't. The total cash receipts have been running around $114 billion, even though the formal budget in both the current and the upcoming fiscal year is held below $100 billion. The deficit in the cash budget has been around $7 billion, although the deficit in the formal budget for the current fiscal year is now estimated at $10 billion.

It is this total spending and total collections that determine whether the government is putting in more money than it's taking out, or taking out more than it's putting back.

Government receipts and government spending that don't show in the formal budget include such things as Social Security—taxes on payrolls on the one hand and payment of pensions on the other—unemployment compensation, rail, retirement funds, the federal highway program, the premiums paid on veterans' life insurance and the dividends and benefits paid out.

More Goes Into Economy

Postwar history has been that in most years the government has put more money into the economy than it has taken out by collections—even when the formal budget showed a surplus. In the last three years the cash deficit—not the budget one—has totaled $17 billion. The surplus of outflow over inflow is financed by borrowing. That is why the federal debt climbs steadily and the interest on it mounts.

Also baffling many taxpayers is the time lag between what the president proposes and what finally happens. Most people operate their own finances on a calendar year and are taxed that way. But the government's fiscal year starts on July 1. The estimates President Johnson is submitting to Congress are for the next fiscal year starting almost six months hence and will not be proved finally right or wrong for 18 months, or until June 30, 1965.

West Hurley Man Part of Stewart Base 'Take Over'

Major Lawrence R. Deade, 27 Pinetree Road, West Hurley, a Reservist assigned to Headquarters First Air Force Region at Stewart AFB, will "take over" the operation of the headquarters from the active duty staff during a 15-day active duty period which begins Saturday.

During this period, 20 Reservists will assume the responsibilities of their assigned postions in the second test of the Regular-Reserve management team concept, launched by the First Region last February. Announcement of the "take over" was made by Brigadier General Royal Hatch, Region commander.

Last year's success prompted a repeat operation, General Hatch said, and with it the opportunity for Reservists to demonstrate their ability to shoulder responsibilities and maintain continuity of administration.

Singer, Mate Separated

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Opera star Mary Costa said Friday that she and her director husband, Frank Tashlin, 52, have separated.

She said it is not a legal separation and no steps toward divorce have been taken.

"Frank and I have been separated off and on since last May," she added. The singer, 33, recently won acclaim for her performance in "La Traviata" at the Metropolitan Opera.

Premature Birth May Be Caused By Heavy Smoking

Heavy smoking during pregnancy increases the likelihood of premature birth and prematurity, is an important causative factor in cerebral palsy.

A pamphlet, titled "'Do's and Don't for the Most Important Nine Months in Any Mother's Life" is being distributed as a public service by Cerebral Palsy Associations throughout the country.

Supported by Study

Dr. Brewster S. Miller, medical director of this voluntary health organization, and director of its research program, said that a recent study supported by the UCP Research and Educational Foundation and the Federal Government's National Institute for Neurological Diseases and Blindness showed that over one-half of the individuals born with one of the more common forms of cerebral palsy had been premature.

The study, conducted by Dr. Nicholson J. Eastman, professor emeritus of obstetrics, The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, and Dr. Schuyler G. Kohl, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, The State University of New York Downstate Medical Center, analyzed the background of 753 children afflicted with cerebral palsy in comparison with that of the same number of normal children. The incidence of premature birth in various types of cerebral palsy series was 31.2 per cent in contrast to only 8.2 per cent in the control series.

Cigarette smoking histories obtained from prenatal interviews with 2,736 women in Baltimore who were delivered of single live-born infants showed that the prematurity rate for smokers was 18.8 per cent compared to 11.2 per cent for non-smokers. The rate of premature birth increased with the amount smoked. The incidence of prematurity went as high as 22.9 per cent for infants of women who smoked more than a pack of cigarettes daily. This evidence is generally consistent with studies conducted in California and in Birmingham, England, according to Dr. Miller.

Dont's Are Listed

Among other things an expectant mother should avoid, the new UCP pamphlet enumerates the following: contact with people having German measles and chicken pox during her first three months of pregnancy; exposure to known toxic substances—lead (paints), chemicals (cleaning fluids); unnecessary X-ray; and taking any drugs not specifically prescribed by her doctor.

The pamphlet may be obtained without charge by writing Ulster County Cerebral Palsy Association, 400 Broadway, Kingston, and including a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Heart Chapter: Urge Teenagers Give Up Smoking

"Resolved, that I will safeguard my heart and health by avoiding or dropping the cigarette habit."

This New Year's resolution was proposed for adoption by teenagers today by the Heart Chapter of Ulster County, which cautioned non-smoking youngsters that the best method of dealing with the cigarette habit is never to let it get started in the first place.

Should Discontinue

The Chapter said that young people who smoke should resolve to discontinue cigarettes; if they persist they run a real risk that their life-span may be shortened due to heart disease or other serious health problems.

"Whether you are a teenager or an adult," said the Chapter, "you should remember that heavy cigarette smoking may contribute to or accelerate the development of coronary heart disease or its complications."

"A number of medical studies have demonstrated a substantial association between cigarette smoking and illness and death from coronary artery disease," the Chapter continued. "In these studies death rates from heart attacks in middle-aged men were found to be 50 to 200 per cent higher among heavy cigarette smokers as compared with non-smokers and pipe or cigar smokers."

"A few of these studies also offer evidence that illness and death from coronary artery disease decrease significantly among those who have stopped smoking," said the Chapter.

Provide Example

Parents were urged by the Heart Chapter to provide an example for their children, since twice as many high school students smoke when both parents smoke as when neither parent smokes, the Chapter said.

It is especially important for adults with a high risk of coronary heart disease to discontinue cigarette smoking, the Chapter noted. This group includes those with a family history of heart attack or stroke in middle age, high blood pressure, high levels of fatty substances in the blood and other factors associated with greater proneness to hardening of the arteries.

Statistical analysis of existing data indicates that cigarette smoking is associated with a yearly increase of about 60,000 premature deaths from coronary disease among American men. This is approximately equal to the estimated increase in deaths associated with cigarete smoking from all other diseases combined.

Investor Forum

Harry C. France

From 1953 to 1963 stockholders' lists grew from 7,000,000 to 17,000,000. This growth will be accentuated during the next 10 years.

The situation sets up many problems for the securities' world. The $900,000 Congressional investigation of the securities business reveals very clearly how necessary it is to improve the ethical and professional standards of this business. There is no field more open to vocational development. In this column for 25 years I have been stressing this fact.

By 1975 America should have 30,000,000 stockholders. Where is this vast throng going to get competent advice? We need in America thousands of unselfish, competent investment advisors.

If a young man will attend a liberal arts college and study economics, economics history, English, corporation finance, and accounting, then when he shall have graduated he will have no trouble landing a job with a bank, an investment firm, or a New York Stock Exchange firm. In the job he will learn how to manage money in all of its ramifications. He will help individuals, corporations, and institutions of every character.

After serving in the job he may choose to hang out his own shingle as I did 34 years ago. My three decades as a money-manager have been joyous and successful.

Turning to stockholders: it is highly important that they get a long-range plan established. Otherwise, without a plan, they will make many mistakes. Most investors should build up, first of all, an interest-bearing savings account against emergencies. Where insurance seems logical, adequate policies should be purchased.

The third line of financial defense should be the highest-grade common stocks of the best corporations of America.

The accumulation of such stocks enables an investor to enjoy good current income and to participate in the gigantic economic growth that lies ahead.

Almost without exception, the big fortunes that have been built in America have been accumulated in this way. Most millionaires have as a background of their wealth a good portfolio of prime common stocks.

What I fear for the future is that far too many new stockholders, in their quest for quick riches, will speculate instead of invest. The average new investor has no clear-cut plan for himself, and it is easy for him to seek quick capital gains instead of sound income.

Speculation proves to be a curse to thousands of new investors every year. They chase the speculative rainbow and instead of realizing large capital gains in a hurry, they become disillusioned by their calamitous losses.

In the next decade it would be a wonderful thing if thousands of competent investment advisors could be thrown in contact with millions of new stockholders who need proper direction so badly.

Mr. France has just written a new investment handbook: DOLLARS THAT GROW. For your copy, send $1.00 (no stamps) to Mr. Harry France in care of The Freeman, Box 2492, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N. Y.

Corpses Give Blood

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Russian accomplishments with blood transfusions spurred a Michigan research team to discover how corpses could provide the blood to keep injured persons alive in the battlefield or in disaster areas.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian and researchers Neal Nicol and Edwin Rea of Pontiac General Hospital announced Friday night that they had performed the first known direct transfusions of blood from human corpses to living persons.

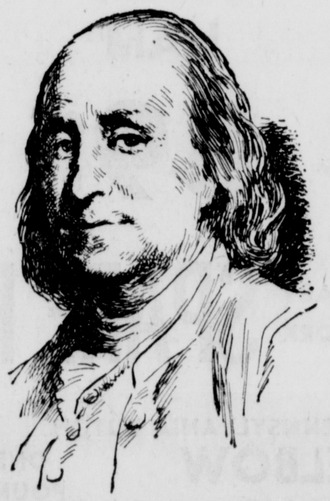

The process, Kevorkian said, is a simple one "with what appear to us to be tremendous military possibilities."

Kohl, professor of obstetrics and gynecology, The State University of New York Downstate Medical Center, analyzed the background of 753 children afflicted with cerebral palsy in comparison with that of the same number of normal children. The incidence of premature birth in various types of cerebral palsy series was 31.2 per cent in contrast to only 8.2 per cent in the control series.

Cigarette smoking histories obtained from prenatal interviews with 2,736 women in Baltimore who were delivered of single live-born infants showed that the prematurity rate for smokers was 18.8 per cent compared to 11.2 per cent for non-smokers. The rate of premature birth increased with the amount smoked. The incidence of prematurity went as high as 22.9 per cent for infants of women who smoked more than a pack of cigarettes daily. This evidence is generally consistent with studies conducted in California and in Birmingham, England, according to Dr. Miller.

Dont's Are Listed

Among other things an expectant mother should avoid, the new UCP pamphlet enumerates the following: contact with people having German measles and chicken pox during her first three months of pregnancy; exposure to known toxic substances—lead (paints), chemicals (cleaning fluids); unnecessary X-ray; and taking any drugs not specifically prescribed by her doctor.

The pamphlet may be obtained without charge by writing Ulster County Cerebral Palsy Association, 400 Broadway, Kingston, and including a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Heart Chapter: Urge Teenagers Give Up Smoking

"Resolved, that I will safeguard my heart and health by avoiding or dropping the cigarette habit."

This New Year's resolution was proposed for adoption by teenagers today by the Heart Chapter of Ulster County, which cautioned non-smoking youngsters that the best method of dealing with the cigarette habit is never to let it get started in the first place.

Should Discontinue

The Chapter said that young people who smoke should resolve to discontinue cigarettes; if they persist they run a real risk that their life-span may be shortened due to heart disease or other serious health problems.

"Whether you are a teenager or an adult," said the Chapter, "you should remember that heavy cigarette smoking may contribute to or accelerate the development of coronary heart disease or its complications."

"A number of medical studies have demonstrated a substantial association between cigarette smoking and illness and death from coronary artery disease," the Chapter continued. "In these studies death rates from heart attacks in middle-aged men were found to be 50 to 200 per cent higher among heavy cigarette smokers as compared with non-smokers and pipe or cigar smokers."

"A few of these studies also offer evidence that illness and death from coronary artery disease decrease significantly among those who have stopped smoking," said the Chapter.

Provide Example

Parents were urged by the Heart Chapter to provide an example for their children, since twice as many high school students smoke when both parents smoke as when neither parent smokes, the Chapter said.

It is especially important for adults with a high risk of coronary heart disease to discontinue cigarette smoking, the Chapter noted. This group includes those with a family history of heart attack or stroke in middle age, high blood pressure, high levels of fatty substances in the blood and other factors associated with greater proneness to hardening of the arteries.

Statistical analysis of existing data indicates that cigarette smoking is associated with a yearly increase of about 60,000 premature deaths from coronary disease among American men. This is approximately equal to the estimated increase in deaths associated with cigarete smoking from all other diseases combined.

Investor Forum

Harry C. France

From 1953 to 1963 stockholders' lists grew from 7,000,000 to 17,000,000. This growth will be accentuated during the next 10 years.

The situation sets up many problems for the securities' world. The $900,000 Congressional investigation of the securities business reveals very clearly how necessary it is to improve the ethical and professional standards of this business. There is no field more open to vocational development. In this column for 25 years I have been stressing this fact.

By 1975 America should have 30,000,000 stockholders. Where is this vast throng going to get competent advice? We need in America thousands of unselfish, competent investment advisors.

If a young man will attend a liberal arts college and study economics, economics history, English, corporation finance, and accounting, then when he shall have graduated he will have no trouble landing a job with a bank, an investment firm, or a New York Stock Exchange firm. In the job he will learn how to manage money in all of its ramifications. He will help individuals, corporations, and institutions of every character.

After serving in the job he may choose to hang out his own shingle as I did 34 years ago. My three decades as a money-manager have been joyous and successful.

Turning to stockholders: it is highly important that they get a long-range plan established. Otherwise, without a plan, they will make many mistakes. Most investors should build up, first of all, an interest-bearing savings account against emergencies. Where insurance seems logical, adequate policies should be purchased.

The third line of financial defense should be the highest-grade common stocks of the best corporations of America.

The accumulation of such stocks enables an investor to enjoy good current income and to participate in the gigantic economic growth that lies ahead.

Almost without exception, the big fortunes that have been built in America have been accumulated in this way. Most millionaires have as a background of their wealth a good portfolio of prime common stocks.

What I fear for the future is that far too many new stockholders, in their quest for quick riches, will speculate instead of invest. The average new investor has no clear-cut plan for himself, and it is easy for him to seek quick capital gains instead of sound income.

Speculation proves to be a curse to thousands of new investors every year. They chase the speculative rainbow and instead of realizing large capital gains in a hurry, they become disillusioned by their calamitous losses.

In the next decade it would be a wonderful thing if thousands of competent investment advisors could be thrown in contact with millions of new stockholders who need proper direction so badly.

Corpses Give Blood

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Russian accomplishments with blood transfusions spurred a Michigan research team to discover how corpses could provide the blood to keep injured persons alive in the battlefield or in disaster areas.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian and researchers Neal Nicol and Edwin Rea of Pontiac General Hospital announced Friday night that they had performed the first known direct transfusions of blood from human corpses to living persons.

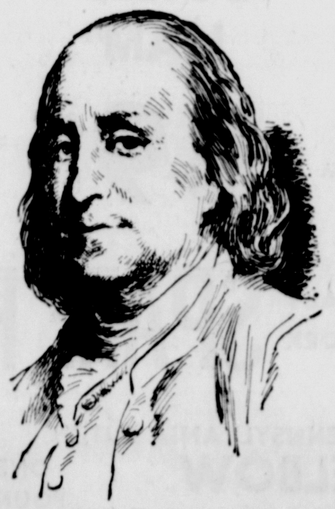

The process, Kevorkian said, is a simple one "with what appear to us to be tremendous military possibilities."

Historian's Report Stresses Safekeeping of Old Records

The annual report submitted for publication this week by Kenneth E. Hasbrouck, associate county historian and historian for New Paltz, Gardiner and Shawangunk discusses the safe keeping of historical records and where they may be found. The report follows:

Each year it becomes more apparent that as interest in the history of our towns and County of Ulster increases, the organization of our records is of vital importance. Although most of our important records are to be found in Kingston, some of our towns have an excellent selection of documents that to date have not been catalogued.

Some Records Removed

Although many records have found their way into private collections outside the county, having been obtained at auctions, or given by individuals, there still remain many items that deserve our interest. Those records are the ones that we should constantly be looking for and urge people to turn such items over to the historical society for preservation.

It has become the practice to make people aware that items may be given on loan, or what is termed "permanent loan." This permits the individual to obtain the records at any time during their lifetime.

During the past year, letters requesting information about our area have increased in number. Generally the letters deal with inquiries concerning an ancestor who lived in some area of Ulster County. Quite often these people did come from Ulster. Many people are interested in certain aspects of our history, such as the cement industry, biographical data on individuals, material for schools, photographs and information for newspaper and magazines, and numerous other types of requests.

One of the most important things accomplished during the past year was the writing up of a number of phases of local and county history. These articles, based upon hours of research, are now available for school use and for any person who wishes to make the material a part of their own program.

Includes Several Items

The items deal with county government, local and county records, Indians of southeastern New York State, Delaware and Hudson Canal, Erie Canal, material taken from old diaries concerning travel in the 19th Century, town government and listing of documents.

There are now several lists dealing with references such as, books, maps and records dealing with Ulster County, places of interest to visit in Ulster County, bibliographies of books on New York State.

It has been found that books, pamphlets and other material that it is impossible to replace, can not be loaned. The historian's library is one which takes years to build up and in many cases the materials can't be replaced. People are welcome to ask for aid and to ask to see the materials, but generally such materials may not be taken out of the collection. This is the reason for printing of as much information as possible so that it may be given out to the public.

It is most advisable that when an interesting record is found that it be copied and one of the copies at least be put in either the library or historical society. We have such excellent methods of reproducing records today that it is pure negligence to take chances with an original record and have it destroyed. Fire and dampness are the two great hazards in connection with documents and books.

Encourages Wrapping

I have found that in cases where items cannot be placed in a room where the temperature and dampness cannot be controlled, wrapping the article in heavy weight paper will help preserve it. This of course should be done even though the housing area is correct. Dust will also cause a great deal of deterioration.

If at all possible, books are better cared for that are not exposed to dust. Of course this applies to those items that cannot be replaced. Books of local history and of a genealogical nature cost in many instances a great deal. They should be preserved carefully. We should also include in this group, first editions and costly books.

It is noted with much concern that the Perrines Bridge, pictured in Chamber of Commerce brochures and admired by a great number of people, still goes without any attention. Built in 1850, the bridge is unique because of its Burr Truss construction and the fact that its location makes it available for tourists to see as they travel the Thruway.

The bridge is probably the oldest standing in New York State and definitely should be preserved. Although many individuals have tried by numerous ways to save the bridge, it seems that sufficient united effort has not taken place. It is truly amazing how the historical landmark manages to hold up as its condition is very poor.

Landmark Disappearing

One should note that another landmark is fast disappearing in Wallkill.

The old Cornelius Bruyn House, also known as Phinney House is being taken down. This house was noted in last year's report. The house probably could have been saved, but the last tenants in modernizing, spoiled many of its interior features and those who would have aided financially, thought it too far gone. A fire had also left considerable damage. It is pleasing to learn that the house is being taken down carefully and much of it will be rebuilt in another locality.

One of the landmarks on lower Main Street, New Paltz, was demolished in 1963. Although the house was not of ancient vintage, it was of interest to those who like Victorian features. Miss Sarah E. Deyo lived in the house for many years. The house was purchased by the New Paltz Savings Bank to enlarge their land area.

The time is here when we should keep a record of the houses in a community which are at least one hundred years old. The builder and first owner is of importance. This could be undertaken by one of our civic groups. We have inquiries from various people asking about certain houses in connection with architectural features. It could be accomplished easily by giving certain street areas to two individuals. With a team of about 10 to 20 people the work should not take too long.

Visitors Impressed

During the past year we have had numerous visitors from abroad. The group of teachers from Ireland seemed to enjoy their stay immensely as we have had a number of letters from them requesting additional material.

The English group that were at Vassar College took special pleasure in the crafts that were demonstrated on Stone House Day. Held on the first Saturday of August each year, the event is becoming so well known that people plan for months ahead so that they can be present.

As a result of our visitors, intercultural relations are being aided. A good example of this is the information that has been exchanged with Pfalz in Germany.

It is becoming rather common to have at least one request from a foreign country each week. Naturally the United Nations and the College at New Paltz have been factors in bringing about the growing number of visitors from other countries.

Cites Junior Society

The work done with school children has been greatly increased. The Junior Historical Society at New Paltz put on a very fine Stone House Day of their own in early November. It was for their parents and people of the village. The crafts exhibited and ability in presenting the houses to the public was outstanding. Certainly we can look forward to the future with complete assurance that the work begun will be continued.

This historian continues to go to groups that wish to learn more about the history of the community, county and state. During the year of 1963 approximately one talk was given per month.

Over 200 volumes were added to the genealogical and historical library of the historian in 1963. These were a gift and of course much appreciated. Some of the books would be practically impossible to obtain on the market.

The Bevier-Elting Association came into being in October 1963. Membership has been increasing rapidly and already the house on Huguenot Street has been improved. The purpose of these groups is to provide funds for maintenance and to create endowments for the future so that the houses will be taken care of in the years to come. Of course each of the families keep a genealogical record and try to provide interesting meetings for the group.

House Improved

The Abraham Hasbrouck House was improved greatly in 1963. The cellar kitchen was completely repaired, new wooden gutters were installed, the middle room and the bedroom were redecorated.

The outside cellar kitchen stairs were repaired. Next spring It is hoped that the two chimneys and fireplaces will be restored. These fireplaces are like those in the Hasbrouck House, Newburgh, (Washington's Headquarters).

It will be of interest to many to note in the future how changes will be made in the Senate House, Kingston, to more fully comply with the architects recent examination.

Most assuredly it is of vital importance that old houses should be preserved or restored with care and after expert advice. It is also wise to have at least three experts check and then a committee review all the data before undertaking a piece of work. It is much easier to ruin a house than it is to proceed with care. Money often is not the answer to preservation. Bascobel is an outstanding example of this. We can go too far in restoration

Install Furnace

A furnace is being put in the museum portion of the Locust Lawn House on the Modena Road, Town of Gardiner. This will permit activities during the winter months. The large old mansion offers many prospects as it has a third floor area which is not utilized.

The large house built by Marion Borden in the very early 1900s at Wallkill, is now being used as a boys school, which was for many years housed at Lake Mohonk.

In 1963 an American flag was presented by the Past Regents of the Daughters of the American Revolution to the Col. Josiah Hasbrouck House (Locust Lawn) because of its interest to the public.

In 1963 the historian was fortunate in being awarded a scholarship by the Council in The Arts, New York to attend the seminar at Cooperstown. This was a most informative course, dealing in preservation of books, manuscripts and colonial music. As usual Dr. Louis Jones had a staff of excellent people who had a great deal to give the students.

The death of Dr. Albert Corey in 1963 has left a void in the historical affairs of the State of New York difficult to fill. He had a rare ability to aid all who asked for assistance, but refrained from ever enforcing his own personal wishes upon others.

State and local history reached a new high during the able administration of Dr. Corey. His main contribution was in achieving success in a certain venture by perserverance. A policy of gentle persuasion accomplished wonders. He was a very practical man, realizing that although one door might close, another would open. I am sure that all who knew him over the years will miss him.

It has always been my hope that a history of our people who served in World War II could be achieved. It was begun over a decade ago, but the response of veterans was very poor when inquiries were mailed out.

Perhaps this lack of record for towns can be made up by use of discharges filed in the Ulster County Clerk's Office, newspaper clippings and other materials preserved in the historian's archives. A person asked recently about the Korean veterans, but it would appear that World War II must come first.

The new Duzine Elementary School, New Paltz was completed and opened in the fall of 1963.

New Post Office

Gardiner obtained a new post office. After years of being in the north portion of the old John Moran store, it was moved into a portion of Majestic's hardware store. Although the parking area is a problem, the new post office is a wonderful improvement. Why is it that in a number of communities, Uncle Sam does not seem to realize that people have to drive to the post office?

It is always a pleasant surprise and of historical interest to find that each year although one believes most of the documents pertaining to this area have been located previously, new and rare items come to light.

For instance in 1963, the original Indian Deed to the Jacobus Bruyn family of Shawangunk has been located. This deed is especially noteworthy as it gives certain genealogical data concerning the relationship of the Indian leaders who signed the deed.

The letters written by the Rev. Johannis Mauritius Goetschius who was the minister of New Paltz and Shawangunk congregations during the period of 1760 to 1771, have been found along with other letters dealing with the Coetus-Conferentie strife which divided the Dutch congregations in America for years.

The Rev. Mr. Goetschius was both a physician and a minister. This was a fine combination as he could not only take care of the physical needs, but also the spiritual ones as well. This worthy man who must have had problems too numerous to mention, died at the parsonage in Shawangunk in 1771 and was buried beneath the baptismal font as was the custom in many churches of that period.

Letters Interesting

The letters are most interesting as they give us a first hand knowledge of the period and times as well as the characteristics of the men who were the leaders of their day. As history is written by man, and although he may try to be objective, it follows that a part of some portion of his personal inclinations shine forth from the written pages.

Several collections of Civil War letters have been obtained which deal with soldiers and their families of Ulster County. These have been placed in the collection which we hope some day will have its own area for display.

The study of local and state history was defended by many sources during 1963. Due to a study being made by a Committee on the Social Studies, Albany, State Education Department, a recommendation was made that a change be made in subject matter in grade seven as well as other areas.

The move to take New York State history out of the seventh grade, or at least give only a portion of the year to it, was firmly objected to by many people. Certainly a study of local and state government is necessary as well as an appreciation of New York State's role in the American heritage.

At least for the time being, the subject will be left as it is except for a portion of the year being spent on a study of Canada. This appears to be logical as one cannot study New York State very well without taking Candada into consideration.

Two Leaders Retire

Two of the long time leaders in the county political field decided not to run for election. Both Jessie McHugh, chairman of the Board of Supervisors and Supervisor of Shawangunk, and John J. Gaffney, supervisor of Town of Lloyd and minority leader, have retired. This of course does not mean that they are out of the political picture as both have been vital leaders and certainly will continue to work for the good of the county.

A collection of over 200 items dealing with New Paltz, and the Bevier family has been photostated and sent here from Rutgers, New Brunswick, N. J.

A History of the Martyrs, dated 1582, in the French language was found and is now back in New Paltz. It was the gift of Miss Onnette I. Young. It had originally belonged to Jean Hasbrouck, one of the 12 patentees. Several other 16th and 17th Century books were given at the same time. One was a 17th Century book, John Eliot, Apostle to the Indians.

New Paltz, has been designated as one of the five outstanding historical sites in America by the Department of the Interior as a result of the National Historic Sites Program. The presentation of the plaque will take place in 1964.

Cites Newspapers

From the vast amount of material collected over the past year for the files it would seem that 1963 was one of the most active years in relation to historical items that newspapers of Ulster County have undertaken. The press has been most generous with space for historical material.

The newspapers of Ulster County are as follows: Kingston Daily Freeman, New Paltz Independent and Times, New Paltz News, Wallkill Valley World, Kingstonian, Mid-Hudson Post, Ellenville Journal, Ellenville Press, Woodstock Record-Press, Ulster County Townsman, Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties Post, Highland News.

It is the duty of an historian to know where the records of a county are available. During the past year a survey was made which is at least an initial step toward giving a listing as to where the early records may be found.

We have a very fine group of them in our County Clerk's Office and the Surrogate's Office. Others may be found in the holdings of the New York Historical Society, New York Public Library (rare documents room), New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Court of Appeals, Albany.

Has Catalogued Records

During the past year Dr. Kenneth Scott of Queens College, Queens, obtained the large wooden chest of old records from the County Clerk's Office. These have been catalogued and are being put on microfilm. Just recently Dr. Scott had an article published in National Genealogical Society Quarterly, Washington, D. C., entitled Freeholders and Inhabitants of Newburgh, New York, 1767. Newburgh was a part of Ulster County until 1797. The list was found in the wooden chest.

Approximately 1,700 people attended Stone House Day at New Paltz. Over the summer season the number of people signing the register at such places as The Senate House, Kingston, The Memorial House, New Paltz, Locust Lawn, Town of Gardiner, Bevier House Marbletown, has shown a marked increase over 1962. Many of the people stay in Ulster County two or three days.

The work of some of our libraries is very noteworthy. The Ellenville Library is an excellent example of what can be done of an historical nature and could serve as a model for all to take note of as it has developed a successful method of preserving history. Of course most of our libraries are too small to carry on much activity. Storage space is at a minimum.

Ulster County Historical Society has done an excellent piece of work in restoring the old kitchen of the Bevier House at Marbletown to its original character.

Sponsored by County

The book put out on the Civil War, Banners and Bugles by Will Plank and sponsored by the county has been well received.

Miss Pauline Hommell's book, Tenting Tonight, will be off the press in 1964. This is a book dealing with memoirs of the Civil War. Miss Hommell is of the Town of Saugerties.

Harry Rigby has been giving his short historical talks on the radio during each week. He is sponsored by IBM. These articles may be obtained by writing to Rigby at the Kingston station.

An article that appears in the Kingston Daily Freeman by Sophie Miller each day has been of great value. It both intrigues and educates the people as to the history of Kingston and in some instances the county.

Societies Are Active

New Paltz and its Huguenot Historical Society has been very active and now number well over 1,000 members. The work of this group is devoted first to preservation. Naturally records and genealogy is a large part of the work done to augment the first purpose of the Society.

The year of 1963 was especially important from the historian's point of view mainly because of the increased interest on the part of the people in their history. Perhaps this was in part due to the increasingly active part some of the county leaders are taking in such matters.

As we move forward, making history available to the public by means of public addresses, trips to other parts of the state and nation, preservation of records, publication and increased vigor in telling the story of our people to the thousands who visit us personally and through correspondence, it is evident that our goals are being achieved.

Each historian has his or her own interpretation as to just what the work entails, but we will all agree that one definite must is to know where the resources are to be found for each and every person who asks for help.

Stressed By Course

People are becoming increasingly conscious of the fact that in order to understand the problems and events of today we must have a knowledge of the past. This fact is made clear by a recent inservice course for teachers. It was a course in county government. John Marquard, deputy clerk, Board of Supervisors, helped the historian tremendously as he had a marvelous background in county government.

He was able to explain the growth of county government and showed how we must first comprehend the problems of yesterday and how they were dealt with in order to be able to deal with the problems of today.

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy on November 22, 1963, and the subsequent events, especially the funeral made us especially aware that history can repeat itself and in order to understand the affairs of our present day, one must have an appreciation of the historical background. Certainly our young people learned more history as a result of the television coverage and newspaper accounts than could be obtained from text books used over a number of weeks.

We need working historians. The value obtained is not all of an historical nature, but can be utilized for public relations and increased revenue for the towns and county.

It is hoped that 1964 will prove to be a year in which we equal the many endeavors of 1963 and with good fortune exceed them.

Cary Grant Envy Of Hollywood - Celebrates 60th

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cary Grant was 60 years old Saturday. All of us should look so god at 60. Or even 40.

The screen's master of light comedy is the envy of every leading man in town—from 20 up. The years only seem to make him more handsome—and more Cary Grantish.

Health faddists continually beseech him for the secret of his Ponce de Leon formula.

"Once a research bureau sent me a whole questionnaire to fill out on how I kept looking youthful. I answered: 'I don't do a damn thing,'" Grant said.

But he does.

Cary doesn't smoke or drink. He's not a heavy eater. Mentally, he is the most youthful star in town. He's enthusiastic about his work — and enthusiastic about an Englishman named Archie Leach, who became Gary Grant.

"I try to keep my mind youthful in ideas," he said in an interview.

"I learn something new each year. In fact, I learn something new each day, if only not to behave the way I did the day before.

"I'm old enough to admit that I'm ignorant about a lot of things. Very few young people will admit to any ignorance."

For exercise, Gary swims and rides horses.

To Boost Morale

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today it will launch a campaign to boost the morale of the Red Chinese army so that it will not fall into the "bourgeois way of life."

The broadcast did not indicate if the campaign resulted from new unrest among Red China's 2.5 million troops. The troops nearly revolted in 1960 against the policies of the Red regime.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.

Are you driving your child to poor health?

Remember when youngsters walked to school, ran errands, and got the exercise they needed? If parents insisted on more walking—and less riding—our youngsters would benefit. The automobile, however, is only one factor that deprives them of activity. Television is another. The average high school student now spends 15 to 30 inactive hours a week watching it. These are some of the reasons why all schools should have a daily period of planned, supervised, vigorous activity for all boys and girls. Find out if your school gives sufficient time to your child's physical development. For information about a program that many schools have adopted, write for the free leaflet offered by the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D. C.

Those records are the ones that we should constantly be looking for and urge people to turn such items over to the historical society for preservation.

It has become the practice to make people aware that items may be given on loan, or what is termed "permanent loan." This permits the individual to obtain the records at any time during their lifetime.

During the past year, letters requesting information about our area have increased in number. Generally the letters deal with inquiries concerning an ancestor who lived in some area of Ulster County. Quite often these people did come from Ulster. Many people are interested in certain aspects of our history, such as the cement industry, biographical data on individuals, material for schools, photographs and information for newspaper and magazines, and numerous other types of requests.

One of the most important things accomplished during the past year was the writing up of a number of phases of local and county history. These articles, based upon hours of research, are now available for school use and for any person who wishes to make the material a part of their own program.

Includes Several Items

The items deal with county government, local and county records, Indians of southeastern New York State, Delaware and Hudson Canal, Erie Canal, material taken from old diaries concerning travel in the 19th Century, town government and listing of documents.

There are now several lists dealing with references such as, books, maps and records dealing with Ulster County, places of interest to visit in Ulster County, bibliographies of books on New York State.

It has been found that books, pamphlets and other material that it is impossible to replace, can not be loaned. The historian's library is one which takes years to build up and in many cases the materials can't be replaced. People are welcome to ask for aid and to ask to see the materials, but generally such materials may not be taken out of the collection. This is the reason for printing of as much information as possible so that it may be given out to the public.

It is most advisable that when an interesting record is found that it be copied and one of the copies at least be put in either the library or historical society. We have such excellent methods of reproducing records today that it is pure negligence to take chances with an original record and have it destroyed. Fire and dampness are the two great hazards in connection with documents and books.

Encourages Wrapping

I have found that in cases where items cannot be placed in a room where the temperature and dampness cannot be controlled, wrapping the article in heavy weight paper will help preserve it. This of course should be done even though the housing area is correct. Dust will also cause a great deal of deterioration.

If at all possible, books are better cared for that are not exposed to dust. Of course this applies to those items that cannot be replaced. Books of local history and of a genealogical nature cost in many instances a great deal. They should be preserved carefully. We should also include in this group, first editions and costly books.

It is noted with much concern that the Perrines Bridge, pictured in Chamber of Commerce brochures and admired by a great number of people, still goes without any attention. Built in 1850, the bridge is unique because of its Burr Truss construction and the fact that its location makes it available for tourists to see as they travel the Thruway.

The bridge is probably the oldest standing in New York State and definitely should be preserved. Although many individuals have tried by numerous ways to save the bridge, it seems that sufficient united effort has not taken place. It is truly amazing how the historical landmark manages to hold up as its condition is very poor.

Landmark Disappearing

One should note that another landmark is fast disappearing in Wallkill.

The old Cornelius Bruyn House, also known as Phinney House is being taken down. This house was noted in last year's report. The house probably could have been saved, but the last tenants in modernizing, spoiled many of its interior features and those who would have aided financially, thought it too far gone. A fire had also left considerable damage. It is pleasing to learn that the house is being taken down carefully and much of it will be rebuilt in another locality.

One of the landmarks on lower Main Street, New Paltz, was demolished in 1963. Although the house was not of ancient vintage, it was of interest to those who like Victorian features. Miss Sarah E. Deyo lived in the house for many years. The house was purchased by the New Paltz Savings Bank to enlarge their land area.

The time is here when we should keep a record of the houses in a community which are at least one hundred years old. The builder and first owner is of importance. This could be undertaken by one of our civic groups. We have inquiries from various people asking about certain houses in connection with architectural features. It could be accomplished easily by giving certain street areas to two individuals. With a team of about 10 to 20 people the work should not take too long.

Visitors Impressed

During the past year we have had numerous visitors from abroad. The group of teachers from Ireland seemed to enjoy their stay immensely as we have had a number of letters from them requesting additional material.

The English group that were at Vassar College took special pleasure in the crafts that were demonstrated on Stone House Day. Held on the first Saturday of August each year, the event is becoming so well known that people plan for months ahead so that they can be present.

As a result of our visitors, intercultural relations are being aided. A good example of this is the information that has been exchanged with Pfalz in Germany.

It is becoming rather common to have at least one request from a foreign country each week. Naturally the United Nations and the College at New Paltz have been factors in bringing about the growing number of visitors from other countries.

Cites Junior Society

The work done with school children has been greatly increased. The Junior Historical Society at New Paltz put on a very fine Stone House Day of their own in early November. It was for their parents and people of the village. The crafts exhibited and ability in presenting the houses to the public was outstanding. Certainly we can look forward to the future with complete assurance that the work begun will be continued.

This historian continues to go to groups that wish to learn more about the history of the community, county and state. During the year of 1963 approximately one talk was given per month.

Over 200 volumes were added to the genealogical and historical library of the historian in 1963. These were a gift and of course much appreciated. Some of the books would be practically impossible to obtain on the market.

The Bevier-Elting Association came into being in October 1963. Membership has been increasing rapidly and already the house on Huguenot Street has been improved. The purpose of these groups is to provide funds for maintenance and to create endowments for the future so that the houses will be taken care of in the years to come. Of course each of the families keep a genealogical record and try to provide interesting meetings for the group.

House Improved

The Abraham Hasbrouck House was improved greatly in 1963. The cellar kitchen was completely repaired, new wooden gutters were installed, the middle room and the bedroom were redecorated.

The outside cellar kitchen stairs were repaired. Next spring It is hoped that the two chimneys and fireplaces will be restored. These fireplaces are like those in the Hasbrouck House, Newburgh, (Washington's Headquarters).

It will be of interest to many to note in the future how changes will be made in the Senate House, Kingston, to more fully comply with the architects recent examination.

Most assuredly it is of vital importance that old houses should be preserved or restored with care and after expert advice. It is also wise to have at least three experts check and then a committee review all the data before undertaking a piece of work. It is much easier to ruin a house than it is to proceed with care. Money often is not the answer to preservation. Bascobel is an outstanding example of this. We can go too far in restoration

Install Furnace

A furnace is being put in the museum portion of the Locust Lawn House on the Modena Road, Town of Gardiner. This will permit activities during the winter months. The large old mansion offers many prospects as it has a third floor area which is not utilized.

The large house built by Marion Borden in the very early 1900s at Wallkill, is now being used as a boys school, which was for many years housed at Lake Mohonk.

In 1963 an American flag was presented by the Past Regents of the Daughters of the American Revolution to the Col. Josiah Hasbrouck House (Locust Lawn) because of its interest to the public.

In 1963 the historian was fortunate in being awarded a scholarship by the Council in The Arts, New York to attend the seminar at Cooperstown. This was a most informative course, dealing in preservation of books, manuscripts and colonial music. As usual Dr. Louis Jones had a staff of excellent people who had a great deal to give the students.

The death of Dr. Albert Corey in 1963 has left a void in the historical affairs of the State of New York difficult to fill. He had a rare ability to aid all who asked for assistance, but refrained from ever enforcing his own personal wishes upon others.

State and local history reached a new high during the able administration of Dr. Corey. His main contribution was in achieving success in a certain venture by perserverance. A policy of gentle persuasion accomplished wonders. He was a very practical man, realizing that although one door might close, another would open. I am sure that all who knew him over the years will miss him.

It has always been my hope that a history of our people who served in World War II could be achieved. It was begun over a decade ago, but the response of veterans was very poor when inquiries were mailed out.

Perhaps this lack of record for towns can be made up by use of discharges filed in the Ulster County Clerk's Office, newspaper clippings and other materials preserved in the historian's archives. A person asked recently about the Korean veterans, but it would appear that World War II must come first.

The new Duzine Elementary School, New Paltz was completed and opened in the fall of 1963.

New Post Office

Gardiner obtained a new post office. After years of being in the north portion of the old John Moran store, it was moved into a portion of Majestic's hardware store. Although the parking area is a problem, the new post office is a wonderful improvement. Why is it that in a number of communities, Uncle Sam does not seem to realize that people have to drive to the post office?

It is always a pleasant surprise and of historical interest to find that each year although one believes most of the documents pertaining to this area have been located previously, new and rare items come to light.

For instance in 1963, the original Indian Deed to the Jacobus Bruyn family of Shawangunk has been located. This deed is especially noteworthy as it gives certain genealogical data concerning the relationship of the Indian leaders who signed the deed.

The letters written by the Rev. Johannis Mauritius Goetschius who was the minister of New Paltz and Shawangunk congregations during the period of 1760 to 1771, have been found along with other letters dealing with the Coetus-Conferentie strife which divided the Dutch congregations in America for years.

The Rev. Mr. Goetschius was both a physician and a minister. This was a fine combination as he could not only take care of the physical needs, but also the spiritual ones as well. This worthy man who must have had problems too numerous to mention, died at the parsonage in Shawangunk in 1771 and was buried beneath the baptismal font as was the custom in many churches of that period.

Letters Interesting

The letters are most interesting as they give us a first hand knowledge of the period and times as well as the characteristics of the men who were the leaders of their day. As history is written by man, and although he may try to be objective, it follows that a part of some portion of his personal inclinations shine forth from the written pages.

Several collections of Civil War letters have been obtained which deal with soldiers and their families of Ulster County. These have been placed in the collection which we hope some day will have its own area for display.

The study of local and state history was defended by many sources during 1963. Due to a study being made by a Committee on the Social Studies, Albany, State Education Department, a recommendation was made that a change be made in subject matter in grade seven as well as other areas.

The move to take New York State history out of the seventh grade, or at least give only a portion of the year to it, was firmly objected to by many people. Certainly a study of local and state government is necessary as well as an appreciation of New York State's role in the American heritage.

At least for the time being, the subject will be left as it is except for a portion of the year being spent on a study of Canada. This appears to be logical as one cannot study New York State very well without taking Candada into consideration.

Two Leaders Retire

Two of the long time leaders in the county political field decided not to run for election. Both Jessie McHugh, chairman of the Board of Supervisors and Supervisor of Shawangunk, and John J. Gaffney, supervisor of Town of Lloyd and minority leader, have retired. This of course does not mean that they are out of the political picture as both have been vital leaders and certainly will continue to work for the good of the county.

A collection of over 200 items dealing with New Paltz, and the Bevier family has been photostated and sent here from Rutgers, New Brunswick, N. J.

A History of the Martyrs, dated 1582, in the French language was found and is now back in New Paltz. It was the gift of Miss Onnette I. Young. It had originally belonged to Jean Hasbrouck, one of the 12 patentees. Several other 16th and 17th Century books were given at the same time. One was a 17th Century book, John Eliot, Apostle to the Indians.

New Paltz, has been designated as one of the five outstanding historical sites in America by the Department of the Interior as a result of the National Historic Sites Program. The presentation of the plaque will take place in 1964.

Cites Newspapers

From the vast amount of material collected over the past year for the files it would seem that 1963 was one of the most active years in relation to historical items that newspapers of Ulster County have undertaken. The press has been most generous with space for historical material.

The newspapers of Ulster County are as follows: Kingston Daily Freeman, New Paltz Independent and Times, New Paltz News, Wallkill Valley World, Kingstonian, Mid-Hudson Post, Ellenville Journal, Ellenville Press, Woodstock Record-Press, Ulster County Townsman, Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties Post, Highland News.

It is the duty of an historian to know where the records of a county are available. During the past year a survey was made which is at least an initial step toward giving a listing as to where the early records may be found.

We have a very fine group of them in our County Clerk's Office and the Surrogate's Office. Others may be found in the holdings of the New York Historical Society, New York Public Library (rare documents room), New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Court of Appeals, Albany.

Has Catalogued Records

During the past year Dr. Kenneth Scott of Queens College, Queens, obtained the large wooden chest of old records from the County Clerk's Office. These have been catalogued and are being put on microfilm. Just recently Dr. Scott had an article published in National Genealogical Society Quarterly, Washington, D. C., entitled Freeholders and Inhabitants of Newburgh, New York, 1767. Newburgh was a part of Ulster County until 1797. The list was found in the wooden chest.

Approximately 1,700 people attended Stone House Day at New Paltz. Over the summer season the number of people signing the register at such places as The Senate House, Kingston, The Memorial House, New Paltz, Locust Lawn, Town of Gardiner, Bevier House Marbletown, has shown a marked increase over 1962. Many of the people stay in Ulster County two or three days.

The work of some of our libraries is very noteworthy. The Ellenville Library is an excellent example of what can be done of an historical nature and could serve as a model for all to take note of as it has developed a successful method of preserving history. Of course most of our libraries are too small to carry on much activity. Storage space is at a minimum.

Ulster County Historical Society has done an excellent piece of work in restoring the old kitchen of the Bevier House at Marbletown to its original character.

Sponsored by County

The book put out on the Civil War, Banners and Bugles by Will Plank and sponsored by the county has been well received.

Miss Pauline Hommell's book, Tenting Tonight, will be off the press in 1964. This is a book dealing with memoirs of the Civil War. Miss Hommell is of the Town of Saugerties.

Harry Rigby has been giving his short historical talks on the radio during each week. He is sponsored by IBM. These articles may be obtained by writing to Rigby at the Kingston station.

An article that appears in the Kingston Daily Freeman by Sophie Miller each day has been of great value. It both intrigues and educates the people as to the history of Kingston and in some instances the county.

Societies Are Active

New Paltz and its Huguenot Historical Society has been very active and now number well over 1,000 members. The work of this group is devoted first to preservation. Naturally records and genealogy is a large part of the work done to augment the first purpose of the Society.

The year of 1963 was especially important from the historian's point of view mainly because of the increased interest on the part of the people in their history. Perhaps this was in part due to the increasingly active part some of the county leaders are taking in such matters.

As we move forward, making history available to the public by means of public addresses, trips to other parts of the state and nation, preservation of records, publication and increased vigor in telling the story of our people to the thousands who visit us personally and through correspondence, it is evident that our goals are being achieved.

Each historian has his or her own interpretation as to just what the work entails, but we will all agree that one definite must is to know where the resources are to be found for each and every person who asks for help.

Stressed By Course

People are becoming increasingly conscious of the fact that in order to understand the problems and events of today we must have a knowledge of the past. This fact is made clear by a recent inservice course for teachers. It was a course in county government. John Marquard, deputy clerk, Board of Supervisors, helped the historian tremendously as he had a marvelous background in county government.

He was able to explain the growth of county government and showed how we must first comprehend the problems of yesterday and how they were dealt with in order to be able to deal with the problems of today.

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy on November 22, 1963, and the subsequent events, especially the funeral made us especially aware that history can repeat itself and in order to understand the affairs of our present day, one must have an appreciation of the historical background. Certainly our young people learned more history as a result of the television coverage and newspaper accounts than could be obtained from text books used over a number of weeks.

We need working historians. The value obtained is not all of an historical nature, but can be utilized for public relations and increased revenue for the towns and county.

It is hoped that 1964 will prove to be a year in which we equal the many endeavors of 1963 and with good fortune exceed them.

S. D. Could Do It

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — The South Dakota House passed by 52-18 Friday a resolution that would ratify the federal anti-poll tax amendment.

The resolution went to the Senate, where action is not expected before Monday.

Cary Grant Envy Of Hollywood - Celebrates 60th

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cary Grant was 60 years old Saturday. All of us should look so god at 60. Or even 40.

The screen's master of light comedy is the envy of every leading man in town—from 20 up. The years only seem to make him more handsome—and more Cary Grantish.

Health faddists continually beseech him for the secret of his Ponce de Leon formula.

"Once a research bureau sent me a whole questionnaire to fill out on how I kept looking youthful. I answered: 'I don't do a damn thing,'" Grant said.

But he does.

Cary doesn't smoke or drink. He's not a heavy eater. Mentally, he is the most youthful star in town. He's enthusiastic about his work — and enthusiastic about an Englishman named Archie Leach, who became Gary Grant.

"I try to keep my mind youthful in ideas," he said in an interview.

"I learn something new each year. In fact, I learn something new each day, if only not to behave the way I did the day before.

"I'm old enough to admit that I'm ignorant about a lot of things. Very few young people will admit to any ignorance."

For exercise, Gary swims and rides horses.

To Boost Morale

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China announced today it will launch a campaign to boost the morale of the Red Chinese army so that it will not fall into the "bourgeois way of life."

The broadcast did not indicate if the campaign resulted from new unrest among Red China's 2.5 million troops. The troops nearly revolted in 1960 against the policies of the Red regime.

Are you driving your child to poor health?

Remember when youngsters walked to school, ran errands, and got the exercise they needed? If parents insisted on more walking—and less riding—our youngsters would benefit. The automobile, however, is only one factor that deprives them of activity. Television is another. The average high school student now spends 15 to 30 inactive hours a week watching it. These are some of the reasons why all schools should have a daily period of planned, supervised, vigorous activity for all boys and girls. Find out if your school gives sufficient time to your child's physical development. For information about a program that many schools have adopted, write for the free leaflet offered by the President's Council on Physical Fitness, Washington 25, D. C.

Mother's Big Helper

As more and more women have chosen to face childbirth without the aid of anesthetizing drugs, there has been a corresponding increase in the number of mothers who want their husbands with them "to share their happiness at this important mometn of their lives together."

So says Dr. Robert A. Bradley, a Denver obstetrician and consultant to the International Childbirth Education Association, Inc. He agrees with the starry-eyed mothers that their husbands can provide closer spiritual rapport if taken off the floor-walking circuit and placed directly at the scene of blessed eventfulness.

Writing recently in Medical Tribune, Dr. Bradley declared that "probably nothing is as reassuring to the inexperienced, anxious woman than the knowledge that her husband is invited to be with her throughout" the occasion.

Rather than being "in the way," the husband can make himself useful around the place, running errands, holding cold cloths to the maternal brow, administering back rubs, fetching ice.

There were those who thought it would never work, who predicted various troubles. Experience has proved them wrong, Dr. Bradley says. Husbands don't "get in the way," but sit where they are told to. They don't get sick or faint. Nor do they "contaminate" the premises; they wear white scrub suit, cap and mask like hospital or TB veterans.

Perhaps most useful of all, many a husband has brought a feeling of relaxation and security to his wife's ordeal. "Jovial" remarks pass between couples, Dr. Bradley notes, that "create an atmosphere of wholesome joy."

So successful has the method turned out, Dr. Bradley says, that many husbands "feel their presence to be just as necessary at the termination of pregnancy as it was at the origin."

Organization Serving Youth

Jaycee Week to Observe 44th Anniversary of Work

The Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with 4,000 national chapters and chapters throughout the world will celebrate Jan. 20-26 as Jaycee week. It is the 44th anniversary of the foundling of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce since it began at St. Louis in January, 1920. At that time the membership totaled around 4,000, it has expanded to a figure well in excess of 300,000 members to date.

The Junior Chamber resulted from the budding of a very simple but valid idea: The thought of utilizing the young manpower of the community for public service, with a firm conviction that youth is not a handicap for participation in municipal, state and national affairs.

60 in Local Unit

The Kingston chapter of the United Junior Chamber of Commerce has a membership of 60 young men. The officers are: Charles Carpenter, president; External Vice President, Abe Trowbridge; Internal Vice President, James Berlew; Treasurer, Robert Brown; Secretary, Angelo Fasano; State Director, James Bishopp; Past President, Robert Carlzon; Internal Director Robert Kelder; External Directors, Herbert Shein, Frank McMahon and Thomas VanTassell.

Primarily, the Jaycees are an organization serving youth. During the course of a year, several activities are promoted toward this end. During the past year, such programs as junior golf, little league, Easter egg hunt, Junior tennis, scouting, teenage talent have been offered to the youth of the Kingston area.

Activities are also slated which are aimed at the community as a whole. The traffic safety program and the Miss New York State pageant fall in this category. In addition special Christmas activities are planned. They include a Shopping tour for underprivileged children, caroling, and bell ringing for the Salvation Army.

Non-Profit Group

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is a non-profit institution. All activities are carried on through membership dues and an annual money maker. This year's money maker is in the form of a "Gourmet's Guide" under the chairmanship of Robert Brown. Thus far, the sale of the Gourmet Guide has been met enthusiastically in the Kingston area, and a very limited number of books remain available.

The Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce meets on the last Wednesday of every month, at the Governor Clinton. Any young man between the ages of 21 through 35 interested in this type of service to the community is welcome to attend.

Today in History

Today is Monday, January 20th, the 20th day of 1964. There are 346 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1767, death came to the controller-general of France, Etienne de Silhouette. He had demanded such sacrifices for taxes from the nobles that "silouette" became the household word for a figure reduced to its simplest form.

On this date:

In 1500, Brazil was discovered by Vincente Yanex Pinzon.

In 1801, John Marshall was appointed chief justice of the United States.

In 1911, Philanthropist Andrew Carnegie gave an additional $10 million to the Carnegie Institute to increase his total donation to $125 million.

In 1947, U.S. Secretary of State James Byrnes signed new peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania—all allies of defeated Germany during World War Two.

In 1949, President Harry Truman was inaugurated for his first elected term.

Ten years ago—The Netherlands became the first nation to ratify the European Defense Community Treaty.

Five years ago — Democrats Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts offered Congress a labor-management reform bill which he said was aimed at International Teamsters Union head James Hoffa, among others.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

A little newspaper was sent to me from Columbus, Nebraska, called "Collector's News". I had seen it before at antique shows. It contains some 25 pages of five columns each, of items, wanted or for sale, from all over the states. Anyone reading this paper will no doubt find that the owners have at least several items wanted, or for sale. Museums look for and sell items in this paper. One item asks for "original manuscripts, letters, papers, autographs, books of Dr. Hugo Eckener, German dirigible designer."

I know how folks are when they move or clean an attic or cellar, and look at a box of what they suppose is junk, and say "What do we need this for?" And how they would be surprised to learn that most of that junk is worth something to someone else in the country. I notice there is even an Horatio Alger club, and those paper books, so popular in our day, are now worth something, I understand. History is stressed in their editorials, and articles, and many of their ads. One reads, "I will take photographs of Virginia churches, historical buildings, bridge, scenes, court houses, railroad stations, etc." No doubt many local photographers are doing just that around here, with so many of our historic sites coming down constantly. There is a page for stamp collectors. Various old musical instruments, like "a Spanish pushcart hurdy gurdy with two extra rolls $225" for sale. I cannot imagine where they find all the Indian relics for sale, like: "assortment of 100 crudely made spearheads, knives, and arrowheads $10.00." You can buy an 1876 Steinway 4x7 foot piano, or Edison cylinder phonograph and records.

The readers send in pictures, like one of an ox team used in the early pioneer days in Kenmare, N. D. Driver, an old timer then, holds the reins, the wooden wheels of the ox cart and the ox-harness can be seen. I see someone is looking for comic books before 1950. You name it, someone is looking for it, so it seems.

I wonder how many remember our magnificent, many turreted Rondout Presbyterian Church on the corner of Wurts and Abeel Streets, which was founded July 9, 1833. In my time, I remember the pastor the Rev. Charles G. Ellis. Miss Elsa Hiltebrant was organist, and James Draffen was sexton. The church was destroyed by vandals and then by wreckers. The beautiful rose windows, were broken one by one. There is a gasoline station on the corner now.

The reason this comes to my mind now is because in the aforementioned paper, there is an illustrated article on the Carolina Museum, in the historic heart of the Carolinas, Lancaster, S. C., which opened on March 29, 1962, on the 100th anniversary of the original dedication of the building, which was formerly the First Presbyterian Church of Lancaster. This church has one turret, and is otherwise much smaller than ours.

Let me describe this Presbyterian Church which the people of Lancaster made into a proud Carolina Museum. "This historic church was the first in this area to be built of brick, and they were made by hand. The walls are 16 inches thick. The interior remains substantially the same, and has been preserved as it was originally designed. A highly-arched vestibule at the front entrance...the building reflects a style which is fast disappearing from the American scene." There is much more on the history and architecture of this church, and the historic material being received there for display, and now known as the "only general historic Museum in the Carolinas" with a warm welcome to all.

29 Finish First Phase of Course In Food Service

Twenty-nine students have just completed the first phase of a new state-sponsored on-the-job training program in the food services, Dr. Paul H. Hoch, commissioner of Mental Hygiene, announced today.

In operation at Hudson River State Hospital Food Services Training School, Poughkeepsie, the program was developed by the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene in cooperation with the New York State Department of Labor and is one of the first state-sponsored programs to be established under the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962. A federal grant of $200,487 will finance this program.

According to Mrs. Katherine E. Flack, director of nutrition services for the Department of Mental Hygiene, the program is designed to: provide inexperienced unemployed persons with sufficient training to qualify them for direct employment as assistant cooks; increase the efficiency of presently employed assistant cooks with minimum skills; upgrade presently employed kitchen helpers to the position of assistant cook.

Offered to 120 persons (half of whom were unemployed), this course consists of six months' training—three months at Hudson River State Hospital, which will include both theory and practical work, and three months of field experience at another institution. Four courses will be given a year at the Food Services Training School.

In order to provide maximum employment opportunity for each trainee, the unemployed persons selected are, for the most part, from areas in which state hospitals are located. The number recruited from each area is proportional to present and future employment needs of the Department of Mental Hygiene as well as other public and private institutions in that area.

There are at present 60 assistant cook positions vacant in state hospitals, 30 of which will be filled by the unemployed completing the course. Employment opportunities also exist for trained kitchen personnel in other government institutions and in private agencies with similar kitchen operations.

The unemployed selected to participate in this program came from a variety of former occupations, ranging from truck driver to food products salesman.

The initial section of the training includes courses in orientation to nutrition services in mental hospitals, nutrition education, foods and equipment, food production and service, and food preparation. Taught by a fully qualified cook who has been trained in instructional methods, these courses combine theory and practice.

In the field experience phase, also supervised by suitable instructors, the student receives an opportunity to put what he has learned into practice by assisting in the kitchen of another institution.

Health for All

Mother's Big Helper

As more and more women have chosen to face childbirth without the aid of anesthetizing drugs, there has been a corresponding increase in the number of mothers who want their husbands with them "to share their happiness at this important mometn of their lives together."

So says Dr. Robert A. Bradley, a Denver obstetrician and consultant to the International Childbirth Education Association, Inc. He agrees with the starry-eyed mothers that their husbands can provide closer spiritual rapport if taken off the floor-walking circuit and placed directly at the scene of blessed eventfulness.

Writing recently in Medical Tribune, Dr. Bradley declared that "probably nothing is as reassuring to the inexperienced, anxious woman than the knowledge that her husband is invited to be with her throughout" the occasion.

Rather than being "in the way," the husband can make himself useful around the place, running errands, holding cold cloths to the maternal brow, administering back rubs, fetching ice.

There were those who thought it would never work, who predicted various troubles. Experience has proved them wrong, Dr. Bradley says. Husbands don't "get in the way," but sit where they are told to. They don't get sick or faint. Nor do they "contaminate" the premises; they wear white scrub suit, cap and mask like hospital or TB veterans.

Perhaps most useful of all, many a husband has brought a feeling of relaxation and security to his wife's ordeal. "Jovial" remarks pass between couples, Dr. Bradley notes, that "create an atmosphere of wholesome joy."

So successful has the method turned out, Dr. Bradley says, that many husbands "feel their presence to be just as necessary at the termination of pregnancy as it was at the origin."

Organization Serving Youth

Jaycee Week to Observe 44th Anniversary of Work

The Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce, in conjunction with 4,000 national chapters and chapters throughout the world will celebrate Jan. 20-26 as Jaycee week. It is the 44th anniversary of the foundling of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce since it began at St. Louis in January, 1920. At that time the membership totaled around 4,000, it has expanded to a figure well in excess of 300,000 members to date.

The Junior Chamber resulted from the building of a very simple but valid idea: The thought of utilizing the young manpower of the community for public service, with a firm conviction that youth is not a handicap for participation in municipal, state and national affairs.

60 in Local Unit

The Kingston chapter of the United Junior Chamber of Commerce has a membership of 60 young men. The officers are: Charles Carpenter, president; External Vice President, Abe Trowbridge; Internal Vice President, James Berlew; Treasurer, Robert Brown; Secretary, Angelo Fasano; State Director, James Bishopp; Past President, Robert Carlzon; Internal Director Robert Kelder; External Directors, Herbert Shein, Frank McMahon and Thomas VanTassell.

Primarily, the Jaycees are an organization serving youth. During the course of a year, several activities are promoted toward this end. During the past year, such programs as junior golf, little league, Easter egg hunt, Junior tennis, scouting, teenage talent have been offered to the youth of the Kingston area.

Activities are also slated which are aimed at the community as a whole. The traffic safety program and the Miss New York State pageant fall in this category. In addition special Christmas activities are planned. They include a Shopping tour for underprivileged children, caroling, and bell ringing for the Salvation Army.

Non-Profit Group

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is a non-profit institution. All activities are carried on through membership dues and an annual money maker. This year's money maker is in the form of a "Gourmet's Guide" under the chairmanship of Robert Brown. Thus far, the sale of the Gourmet Guide has been met enthusiastically in the Kingston area, and a very limited number of books remain available.

The Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce meets on the last Wednesday of every month, at the Governor Clinton. Any young man between the ages of 21 through 35 interested in this type of service to the community is welcome to attend.

Today in History

Today is Monday, January 20th, the 20th day of 1964. There are 346 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1767, death came to the controller-general of France, Etienne de Silhouette. He had demanded such sacrifices for taxes from the nobles that "silouette" became the household word for a figure reduced to its simplest form.

On this date:

In 1500, Brazil was discovered by Vincente Yanex Pinzon.

In 1801, John Marshall was appointed chief justice of the United States.

In 1911, Philanthropist Andrew Carnegie gave an additional $10 million to the Carnegie Institute to increase his total donation to $125 million.

In 1947, U.S. Secretary of State James Byrnes signed new peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania—all allies of defeated Germany during World War Two.

In 1949, President Harry Truman was inaugurated for his first elected term.

Ten years ago—The Netherlands became the first nation to ratify the European Defense Community Treaty.

Five years ago — Democrats Senator John Kennedy of Massachusetts offered Congress a labor-management reform bill which he said was aimed at International Teamsters Union head James Hoffa, among others.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

A little newspaper was sent to me from Columbus, Nebraska, called "Collector's News". I had seen it before at antique shows. It contains some 25 pages of five columns each, of items, wanted or for sale, from all over the states. Anyone reading this paper will no doubt find that the owners have at least several items wanted, or for sale. Museums look for and sell items in this paper. One item asks for "original manuscripts, letters, papers, autographs, books of Dr. Hugo Eckener, German dirigible designer."

I know how folks are when they move or clean an attic or cellar, and look at a box of what they suppose is junk, and say "What do we need this for?" And how they would be surprised to learn that most of that junk is worth something to someone else in the country. I notice there is even an Horatio Alger club, and those paper books, so popular in our day, are now worth something, I understand. History is stressed in their editorials, and articles, and many of their ads. One reads, "I will take photographs of Virginia churches, historical buildings, bridge, scenes, court houses, railroad stations, etc." No doubt many local photographers are doing just that around here, with so many of our historic sites coming down constantly. There is a page for stamp collectors. Various old musical instruments, like "a Spanish pushcart hurdy gurdy with two extra rolls $225" for sale. I cannot imagine where they find all the Indian relics for sale, like: "assortment of 100 crudely made spearheads, knives, and arrowheads $10.00." You can buy an 1876 Steinway 4x7 foot piano, or Edison cylinder phonograph and records.

The readers send in pictures, like one of an ox team used in the early pioneer days in Kenmare, N. D. Driver, an old timer then, holds the reins, the wooden wheels of the ox cart and the ox-harness can be seen. I see someone is looking for comic books before 1950. You name it, someone is looking for it, so it seems.

I wonder how many remember our magnificent, many turreted Rondout Presbyterian Church on the corner of Wurts and Abeel Streets, which was founded July 9, 1833. In my time, I remember the pastor the Rev. Charles G. Ellis. Miss Elsa Hiltebrant was organist, and James Draffen was sexton. The church was destroyed by vandals and then by wreckers. The beautiful rose windows, were broken one by one. There is a gasoline station on the corner now.

The reason this comes to my mind now is because in the aforementioned paper, there is an illustrated article on the Carolina Museum, in the historic heart of the Carolinas, Lancaster, S. C., which opened on March 29, 1962, on the 100th anniversary of the original dedication of the building, which was formerly the First Presbyterian Church of Lancaster. This church has one turret, and is otherwise much smaller than ours.

Let me describe this Presbyterian Church which the people of Lancaster made into a proud Carolina Museum. "This historic church was the first in this area to be built of brick, and they were made by hand. The walls are 16 inches thick. The interior remains substantially the same, and has been preserved as it was originally designed. A highly-arched vestibule at the front entrance...the building reflects a style which is fast disappearing from the American scene." There is much more on the history and architecture of this church, and the historic material being received there for display, and now known as the "only general historic Museum in the Carolinas" with a warm welcome to all.

29 Finish First Phase of Course In Food Service

Twenty-nine students have just completed the first phase of a new state-sponsored on-the-job training program in the food services, Dr. Paul H. Hoch, commissioner of Mental Hygiene, announced today.

In operation at Hudson River State Hospital Food Services Training School, Poughkeepsie, the program was developed by the New York State Department of Mental Hygiene in cooperation with the New York State Department of Labor and is one of the first state-sponsored programs to be established under the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962. A federal grant of $200,487 will finance this program.

According to Mrs. Katherine E. Flack, director of nutrition services for the Department of Mental Hygiene, the program is designed to: provide inexperienced unemployed persons with sufficient training to qualify them for direct employment as assistant cooks; increase the efficiency of presently employed assistant cooks with minimum skills; upgrade presently employed kitchen helpers to the position of assistant cook.

Offered to 120 persons (half of whom were unemployed), this course consists of six months' training—three months at Hudson River State Hospital, which will include both theory and practical work, and three months of field experience at another institution. Four courses will be given a year at the Food Services Training School.

In order to provide maximum employment opportunity for each trainee, the unemployed persons selected are, for the most part, from areas in which state hospitals are located. The number recruited from each area is proportional to present and future employment needs of the Department of Mental Hygiene as well as other public and private institutions in that area.

There are at present 60 assistant cook positions vacant in state hospitals, 30 of which will be filled by the unemployed completing the course. Employment opportunities also exist for trained kitchen personnel in other government institutions and in private agencies with similar kitchen operations.

The unemployed selected to participate in this program came from a variety of former occupations, ranging from truck driver to food products salesman.

The initial section of the training includes courses in orientation to nutrition services in mental hospitals, nutrition education, foods and equipment, food production and service, and food preparation. Taught by a fully qualified cook who has been trained in instructional methods, these courses combine theory and practice.

In the field experience phase, also supervised by suitable instructors, the student receives an opportunity to put what he has learned into practice by assisting in the kitchen of another institution.

Boston Symphony and Cardinal Cushing Participate in Musical, Religious Tribute

The civic and religious leaders of Boston and Massachusetts honored the late John F. Kenneday Sunday, just one day short of the third anniversary of his inauguration as the 35th President of the United States. At 10 a. m. in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf, performed Mozart's Requiem in D minor, K. 626 during a Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston.

The service was attended by Mrs. John F. Kennedy, other members of the Kennedy family, a large number of federal, state, and local government officials, and invited guests.

Sunday's musical and religious service stemmed from a suggestion to Cardinal Cushing by Henry B. Cabot, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Trustees, that a memorial service in which the Orchestra would participate be held in Boston at an appropriate time. The Cardinal agreed and proposed that he celebrate a Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem in conjunction with the music. Mr. Leinsdorf selected the Mozart Requiem, a composition unfinished at the untimely death of the young composer, as the most appropriate music. In this instance the Mozzart Requiem is symbolic of the unfinished work of President Kennedy.

The combined civic, musical, and religious tribute to the late President reflects the strong feelings of devotion of his native city and state. Speaking for the Boston Symphony , Orchestra, Mr. Cabot said, "The Orchestra is extremelly grateful to a host of people who have aided us in making this tribute the finest possible. Cardinal Cushing and members of the clergy have been of very great assistance to Mr. Leinsdorf, our Orchestra, and staff in the preparation for the service. We are most grateful to them.

"This is an occasion for which we have received the utmost of cooperation from all quarters," Mr. Cabot continued. "To the musicians, singers and stage hands' unions, the Seven Arts Corporation, the National Broadcasting Company, RCA Victor Records, the George H. Ellis Company, and the ladies and gentlemen of the press media the Boston Symphony Orchestra extends its deepest thanks."

Erich Leinsdorf invited Saramae Endich, soprano; Eunie Alberts, contralto; Nicholas Di Virgilio, tenor; and Mac Morgan, baritone to be t e soloists at Sunday's service. The chorus consisted of 50 members each from three Boston choruses — the Chorus pro Musica, Alfred Nash Patterson, director; the Harvard-Radcliffe Choral Society, Elliot Forbest, director; and the New England Conservatory Chorus, Lorna Cooke deVaron, director. The members of the Boston Symphony Orchester, Mr. Leinsdorf, the soloists, the chorus, and all concerned have contributed their services on this occasion.

Clothes Poll

By HELEN HENNESSY
(Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor)

A clothes closet can be a time-saver if it's properly organized. It can cause valuable minutes to be wasted if it's cluttered. The truth of this little homily was brought home to me the hard way.

I was embarrassingly late for an important engagement because I couldn't find the purse I'd planned to carry. It was buried under Christmas packages, hat boxes and other purses —all of which came tumbling off the closet shelf. Even the purse that hit me on the head wasn't the one I wanted to use.

The next day found me at the notion counter, where for a few well-spent dollars I bought closet accessories that have proved to be the neatest timesavers I've ever seen.

My first purchase was a combination hanging shoe and handbag holder. Only 10 inches wide, it can store 18 pairs of shoes and four handbags.

Instead of several small garment bags, I bought a suit bag and one matching jumbo bag that holds 30 garments without crushing even one. The clothes are easy to get at, for the bags open on three sides.

These storage containers are all transparent so that I can see any item at a glance, except for one chintz bag I use for furs. Plastic doesn't permit fur to breathe.

Now all that's on my closet shelf are my neatly lined-up hatboxes. And what a satisfying sight a tidy closet can be.

If I ever get another lump on my head, it won't be from a falling purse.

Dear L. D. — Never use polish on alligator. Just wipe the shoes with a damp cloth. The leather retains its own natural luster and doesn't need polishing.

Q—"I have a white fake fur coat. It was inexpensive, but it's good looking. It gets soiled quickly, yet each time I have it cleaned it costs me nearly $10 because my cleaner says it must be cleaned in the same manner as fur. Is this true? If so, it seems I made a silly purchase." —Florence J.

Dear Florence J.—Fake fur can be cleaned by the ordinary dry-cleaning process, but it may not look as good as it would if cleaned with the process for fur. Any white outer garment uses up a fortune in cleaning bills and should only be bought for occasional wear unless one has money to burn.

RELATIVES VISIT MOTHER-IN-LAW

Q: My husband's mother came to live with us after my father-in-law died. She has two other sons and a daughter, all married. Quite often on a Sunday, they come to visit her. She is quite elderly and doesn't go out very much. I like to go out with my husband on Sunday as that is the only day we really have to go anywhere. But when he knows they are coming he will not go out because he feels it would be discourteous to do so and our absence would be taken to mean that we do not care for their company. As they really come to see their mother, I don't see why it is necessary for us to stay home and entertain them and that it is perfectly all right to leave them alone with their mother. I would very much like to have your opinion on this.

A: I think you should stay home occasionally when they come, but on other Sundays, you can explain that you and your husband want to go visiting or go to a concert, or wherever, and that you hope they won't mind your leaving them to be entertined by their mother.

When One Is Toasted

Q: As is customary in this company, I'm being given a dinner when I retire, which will be next month. I'd like to know what is correct when the guests rise to drink a toast to me. Should I rise too or remain seated?

A: You remain seated until the others have all drunk the toast, then you rise, bow, smile, say "Thank you" and then sit down again.

Eating an Olive

Q: What is the proper way to help oneself to an olive and then what is the proper way to eat it?

A: Help yourself with your fingers. If it is a big olive, you eat is in three or four bites. If it is a small stuffed one, you put it in your mouth whole.

Home Extension Service News

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent, submits the following article on feeding teenagers:

You can expect higher food bills when you have teenagers to feed. They need a larger quantity of protective foods to meet their nutritional needs.

Most parents are aware that it costs more to feed a teenage boy than his father, and almost as much to feed a teenage girl as her dad. But teenagers and their parents may not realize that diets high in protein, calcium and vitamin D are necessary to take care of the growth spurts that occur during adolescence. A boy's nutritional needs are higher from 16 to 19 than at any other age. The only time a girl's needs are greater than during adolescence (13 to 15 years of age) is during child bearing.

The diets of many teenagers need improving. If you have teenagers, encourage them to start the day with a good breakfast — citrus fruit, cereal and milk or toast, egg and milk. If your son or daughter dislikes traditional breakfast foods substitute a food they do like rather than letting them go without breakfast. An eggnog and roll or hamburger on a bun could easily be served for breakfast.

Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is the nutrient most frequently lacking in teenage diets. This is often the result of the common habit of skipping breakfast and not eating any citrus fruit or other food high in vitamin C. Calcium, thiamine, and iron are frequently low in the diets of teenage girls. Calcium is low when teenagers do not drink the required amount of milk; some teenagers believe that milk is fattening and so omit it from their diets.

Encourage teenagers to eat a variety of foods each day, using the basic four groups as a guide. Each day include at least 4 cups of milk; 2 servings of meat, fish, poultry, or eggs; 4 servings of whole grain or enriched cereals and bread; and 4 servings of fruits and vegetables, including one citrus fruit and one deep green or yellow vegetable.

Provide snacks for your teenagers that include vital foods — fruits, vegetables, protein-rich foods, milk. Eliminate snacks that are high in calories and low in nutritive value. Unconventional meal patterns should not worry parents as long as the important recommended amounts of nutrients are eaten daily. For the active and unusual lives teenagers lead, many small meals a day may provide the same nutrients and hold-over energy if the foods are chosen wisely.

Boston Symphony and Cardinal Cushing Participate in Musical, Religious Tribute

The civic and religious leaders of Boston and Massachusetts honored the late John F. Kenneday Sunday, just one day short of the third anniversary of his inauguration as the 35th President of the United States. At 10 a. m. in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf, performed Mozart's Requiem in D minor, K. 626 during a Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston.

The service was attended by Mrs. John F. Kennedy, other members of the Kennedy family, a large number of federal, state, and local government officials, and invited guests.

Sunday's musical and religious service stemmed from a suggestion to Cardinal Cushing by Henry B. Cabot, president of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Trustees, that a memorial service in which the Orchestra would participate be held in Boston at an appropriate time. The Cardinal agreed and proposed that he celebrate a Solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem in conjunction with the music. Mr. Leinsdorf selected the Mozart Requiem, a composition unfinished at the untimely death of the young composer, as the most appropriate music. In this instance the Mozzart Requiem is symbolic of the unfinished work of President Kennedy.

The combined civic, musical, and religious tribute to the late President reflects the strong feelings of devotion of his native city and state. Speaking for the Boston Symphony , Orchestra, Mr. Cabot said, "The Orchestra is extremely grateful to a host of people who have aided us in making this tribute the finest possible. Cardinal Cushing and members of the clergy have been of very great assistance to Mr. Leinsdorf, our Orchestra, and staff in the preparation for the service. We are most grateful to them.

"This is an occasion for which we have received the utmost of cooperation from all quarters," Mr. Cabot continued. "To the musicians, singers and stage hands' unions, the Seven Arts Corporation, the National Broadcasting Company, RCA Victor Records, the George H. Ellis Company, and the ladies and gentlemen of the press media the Boston Symphony Orchestra extends its deepest thanks."

Erich Leinsdorf invited Saramae Endich, soprano; Eunie Alberts, contralto; Nicholas Di Virgilio, tenor; and Mac Morgan, baritone to be t e soloists at Sunday's service. The chorus consisted of 50 members each from three Boston choruses — the Chorus pro Musica, Alfred Nash Patterson, director; the Harvard-Radcliffe Choral Society, Elliot Forbest, director; and the New England Conservatory Chorus, Lorna Cooke deVaron, director. The members of the Boston Symphony Orchester, Mr. Leinsdorf, the soloists, the chorus, and all concerned have contributed their services on this occasion.

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent, submits the following article on feeding teenagers:

You can expect higher food bills when you have teenagers to feed. They need a larger quantity of protective foods to meet their nutritional needs.

Most parents are aware that it costs more to feed a teenage boy than his father, and almost as much to feed a teenage girl as her dad. But teenagers and their parents may not realize that diets high in protein, calcium and vitamin D are necessary to take care of the growth spurts that occur during adolescence. A boy's nutritional needs are higher from 16 to 19 than at any other age. The only time a girl's needs are greater than during adolescence (13 to 15 years of age) is during child bearing.

The diets of many teenagers need improving. If you have teenagers, encourage them to start the day with a good breakfast — citrus fruit, cereal and milk or toast, egg and milk. If your son or daughter dislikes traditional breakfast foods substitute a food they do like rather than letting them go without breakfast. An eggnog and roll or hamburger on a bun could easily be served for breakfast.

Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is the nutrient most frequently lacking in teenage diets. This is often the result of the common habit of skipping breakfast and not eating any citrus fruit or other food high in vitamin C. Calcium, thiamine, and iron are frequently low in the diets of teenage girls. Calcium is low when teenagers do not drink the required amount of milk; some teenagers believe that milk is fattening and so omit it from their diets.

Encourage teenagers to eat a variety of foods each day, using the basic four groups as a guide. Each day include at least 4 cups of milk; 2 servings of meat, fish, poultry, or eggs; 4 servings of whole grain or enriched cereals and bread; and 4 servings of fruits and vegetables, including one citrus fruit and one deep green or yellow vegetable.

Provide snacks for your teenagers that include vital foods — fruits, vegetables, protein-rich foods, milk. Eliminate snacks that are high in calories and low in nutritive value. Unconventional meal patterns should not worry parents as long as the important recommended amounts of nutrients are eaten daily. For the active and unusual lives teenagers lead, many small meals a day may provide the same nutrients and hold-over energy if the foods are chosen wisely.

Smith, vice president; Warren H. Knaust, treasurer; Robert Herb, corresponding secretary; the late Arthur L. Smith, sergeant-at-arms, and the late Edgar Smith Sr., historian. Trustees were Calvin C. Cody, Oscar L. Schlenker and Peter P. Stoly. Charles Daley was Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association representative and Roger Ackerman alternate.

The history also mentioned the help received from donors, who gave property, building materials, money and other items needed in the early days of the company.

Mentioned were Mrs. Arline D. Schirmer, who was in attendance, and was recognized as the donor of the land on which the Malden fire station stands. Also, Ulster County and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clum, who donated the West Camp site, and Helfert, who made the first offer of land for the Malden station.

The donation of the huge boathouse at Stroomzeit by the Knaust family, which supplied much of the lumber needed for the firehouses, and the generous donation by Salustiano Berzal of the concrete blocks for Malden Station were also mentioned.

Many Others Gave

These were only among the larger donations. There were many including cement from the various cement plants and building materials from Island Dock Company.

Charter Chief Carpenter presented the traditional gold watch to Luther Emerick, who served as chief during the past year.

Charter President Graf presented commissioner badges to the following: Harold W. Bennett, Moose, Carpenter, and Clarence Gardner, treasurer. Franklin P. Clum, vice president of the company, accepted the pin for John J. Helfert, who was unable to attend due to illness. Helfert is currently president of the volunteers and serves as a commissioner. He was chairman of the anniversary committee. Graf, one of the original commissioners, also received a pin.

Recording Secretary Bennett presented a past chief's pin to Outgoing Chief Emerick and to past presidents in attendance, Graf, William R. Wrosen and Emerick. Past chiefs not present were Emmett Vedder, John J. Prendergast, and Peter Strbich. Past presidents not in attendance were Smith and Teetsel.

Had Two Substitutes

Vice President Clum, substituting for Helfert, introduced Robert A. Snyder, clerk of Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association, who served as toastmaster. Snyder substituted for Supervisor Peter M. Williams, who was unable to attend due to illness.

The Rev. Alvin F. Messersmith, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, West Camp and company chaplain, offered the invocation.

Gardner succeeds Emerick as chief and Ben Notarnicola is assistant chief, a post formerly held by Gardner.

Mid-Calf Length For Evening Gowns Designed by Fontana

By LOUISE HICKMAN
AP Fashion Writer

ROME (AP)—The Rome fashion showings for the 1964 spring and summer moved to a close today with a collection by Gregoriana.

Her presentation marked the end of five days of display that ran without disclosing any definite trend. From her the showings move to Florence for another five days.

Rome designers were almost evenly divided on the question of direction. There were those who liked a slim, trim, often fitted look. And there were those who went for the greater femininity offered by pleats and panels in soft, airy fabrics.

Baratta and Sarli both came out with decidedly mannish silhouettes. Baratta's was modeled along reefer lines. Sarli took George Sand as his inspiration and showed fitted jackets and cuffed trouser-pleated skirts. His accessories, giant straw derbies and ivory-headed canes, added quite a sensational look.

De Luca drew a fine line between feminine and masculine. Though there was nothing fussy about his silhouette, it was soft. He called it a "sweater look" and concentrated on deep v necks filled in with soft, turtleneck blouses, and inverted v seaming that gave a high-waist effect.

Floating panels, swirling pleats, and lots of beaded sparkle were the rule at Gattinoni, Garnett, Tita Rossi and Centinaro.

Senior Seminar Students to Hear Charles Siepmann

This Friday, (January 24), Professor Charles Siepmann will be the guest lecturer at a special dinner-seminar for Ulster County's Senior Seminar students. The students will be joined for this meeting by the school board members of the seven participating schools: Ellenville, Highland, Marlboro, New Paltz, Onteora, Rondout Valley and Wallkill central schools. The evening will begin at 6:30 p. m. at Highland High School with dinner. A regular seminar session will follow.

Professor Siepmann has an extensive background in the field of communications. For 12 years (1927-1939) he held the position of vice president of the British Broadcasting Corporation. From 1939 to 1942 he was a lecturer and advisor to the president a Harvard. During the war he served with the Office of War Information as director of its San Francisco office which was responsible for broadcasting propaganda to China, Japan and Japanese territories. In addition he has been a consultant at various times to the Federal Communications Commission and is the author of several publications including Radio's Second Chance, Radio, Television and Society, and TV and Our School Crisis. For the latter publication he received the Frank Stanton Award for meritorious research in the communications field. At present Professor Siepmann is chairman of the Division of Communications in Education at New York University and consultant to the Fund for the Advancement of Education on developments in educational television throughout the United States.

With this kind of experience and a provocative manner of speaking, Professor Siepmann has been a favorite of seminar students for the past three years. His topic on Friday will be "Straight Thinking and Propaganda" which is likely to involve the students in some lively discussion.

After the seminar, the board members will discuss the seminar program with school administrators over coffee. It is hoped that through an evening of this type, board members will have the opportunity to witness the kinds of experiences provided for the seminar students as well as to meet and talk with the students themselves.

The Senior Seminar program is a joint project of the Secondary Principals' Council of the Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services and the State University College at New Paltz.

For the latter publication he received the Frank Stanton Award for meritorious research in the communications field. At present Professor Siepmann is chairman of the Division of Communications in Education at New York University and consultant to the Fund for the Advancement of Education on developments in educational television throughout the United States.

With this kind of experience and a provocative manner of speaking, Professor Siepmann has been a favorite of seminar students for the past three years. His topic on Friday will be "Straight Thinking and Propaganda" which is likely to involve the students in some lively discussion.

After the seminar, the board members will discuss the seminar program with school administrators over coffee. It is hoped that through an evening of this type, board members will have the opportunity to witness the kinds of experiences provided for the seminar students as well as to meet and talk with the students themselves.

The Senior Seminar program is a joint project of the Secondary Principals' Council of the Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services and the State University College at New Paltz.

Retired Captain Of Troopers Dies, Had Busy Career

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—John P. Ronan, whose State Police career carried him from prison riots to a role in the reform of a scandal-ridden city police force, died Sunday at St. Joseph's Hospital. He was 63 and had suffered a lengthy illness.

Ronan, who retired as a State Police captain last March, served in law-enforcement for more than 40 years.

He gained attention early in his career — in 1929 — when he played a key role in quelling riots by inmates at Auburn State Prison. Ronan, then a sergeant, led a small group of troopers against heavily-armed prisoners.

Ronan, a native of Mechanicville, was placed in command of Troop D, Oneida, in 1944.

In 1955, he was named commander of Western New York's Troop A in Batavia.

In 1958, Gov. W. Averell Harriman ordered Ronan to temporary duty in Utica, where he helped reorganize the Utica Police Department after a series of scandals on the force.

Safety Play Does Its Work

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The Winter Carnival Bridge tournament in St. Paul, Minn., starts the 30th of this month. As usual it promises to be a bang-up affair and any bridge player who finds himself in that part of the country will do well to take in the tournament.

In one of the interesting hands from last year's open pairs, S. J. Widman, who is chairman of this year's tournament committee, played safe for three no-trump and was rewarded with an excellent score when it turned out that a safety play was essential.

After West opened the five of hearts and East played the jack, Mr. Widman decided that the five of hearts was fourth best from a four or five-card suit headed by the ace. He was going to have to rely on the diamond suit for his contract. Give West the king of diamonds and the hand would be a wrap up for at least 10 tricks; give East the king of diamonds and it behooved South to play safe for his contract. So, Mr. Widman let that jack of hearts hold the trick.

East led the nine of hearts. The queen forced West's ace and West established his last two hearts by continuing the suit.

The diamond was finessed and East was in with the king, but he had no way to get his partner into the lead and Mr. Widman wound up with two spades, four diamonds, two clubs and that one heart trick.

Labor Columnist Says Hoffa Aim Is Global Control

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Labor columnist Victor Reisel says Teamster boss James R. Hoffa's "ultimate aim is to become global czar of transportation in the free world."

Hoffa already is "the most powerful non-governmental person in the United States," Reisel said at a news conference Saturday.

The 48-year - old columnist, blinded by acid tossed by an unknown assailant in New York City in 1956, was here to address the annual combined dinner of the Broome County Medical, Dental and Bar Associations.

Riesel, a columnist for the Hall Syndicate, also told his news conference he thinks astronaut John Glenn "ought to stick to space."

Glenn, who has announced he will seek the Senate seat in Ohio now occupied by Democrat Stephen M. Young, "is riding on publicity he got for riding in the sky," Riesel said.

If Glenn "ran for alderman, that would be about right," Riesel added.

Capitol punishment has been abolished by Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Rhode Island and Wisconsin.

JFK Biography, Other Books Are At City Library

New books recently added to the Kingston City Library include Victor Lasky's biography, J.F.K.: the man and the myth. Lasky uses the testimony of other writers to support the thesis that J.F.K. as President is the fulfillment of parental drive. When Lasky speaks in his own voice, the tone is also diapproving.

In the pseudo-esthic by Margaret Halsey, the pseudoethic as a belief that whatever is popular is right is defined by the author. While she tends to scold what she says makes sense.

Idiots first is a new collection of short stories and a scene from a play written by Bernard Malamud. Defeat is the theme in one form or another.

As always Honor L. W. Tracy's wit and tongue are double-edged but in this novel, The first day of Friday, the light touch sometimes gives way to pathos and gloom.

Irving R. Levine writing briskly in Main Street, Italy encompasses such varied themes As the Italian approach to life, the political scene housing, etc.

Paul Gallico's let me not hunger is the story of the remnants of a circus stranded in Spain. A realistic picture of circus life and a moving one of the animals who become distinct individuals.

New books: FICTION; Love, let me not hunger, Gallico; The dauntless and the dreamers, Goshe; The innocent curate, Leary; Idiots first, Malmund; The bender, Scott; The first day of Friday, Tracy.

Buffalo Cagers Decision State University Quintet, 58-57

Sadler Misses Foul Shot After Final Buzzer

Poor foul shooting cost the State University Hawks Saturday as they lost a 58-57 heart throbber to the visiting Buffalo State quintet.

Coach Dough Sheppard's cagers had a 26-23 margin from the floor but made only five charity flips in 14 chances.

Dependable Fred Sadler had a chance to knot the game when he stepped to the foul line after time had elapsed. However, he missed the free throw and the Hawks suffered their seventh loss in nine games.

Shot Is Missed

Prior to the last second foul try, the Hawks had another chance to win. They were in possession of the ball with seven seconds to play. Sadler took a shot and it hit the rim. Two rebounds failed to go in before the final foul.

Sadler paced the Hawks with 20 points while John Allen added 15. Four of the Buffalo starters were in double figures.

The Hawks will be idle until Friday when they host the powerful Philadelphia College of Textile five. The visitors are a small college eastern power and are having another banner season.

Powell's Pass Tops AFL East

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Art Powell's ability to get a couple of steps ahead of a life-long buddy propelled the West to a 27-24 victory over the East and a perfect record in three American Football League All-Star games.

Powell's climactic act came Sunday after the West had driven to the East two in the closing minutes, trailing only 24-20 after overcoming a 24-3 halftime deficit. Including an East offside, the West had five tries to get the ball over. The East defense held.

Only 1:29 remained.

The East, however, was unable to move and was forced to punt, and the West took over on the East 43.

Only 1:05 remained.

Quarterback Cotton Davidson fired a short pass to Lance Alworth. Complete. Davidson fired a short one to Powell, his Oakland teammate. Complete. Davidson finally missed one, then called Powell's play again—on a deep pattern this time.

Powell raced full speed into the left corner of the end zone, outdistancing defender Willie West of Buffalo, and hauled in the 25-yard aerial for the winning touchdown.

The Decisive Play

Only 43 seconds remained.

Despite the spectacular ending, both West Coach Sid Gillman of San Diego and East Coach Mike Holovak of Boston pointed to a 64-yard touchdown run by San Diego's Keith Lincoln in the third quarter as the decisive play in the West's third victory in three All-Star games.

Only Jim Fraser's field goal had put them on the scoreboard until Lincoln's run.

The East had built a 24-3 halftime lead as Boston's Babe Parilli completed 12 of 16 passes for 142 yards and two touchdowns. One went 12 yards to Boston's Larry Garron and the other three to New York's Bill Mathis. Buffalo's Cookie Gilchrist scored the other TD on a one-yard smash.

Lincoln, voted the outstanding back of the game, then got the West rolling. Tobin Rote of San Diego hit Charger teammate Alworth with a 51-yard pass that set up a five-yard touchdown run by Paul Lowe of San Diego. Another Fraser field goal made it 24-20.

That put the spotlight on Powell.

Celtics Find New Way to Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's power-laden Celtics don't often see a 22-point lead wither to one, and they rarely see their Bill Russell score on a long jump shot.

But both happened Sunday as the Celtics came out of their National Basketball Association game against San Francisco with a 108-105 triumph.

In other games, St. Louis whipped Cincinnati 114-109 and New York downed Baltimore 109-107.

Boston led the Warriors 78-56 in the third quarter, but San Francisco sliced that margin to 102-101 with a little less than two minutes remaining.

Russell's long jumper, which at the time gave the Celtics a 106-101 lead, turned out to be the winning basket. Tom Heinsohn, who added two free throws after Russell's shot, led Boston with 27 points. Wayne Hightower paced the Warriors with 24.

St. Louis moved into second place in the Western Division ahead of San Francisco. Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagan sparked the Hawks in a third period outburst that provided an insurmountable lead.

In Saturday's action Boston beat Detroit 121-115 Los Angeles outlasted Philadelphia 115-111 St. Louis nosed out Cincinnati 121-120 and Baltimore downed San Francisco 93-86.

The Day Gentile Played Caras

By Charles J. Tiano
(Freeman Sports Editor)

For 50 of his 65 years, Tony Gentile has been addicted to green baize. He has been pocket billiard champion, operator, promoter and spectator.

His boyish enthusiasm for the 14-1 style of play has never diminished. At the moment he is excited about Jimmy Caras' appearance Tuesday afternoon and night at the Golden Cue as any of the young turks of the sport.

"I once had the pleasure of playing against Caras," recalls the old timer. "He beat me, but I don't remember the score."

Planthaber His Pick

A cue buff who has followed Gentile's career for more than 30 years, asked Tony to comment on the all-time parade in local billiards. Who was No. 1?

Without hesitation, he picked Freddie Planthaber, who is now a billiard operator in New Jersey.

"Off the cuff, I'd have to go with Planthaber," said Gentile in a tone that left little doubt about his choice.

"Planthaber had everything," Gentile went on. "He had all the shots and a marvelous temperament. Before Planthaber's time I would pick Andrew (Ike) Campbell and Hank Butler."

What about Dave Brooks? the man asked.

"I'd place Brooks behind Planthaber as I saw them," Tony replied. "Dave was more spectacular and a greater stylist but for all-round ability I stay with Planthaber."

Gentile's observations could touch off a merry argument among billiard fans who saw these two titans in action.

How do today's top players compare with the oldtimers of his day?

"I think the oldtimers were better," said Tony. "There were more better players then and it was tougher to win a tournament."

Many observers who have been watching the knights of the green baize down through the years are likely to dispute this point, but it makes a good sports argument.

The Hall of Fame

In addition to Gentile, the Old Guard included such worthies as Stanley (Stosh) Wojcio, who once defeated world champion Frank Taberski at Nick Kaslich's; Charlie Bovee, Jules Tellier, Tony Pino, Howard Kelder, Clifton Quick, Meine Russell of Saugerties, Bill (Pie) Murphy, Steve Kaslich and a few others whose names escape us. Harold Quick, brother of Clifton, came on later is now involved in the classic at Buster Ferraro's It is interesting to note that sons of two of the old stars—Wojcio and Campbell are currently employed in The Freeman's typographical department. And Ike Campbell, Jr. was a far better than average player in his own right.

Many of the world's finest appeared at Nick Kaslich's down through the years. Taberski was so furious when Wojcio upset him he refused to do trickshots after the match. The Kingston fans, often as many as 200, saw the immortal Ralph Greenleaf, Willie Mosconi, Onofrio Lauri, Erwin Rudolph, Andrew Ponzi, Joe Canton, Irving Crane, Johnny Layton, Willie Hoppe, Eric Hagenlacher and Charlie Petersen to mention a few.

Ran 109 Balls

Gentile has a personal high run of 109, with another of 88. Longest professional run in Kingston was 120 by Andrew Ponzi, the Philadelphia wizard, in a small pool parlor operated by Tony Pino on Crown street. Ponzi apparently got bored by it all and deliberately drew a scratch into the side pocket to terminate the match. Anyway, by that time his opponent was tired holding his cue.

Rudolph, masquerading as the Masked Marvel for a soft drink company, ran 99 against Tony at Nick's.

On another occasion an exhibition by Irving Crane conflicted with a pro basketball game at the auditorium between arch rivals Kingston and the Philadelphia Sphas. Nick Kaslich, the billiard operator, was a rabid sports fan who never missed a game. He just wanted to make sure.

"Make it fast, will you Irving," Nick implored. Crane did the best he could. Two consecutive innings of 60-plus and everybody took off for the auditorium.

The Bovee Incident

A speedy player with an uncanny eye for long shots, Gentile's theory and style was patterned pretty much after golfer Gene Sarazen. If you're going to miss them, miss them fast, they said. Tony's opponent in a big championship match—the late Charlie Bovee—was the other extreme. He had a deliberate, exasperating style that rubbed Gentile raw.

Old Charlie would run two balls, chalk up, survey the scene, chalk up again, run two balls, . . ad infinitum.

In advance of the big match—the classic hare vs. tortoise format—Gentile let it be known he would come to the match armed with magazines. Bovee could dawdle all he wanted. Tony would soak up culture between innings.

Everybody waited to see what would happen. Come the night and 200 fans jammed the old Kaslich hall. Not a man to make threats lightly, Gentile burst into the billard parlor, a stack of current issues under his arm. Laughter rippled through the room and then the grim business of the hare and tortoise got under way.

Bovee ran 2, chalked up, surveyed, ran 2, chalked up. Gentile read magazines.

How did it come oue?

"The magazines didn't help much," he told us sheepishly. He still wore me out."

Top Ranked Teams Have Rest

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's tough enough retaining a national ranking just playing out the schedule. But when you don't have a schedule man that's double tough.

And that's the situation facing four of the nation's top ranked college basketball teams this week. Their high positions are threatened not by opponents, but by inactivity as many of the teams take a break for semester examinations.

Top-ranked UCLA, N. 5 Davidson and No. 6 Vanderbilt take the week off while No. 10 Duke is idle for the second straight week.

15 Straight

The No. 1 Bruins will be hard to dislodge however. They reeled off victory No. 15 in an unbeaten season Saturday with an 80-61 conquest of Stanford. Walt Hazzard and Gail Goodrich again were the big guns.

Michigan and Kentucky, ranked third and fourth respectively, kept pace. Bill Buntin and Cazzie Russell led Michigan to the top of the Big Ten with an 82-64 triumph over Ohio State while Kentucky, loser of two straight Southeast Conference games, bounced back 66-57 against Tennessee in Saturday games.

Fifth-ranked Davidson, idle Saturday won a couple of weekday games and remained unbeaten at 14-0. DePaul, unranked, knocked off Dayton 89-83 for its 12th straight and remained the only other major unbeaten.

Vanderbilt and Villanova also protected their high standings, but No. 7 Oregon State and No. 8 Cincinnati are in trouble. Oregon State was upset by Oregon 47-45 Friday, but bounced back for a 66-53 triumph over the same team Saturday.

Bearcats Beaten

Cincinnati, however, was virtually eliminated from the Missouri Valley title chase with losses to Bradley, 87-77, and Drake, 66-53 in overtime Saturday. Wichita extended its conference mark to 5-0 with an 85-70 triumph over North Texas State.

Vandy beat Mississippi 88-81 and No. 9 Villanova nipped Xavier, Ohio, 90-88.

Dartmouth, meanwhile, ended an 18-game losing string, edging Amherst 56-53.

Chicago Loyola, the defending national champ and ranked second at 11-1, was idle last week but heads a sparse Monday slate with a visit to Memphis State.

St. Mary's Snow In Overtime Win

St. Mary's of the Snows, Saugerties, edged St. Mary's of Kingston, 14-13, in overtime in a CYO Tyro League contest at Saugerties, Fitzpatrick scored two baskets for the winners and Pillsworth connected for Kingston.

Buffalo Cagers Decision State University Quintet, 58-57

Sadler Misses Foul Shot After Final Buzzer

Poor foul shooting cost the State University Hawks Saturday as they lost a 58-57 heart throbber to the visiting Buffalo State quintet.

Coach Dough Sheppard's cagers had a 26-23 margin from the floor but made only five charity flips in 14 chances.

Dependable Fred Sadler had a chance to knot the game when he stepped to the foul line after time had elapsed. However, he missed the free throw and the Hawks suffered their seventh loss in nine games.

Shot Is Missed

Prior to the last second foul try, the Hawks had another chance to win. They were in possession of the ball with seven seconds to play. Sadler took a shot and it hit the rim. Two rebounds failed to go in before the final foul.

Sadler paced the Hawks with 20 points while John Allen added 15. Four of the Buffalo starters were in double figures.

The Hawks will be idle until Friday when they host the powerful Philadelphia College of Textile five. The visitors are a small college eastern power and are having another banner season.

Powell's Pass Tops AFL East

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Art Powell's ability to get a couple of steps ahead of a life-long buddy propelled the West to a 27-24 victory over the East and a perfect record in three American Football League All-Star games.

Powell's climactic act came Sunday after the West had driven to the East two in the closing minutes, trailing only 24-20 after overcoming a 24-3 halftime deficit. Including an East offside, the West had five tries to get the ball over. The East defense held.

Only 1:29 remained.

The East, however, was unable to move and was forced to punt, and the West took over on the East 43.

Only 1:05 remained.

Quarterback Cotton Davidson fired a short pass to Lance Alworth. Complete. Davidson fired a short one to Powell, his Oakland teammate. Complete. Davidson finally missed one, then called Powell's play again—on a deep pattern this time.

Powell raced full speed into the left corner of the end zone, outdistancing defender Willie West of Buffalo, and hauled in the 25-yard aerial for the winning touchdown.

The Decisive Play

Only 43 seconds remained.

Despite the spectacular ending, both West Coach Sid Gillman of San Diego and East Coach Mike Holovak of Boston pointed to a 64-yard touchdown run by San Diego's Keith Lincoln in the third quarter as the decisive play in the West's third victory in three All-Star games.

Only Jim Fraser's field goal had put them on the scoreboard until Lincoln's run.

The East had built a 24-3 halftime lead as Boston's Babe Parilli completed 12 of 16 passes for 142 yards and two touchdowns. One went 12 yards to Boston's Larry Garron and the other three to New York's Bill Mathis. Buffalo's Cookie Gilchrist scored the other TD on a one-yard smash.

Lincoln, voted the outstanding back of the game, then got the West rolling. Tobin Rote of San Diego hit Charger teammate Alworth with a 51-yard pass that set up a five-yard touchdown run by Paul Lowe of San Diego. Another Fraser field goal made it 24-20.

That put the spotlight on Powell.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston's power-laden Celtics don't often see a 22-point lead wither to one, and they rarely see their Bill Russell score on a long jump shot.

But both happened Sunday as the Celtics came out of their National Basketball Association game against San Francisco with a 108-105 triumph.

In other games, St. Louis whipped Cincinnati 114-109 and New York downed Baltimore 109-107.

Boston led the Warriors 78-56 in the third quarter, but San Francisco sliced that margin to 102-101 with a little less than two minutes remaining.

Russell's long jumper, which at the time gave the Celtics a 106-101 lead, turned out to be the winning basket. Tom Heinsohn, who added two free throws after Russell's shot, led Boston with 27 points. Wayne Hightower paced the Warriors with 24.

St. Louis moved into second place in the Western Division ahead of San Francisco. Bob Pettit and Cliff Hagan sparked the Hawks in a third period outburst that provided an insurmountable lead.

In Saturday's action Boston beat Detroit 121-115 Los Angeles outlasted Philadelphia 115-111 St. Louis nosed out Cincinnati 121-120 and Baltimore downed San Francisco 93-86.

The Day Gentile Played Caras

By Charles J. Tiano
(Freeman Sports Editor)

For 50 of his 65 years, Tony Gentile has been addicted to green baize. He has been pocket billiard champion, operator, promoter and spectator.

His boyish enthusiasm for the 14-1 style of play has never diminished. At the moment he is excited about Jimmy Caras' appearance Tuesday afternoon and night at the Golden Cue as any of the young turks of the sport.

Caras, of course, is a former four-time world champion, making his second appearance in Kingston in about 25 years.

"I once had the pleasure of playing against Caras," recalls the old timer. "He beat me, but I don't remember the score."

Planthaber His Pick

A cue buff who has followed Gentile's career for more than 30 years, asked Tony to comment on the all-time parade in local billiards. Who was No. 1?

Without hesitation, he picked Freddie Planthaber, who is now a billiard operator in New Jersey.

"Off the cuff, I'd have to go with Planthaber," said Gentile in a tone that left little doubt about his choice.

"Planthaber had everything," Gentile went on. "He had all the shots and a marvelous temperament. Before Planthaber's time I would pick Andrew (Ike) Campbell and Hank Butler."

What about Dave Brooks? the man asked.

"I'd place Brooks behind Planthaber as I saw them," Tony replied. "Dave was more spectacular and a greater stylist but for all-round ability I stay with Planthaber."

Gentile's observations could touch off a merry argument among billiard fans who saw these two titans in action.

Among the modern crop, he likes Charlie Sangaline, the reigning city champion, but has considerable respect for Dave Holly and Bill Costello.

How do today's top players compare with the oldtimers of his day?

"I think the oldtimers were better," said Tony. "There were more better players then and it was tougher to win a tournament."

Many observers who have been watching the knights of the green baize down through the years are likely to dispute this point, but it makes a good sports argument.

The Hall of Fame

In addition to Gentile, the Old Guard included such worthies as Stanley (Stosh) Wojcio, who once defeated world champion Frank Taberski at Nick Kaslich's; Charlie Bovee, Jules Tellier, Tony Pino, Howard Kelder, Clifton Quick, Meine Russell of Saugerties, Bill (Pie) Murphy, Steve Kaslich and a few others whose names escape us. Harold Quick, brother of Clifton, came on later is now involved in the classic at Buster Ferraro's It is interesting to note that sons of two of the old stars—Wojcio and Campbell are currently employed in The Freeman's typographical department. And Ike Campbell, Jr. was a far better than average player in his own right.

Many of the world's finest appeared at Nick Kaslich's down through the years. Taberski was so furious when Wojcio upset him he refused to do trickshots after the match. The Kingston fans, often as many as 200, saw the immortal Ralph Greenleaf, Willie Mosconi, Onofrio Lauri, Erwin Rudolph, Andrew Ponzi, Joe Canton, Irving Crane, Johnny Layton, Willie Honpe, Eric Hagenlacher and Charlie Petersen to mention a few.

Ran 109 Balls

Gentile has a personal high run of 109, with another of 88. Longest professional run in Kingston was 120 by Andrew Ponzi, the Philadelphia wizard, in a small pool parlor operated by Tony Pino on Crown street. Ponzi apparently got bored by it all and deliberately drew a scratch into the side pocket to terminate the match. Anyway, by that time his opponent was tired holding his cue.

Rudolph, masquerading as the Masked Marvel for a soft drink company, ran 99 against Tony at Nick's.

On another occasion an exhibition by Irving Crane conflicted with a pro basketball game at the auditorium between arch rivals Kingston and the Philadelphia Sphas. Nick Kaslich, the billiard operator, was a rabid sports fan who never missed a game. He just wanted to make sure.

"Make it fast, will you Irving," Nick implored. Crane did the best he could. Two consecutive innings of 60-plus and everybody took off for the auditorium.

The Bovee Incident

A speedy player with an uncanny eye for long shots, Gentile's theory and style was patterned pretty much after golfer Gene Sarazen. If you're going to miss them, miss them fast, they said. Tony's opponent in a big championship match—the late Charlie Bovee—was the other extreme. He had a deliberate, exasperating style that rubbed Gentile raw.

Old Charlie would run two balls, chalk up, survey the scene, chalk up again, run two balls, . . ad infinitum.

In advance of the big match—the classic hare vs. tortoise format—Gentile let it be known he would come to the match armed with magazines. Bovee could dawdle all he wanted. Tony would soak up culture between innings.

Everybody waited to see what would happen. Come the night and 200 fans jammed the old Kaslich hall. Not a man to make threats lightly, Gentile burst into the billard parlor, a stack of current issues under his arm. Laughter rippled through the room and then the grim business of the hare and tortoise got under way.

Bovee ran 2, chalked up, surveyed, ran 2, chalked up. Gentile read magazines.

How did it come out?

"The magazines didn't help much," he told us sheepishly. He still wore me out."

Top-ranked UCLA, N. 5 Davidson and No. 6 Vanderbilt take the week off while No. 10 Duke is idle for the second straight week.

15 Straight

The No. 1 Bruins will be hard to dislodge however. They reeled off victory No. 15 in an unbeaten season Saturday with an 80-61 conquest of Stanford. Walt Hazzard and Gail Goodrich again were the big guns.

Michigan and Kentucky, ranked third and fourth respectively, kept pace. Bill Buntin and Cazzie Russell led Michigan to the top of the Big Ten with an 82-64 triumph over Ohio State while Kentucky, loser of two straight Southeast Conference games, bounced back 66-57 against Tennessee in Saturday games.

Fifth-ranked Davidson, idle Saturday won a couple of weekday games and remained unbeaten at 14-0. DePaul, unranked, knocked off Dayton 89-83 for its 12th straight and remained the only other major unbeaten.

Vanderbilt and Villanova also protected their high standings, but No. 7 Oregon State and No. 8 Cincinnati are in trouble. Oregon State was upset by Oregon 47-45 Friday, but bounced back for a 66-53 triumph over the same team Saturday.

Bearcats Beaten

Cincinnati, however, was virtually eliminated from the Missouri Valley title chase with losses to Bradley, 87-77, and Drake, 66-53 in overtime Saturday. Wichita extended its conference mark to 5-0 with an 85-70 triumph over North Texas State.

Vandy beat Mississippi 88-81 and No. 9 Villanova nipped Xavier, Ohio, 90-88.

Dartmouth, meanwhile, ended an 18-game losing string, edging Amherst 56-53.

Chicago Loyola, the defending national champ and ranked second at 11-1, was idle last week but heads a sparse Monday slate with a visit to Memphis State.

John Marone, a coach at Valley Central School in Montgomery, Orange County, Sunday succeeded Oliver Cook of Phelps Central School, Phelps, as head of the Coaches Association.

Marone played for the New York Giants of the National Football League during the 1942 season.

The Coaches Association met in conjunction with the 26th annual conference of the State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Spahn Looks Ahead To 20-Win Season

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee's Warren Spahn, the biggest southpaw winner in baseball history, says he never thinks about age and is looking forward to a 20-victory season in 1964.

Spahn, who will be 43 in April, described himself in perfect condition and ready to add to his record 350 victories this year.

Spahn, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and the Milwaukee Braves' Henry Aaron and Eddie Mathews were honored Sunday night as Future Hall of Famers at the 11th annual Diamond Dinner of the Milwaukee Baseball Writers.

After a 23-7 season, Spahn acknowledged he is looking ahead to even a better campaign this year. He said that he is developing a surprise element —a better curve ball—in hopes of achieving 400 victories before he calls it quits.

Lema Conquers Weather to Win Crosby By Stroke

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Sports Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) —Champagne Tony Lema won the Crosby Golf Tournament by conquering the weather and his own fears Sunday — the foes which substituted for opposing golfers.

Tony didn't have to beat the rest of the field because the golfers beat themselves in a bizarre final round which included Bob Rosburg's six-putt green and Bob Harrison's score of 100 in the blustery winds and rain which swept Pebble Beach golf course.

Tony's closing round was only a 76—four over par at the 6,747-yard seaside links. It looked brilliant next to the 88 posted by Al Balding, the lanky Canadian who began the day tied for the lead with Tony. And it handily beat the 82 of Jay Hebert and 79 of Bruce Devlin, the opponents who were two strokes behind after three rounds.

Par Defiant

Soon after he started his final round, Tony had a seven-stroke lead. But the rain was falling almost sideways a near-gale and golf balls were plunking left and right into the ocean.

Thus he conquered his own fears—ones that caused him to say "I was scared all the way, but I knew when I went out to the first tee that if I shot a fairly good score and didn't blow up, I had a good chance."

Once he conquered himself, Lema beat the weather by playing safe with his comfortable lead. He was most cautious at the treacherous par-three 17th hole, an ocean-fronting horror which he double-bogied Saturday — and on which Arnold Palmer took a nine.

Tony rapped a safe two-iron shot and took his bogey four. At No. 18 he never was in trouble and even came close on a 40-foot putt before tapping in for par five and a victory that was worth $5,800.

He also won $3,000 for taking second in pro-amateur competition with partner Col. John Durkin, an Army chaplain. He'd picked up $1,000 Friday for the lowest pro-am score of the second round — a total of $9,800 more than covering the cost of the champagne.

Marone Elected State President

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A former professional football player is the new president of the State High School Coaches Association.

John Marone, a coach at Valley Central School in Montgomery, Orange County, Sunday succeeded Oliver Cook of Phelps Central School, Phelps, as head of the Coaches Association.

Marone played for the New York Giants of the National Football League during the 1942 season.

Charles Noble, Massapequa High School, was elected vice president. George Brown of Alexandria Bay High School was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Coaches Association met in conjunction with the 26th annual conference of the State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Spahn Looks Ahead To 20-Win Season

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee's Warren Spahn, the biggest southpaw winner in baseball history, says he never thinks about age and is looking forward to a 20-victory season in 1964.

Spahn, who will be 43 in April, described himself in perfect condition and ready to add to his record 350 victories this year.

Spahn, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and the Milwaukee Braves' Henry Aaron and Eddie Mathews were honored Sunday night as Future Hall of Famers at the 11th annual Diamond Dinner of the Milwaukee Baseball Writers.

After a 23-7 season, Spahn acknowledged he is looking ahead to even a better campaign this year. He said that he is developing a surprise element — a better curve ball in hopes of achieving 400 victories before he calls it quits.

Lema Conquers Weather to Win Crosby By Stroke

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Sports Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) —Champagne Tony Lema won the Crosby Golf Tournament by conquering the weather and his own fears Sunday — the foes which substituted for opposing golfers.

Tony didn't have to beat the rest of the field because the golfers beat themselves in a bizarre final round which included Bob Rosburg's six-putt green and Bob Harrison's score of 100 in the blustery winds and rain which swept Pebble Beach golf course.

Tony's closing round was only a 76—four over par at the 6,747-yard seaside links. It looked brilliant next to the 88 posted by Al Balding, the lanky Canadian who began the day tied for the lead with Tony. And it handily beat the 82 of Jay Hebert and 79 of Bruce Devlin, the opponents who were two strokes behind after three rounds.

Par Defiant

No one equalled par 72.

Soon after he started his final round, Tony had a seven-stroke lead. But the rain was falling almost sideways a near-gale and golf balls were plunking left and right into the ocean.

Thus he conquered his own fears—ones that caused him to say "I was scared all the way, but I knew when I went out to the first tee that if I shot a fairly good score and didn't blow up, I had a good chance."

Once he conquered himself, Lema beat the weather by playing safe with his comfortable lead. He was most cautious at the treacherous par-three 17th hole, an ocean-fronting horror which he double-bogied Saturday — and on which Arnold Palmer took a nine.

Tony rapped a safe two-iron shot and took his bogey four. At No. 18 he never was in trouble and even came close on a 40-foot putt before tapping in for par five and a victory that was worth $5,800.

He also won $3,000 for taking second in pro-amateur competition with partner Col. John Durkin, an Army chaplain. He'd picked up $1,000 Friday for the lowest pro-am score of the second round — a total of $9,800 more than covering the cost of the champagne.

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—R. Ward Murray skipped the Utica No. 2 Rink to a 10-7 victory over New York Caledonian in the Mitchell Medal finals at the Utica Curling Club Sunday to gain top honors in the annual Utica Men's Bonspiel.

The New Yorkers, skipped by Ernie Slaybaugh, led the match until the eighth end, when the Uticans scored four points to go ahead in the 12-end event.

Bradford, Ont., skipped by Art Evans, won th Allen Medal with an 11-9 decision over Utica No. 1, skipped by George Johnston.

St. Andrew's of Mount Hope, N. Y., skipped by John Nauss, took the Country Club Cup, deQue., skipped by Dick Martin, 13-12.

George McCarthy skipped Albany to a 9-7 victory over Petersham, Mass., skipped by Vince Purple, in the Dewar Medal finals.

Lillard Still Tourney Leader

DALLAS, (AP) — Bill Lillard's hot hand cooled slightly Sunday but he still managed to hang on to the lead in the qualifying rounds at the $100,000 All-Star bowling tournament.

The 37-year-old Dallas fireballer rolled an 841 four-game series in the fourth round of preliminaries, boosting his total for 16 games to 3,519.

Barring a complete disaster in the fifth round today, Lillard is certain to advance to the semifinals Tuesday. The men's field will be sliced to 96 Monday night.

Wiltwyck Hose Co. Honors Dunne At Annual Dinner

Members of Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1, at its annual banquet held Thursday, January 16, at Hoppey's Restaurant on Wall Street paid honor to a devoted, lifelong volunteer fireman, Lucullus E. Dunne, who was elected honorary president of the company at the regular November meeting.

After the banquet Alderman-at-Large Joseph F. Carroll, Fire Commissioner C. Joseph Bechtold, Former Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and Deputy Fire Chief Glyn Southard spoke on the necessity and value of the volunteer firemen and the services they render to the city.

It was noted that in 1957 Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1, purchased with company funds a necessary and valuable piece of apparatus and presented it to the Kingston Fire Department to be used by the department. It has since been manned, serviced and operated by the company. It is the only apparatus purchased by an individual group and placed in the service of the Kingston Fire Department in many years. Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1 is a proud company of high standing and a company believing in the American way of life and dedicated to help their neighbor in time of need.

The Rev. William Williams, chaplain, gave the invocation.

At the annual meeting held on January 2, when election of officers took place, the following appointments were made:

Named delegates to the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association of Kingston at the annual meeting were S. Maxwell Taylor, Orvel G. Kimbark and William A. Ryan. Delegates to the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association are Jack Flanagan and David Winter. Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association delegate is Orvel G. Kimbark with President Emile G. Dunne and Chaplain Rev. William Williams. Trustees are William A. Kelly, John F. Nelson, C. Herbert Van Deusen, Peter Shea, Thomas Ryan and Cornelius Cassidy.

Senator Young Asks Endorsement Over John Glenn

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Incumbent Sen. Stephen M. Young called for a nomination endorsement showdown today with his opponent, Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., at an Ohio Democratic pre-primary convention here.

Backers of Glenn, who announced for Young's seat Friday, urged some 500 delegates to bypass the senatorial race in their endorsement of other party candidates in Ohio's May 5 primary election.

But Young, 74, heartened by assurances of support from state organization stalwarts, said he wanted endorsement. He said he expected to win nomination and re-election after an uphill campaign.

Glenn, 42-year-old space hero, said he would not attend the convention or campaign until his retirement from the Marine Corps goes through, possibly about March 1. He has resigned from the space program.

His widely publicized bid for public office put Democratic leaders previously committed to Young on the spot and generated speculation that a run-away nomination for Glenn might bring him vice presidential consideration.

Hint Is Dropped About Reduction Of Auto Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's chief economic adviser, Walter W. Heller, dropped a broad hint today that the automobile industry was making enough money to warrant a reduction in car prices.

In the Council of Economic Advisers' report to the President, Chairman Heller said industries which have an unusually high rate of productivity could afford to pass along some of the financial benefits to consumers.

Asked specifically if this referred to the automobile industry, he said, "The automobile industry could well be one of those."

Schriver's Afghanistan Arrival Is Delayed

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Bad weather has delayed Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver's arrival in Afghanistan.

His plane is stranded on the Afghan-Iranian border in Zahidan. He was due in Kabul late Saturday. But snow began to fall again today and officials said it is unlikely Shriver could land today.

Shriver is on a tour of the Near East and Southeast Asia, inspecting Peace Corps activities and delivering messages to chiefs of state from President Johnson.

Hollywood News, Views

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — To plunge or not to plunge—that appears to be the fashion question of 1964.

Dior of Paris and some British designers first came out with low, low necklines for evening wear and last week the new Italian fashions did the same. Decolletage is sweeping the European social scene, and New York socialites have been wearing gowns cut 'way down to here.'

Nothing New

This is nothing new, necklines having risen and fallen with the fashion tides since prehistoric times. But will American women go along with the new- eye-opening designs? Judging from opinions of some Hollywood notables, the answer is yes.

Their comments:

Sandra Dee — "Personally, I like the plunging neckline, if it is done in good taste. I once had a dress made for me with a neckline that went to the waist—yet it wasn't offensive because there was no cleavage. My only problem with such dresses is that my husband—Bobby Darin—won't let me wear them."

Bette Davis — "Changes in style don't affect me because I've worn the same basic clothes for 30 years. But I think low necklines can look very attractive on women who have the proper figures. That means young women, but I don't think girls should start too early. How can parents blame a boy for making advances when their daughter appears half-naked?"

Marvelous to Natalie

Natalie Wood—"I think the new necklines are marvelous. I've been wearing them for some time. I guess they'll be seen in movies now."

Shelley Winters — "I'm for anything the Paris designers do to make women look like women again. They've been trying to make us look like boys for too long."

Donna Reed—"Oh, dear. For the past two years we women have had it easy—one bra would do for everything. Now we'll have to get two or three or more. And we will."

Debbie Reynolds — "I get chilled easily, so I'm not wild for decollete myself. I think it's all right for girls with marvelous figures, but if you're the kind who has to give nature some assistance—forget it."

Architect Gets Five Years for Joke on Reds

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Bojan Tchinkov, an architect in Plovdiv, Bulgaria, has been sentenced to five years in prison for telling a "calumnious" joke about Bulgaria's Communist regime, according to press reports reaching Belgrade.

The reports did not retell the joke.

Ulster Business Men Hold Annual Meeting Tuesday

The Ulster Business Men's Association will meet Tuesday, at 8 p. m., at the Belvedere Rest on Route 9W north.

This will be the annual meeting at which the election of officers will take place. This month also marks the 10th anniversary of the association which was started in 1954.

Presented by the nominating committee are the names of Charles Turner, manager of the Wallace Company, president; Elwood Van Sise of Woolworth's, vice-president; Lewis Gruberg, manager of the Hertz Rent-A-Car, treasurer; Michael Altomari of Altomari's Delicatessen, secretary; Richard Grossman, financial secretary.

President Michael Marchuk stated that any member at the annual meeting may submit names from the floor to be voted on. There is a possibility that names may be submitted from the floor other than those submitted by the nominating committee and a large turnout is requested.

Reports of committees will be submitted. A report on the progress of the transportation efforts being made for extension of service to Kingston on a scheduled basis will also be given. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting by the Belvedere Restaurant.

Chinese and U.S. Aid Workers Help Victims of Quake

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist Chinese and U.S. aid officials today began the slow task of rehabilitating south Formosa areas devastated by an earthquake Saturday that killed 110 persons and injured 479, according to press reports. Seven other persons were missing and presumed dead.

No Americans were reported among the casualties.

Unofficial estimates placed property damage at millions of dollars, most of it around the southwestern cities of Tainan and Chiayi.

Frenchmen Arrive In Peking About Link

TOKYO (AP)—Six members of the French National Assembly arrived in Peking Sunday to study the possibilities of economic and cultural agreements between France and Communist China.

The group, which represents a cross-section of French political opinion, went with the blessing of President Charles de Gaulle.

De Gaulle's government has notified the United States it plans to recognize the Peking regime. Francois Benard, leader of the parliamentary delegation, told newsmen he would not be surprised if the recognition was extended during their trip.

$250,000 Negligence Action in Dutchess

A $250,000 negligence action instituted by Chester Gardella, a former tailor of 132 North Hamilton Street, Poughkeepsie against a Flushing, L. I. couple, will continue today in Dutchess County Supreme Court.

Gardella, a former employe at the Cardinal Farley Military Academy, Rhinecliff, sued Mr. and Mrs. John Halpin of Flushing, for injuries he claims he suffered Nov. 26, 1961, in a two-car collision on the Hutchinson River Parkway near Whitestone Bridge, New York City.

The Poughkeepsie man claims the Halpin car was involved in a collision with the rear of a car driven by John Sitterley, of Poughkeepsie, in which Gardella was a passenger in the rear seat. Gardella notes in his complaint that he suffered severe head, neck and back injuries.

Trial is being conducted before Supreme Court Justice Leonard Supple, of Fishkill, and a jury. Edward Rosen and Paul F. Diggins Jr., of Poughkeepsie are attorneys for Gardella. John J. Mulvey represents the Halpins.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

"Scotch Watch" Goose Returned To Work Through Want Ad

At Dumbarton, Scotland, thousands of barrels of Ballentine's Scotch Whiskey are guarded by a proud squad of white Chinese geese who are considered keener of ear, sharper of eye and twice as quick tempered as any dog.

When one named Clemetine disappeared, a Want Ad was placed in the Lenox Herald in Dumbartonshire, Scotland, offering L50 reward. Sure enough she was found wandering along Loch Lomond and returned to the "Scotch Watch Patrol" a sadder—but no longer a silly goose.

Wiltwyck Hose Co. Honors Dunne At Annual Dinner

Members of Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1, at its annual banquet held Thursday, January 16, at Hoppey's Restaurant on Wall Street paid honor to a devoted, lifelong volunteer fireman, Lucullus E. Dunne, who was elected honorary president of the company at the regular November meeting.

After the banquet Alderman-at-Large Joseph F. Carroll, Fire Commissioner C. Joseph Bechtold, Former Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy and Deputy Fire Chief Glyn Southard spoke on the necessity and value of the volunteer firemen and the services they render to the city.

It was noted that in 1957 Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1, purchased with company funds a necessary and valuable piece of apparatus and presented it to the Kingston Fire Department to be used by the department. It has since been manned, serviced and operated by the company. It is the only apparatus purchased by an individual group and placed in the service of the Kingston Fire Department in many years. Wiltwyck Hose Company No. 1 is a proud company of high standing and a company believing in the American way of life and dedicated to help their neighbor in time of need.

The Rev. William Williams, chaplain, gave the invocation.

Senator Young Asks Endorsement Over John Glenn

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Incumbent Sen. Stephen M. Young called for a nomination endorsement showdown today with his opponent, Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., at an Ohio Democratic pre-primary convention here.

Backers of Glenn, who announced for Young's seat Friday, urged some 500 delegates to bypass the senatorial race in their endorsement of other party candidates in Ohio's May 5 primary election.

But Young, 74, heartened by assurances of support from state organization stalwarts, said he wanted endorsement. He said he expected to win nomination and re-election after an uphill campaign.

Glenn, 42-year-old space hero, said he would not attend the convention or campaign until his retirement from the Marine Corps goes through, possibly about March 1. He has resigned from the space program.

His widely publicized bid for public office put Democratic leaders previously committed to Young on the spot and generated speculation that a run-away nomination for Glenn might bring him vice presidential consideration.

Hint Is Dropped About Reduction Of Auto Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's chief economic adviser, Walter W. Heller, dropped a broad hint today that the automobile industry was making enough money to warrant a reduction in car prices.

In the Council of Economic Advisers' report to the President, Chairman Heller said industries which have an unusually high rate of productivity could afford to pass along some of the financial benefits to consumers.

Asked specifically if this referred to the automobile industry, he said, "The automobile industry could well be one of those."

Schriver's Afghanistan Arrival Is Delayed

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Bad weather has delayed Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver's arrival in Afghanistan.

His plane is stranded on the Afghan-Iranian border in Zahidan. He was due in Kabul late Saturday. But snow began to fall again today and officials said it is unlikely Shriver could land today.

Shriver is on a tour of the Near East and Southeast Asia, inspecting Peace Corps activities and delivering messages to chiefs of state from President Johnson.

Hollywood News, Views

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — To plunge or not to plunge—that appears to be the fashion question of 1964.

Dior of Paris and some British designers first came out with low, low necklines for evening wear and last week the new Italian fashions did the same. Decolletage is sweeping the European social scene, and New York socialites have been wearing gowns cut 'way down to here.'

Nothing New

This is nothing new, necklines having risen and fallen with the fashion tides since prehistoric times. But will American women go along with the new eye-opening designs? Judging from opinions of some Hollywood notables, the answer is yes.

Their comments:

Sandra Dee — "Personally, I like the plunging neckline, if it is done in good taste. I once had a dress made for me with a neckline that went to the waist—yet it wasn't offensive because there was no cleavage. My only problem with such dresses is that my husband—Bobby Darin—won't let me wear them."

Bette Davis — "Changes in style don't affect me because I've worn the same basic clothes for 30 years. But I think low necklines can look very attractive on women who have the proper figures. That means young women, but I don't think girls should start too early. How can parents blame a boy for making advances when their daughter appears half-naked?"

Marvelous to Natalie

Natalie Wood—"I think the new necklines are marvelous. I've been wearing them for some time. I guess they'll be seen in movies now."

Shelley Winters — "I'm for anything the Paris designers do to make women look like women again. They've been trying to make us look like boys for too long."

Donna Reed—"Oh, dear. For the past two years we women have had it easy—one bra would do for everything. Now we'll have to get two or three or more. And we will."

Debbie Reynolds — "I get chilled easily, so I'm not wild for decollete myself. I think it's all right for girls with marvelous figures, but if you're the kind who has to give nature some assistance—forget it."

Architect Gets Five Years for Joke on Reds

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Bojan Tchinkov, an architect in Plovdiv, Bulgaria, has been sentenced to five years in prison for telling a "calumnious" joke about Bulgaria's Communist regime, according to press reports reaching Belgrade.

The reports did not retell the joke.

Ulster Business Men Hold Annual Meeting Tuesday

The Ulster Business Men's Association will meet Tuesday, at 8 p. m., at the Belvedere Rest on Route 9W north.

This will be the annual meeting at which the election of officers will take place. This month also marks the 10th anniversary of the association which was started in 1954.

Presented by the nominating committee are the names of Charles Turner, manager of the Wallace Company, president; Elwood Van Sise of Woolworth's, vice-president; Lewis Gruberg, manager of the Hertz Rent-A-Car, treasurer; Michael Altomari of Altomari's Delicatessen, secretary; Richard Grossman, financial secretary.

President Michael Marchuk stated that any member at the annual meeting may submit names from the floor to be voted on. There is a possibility that names may be submitted from the floor other than those submitted by the nominating committee and a large turnout is requested.

Reports of committees will be submitted. A report on the progress of the transportation efforts being made for extension of service to Kingston on a scheduled basis will also be given. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting by the Belvedere Restaurant.

Chinese and U.S. Aid Workers Help Victims of Quake

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist Chinese and U.S. aid officials today began the slow task of rehabilitating south Formosa areas devastated by an earthquake Saturday that killed 110 persons and injured 479, according to press reports. Seven other persons were missing and presumed dead.

No Americans were reported among the casualties.

Unofficial estimates placed property damage at millions of dollars, most of it around the southwestern cities of Tainan and Chiayi.

Frenchmen Arrive In Peking About Link

TOKYO (AP)—Six members of the French National Assembly arrived in Peking Sunday to study the possibilities of economic and cultural agreements between France and Communist China.

The group, which represents a cross-section of French political opinion, went with the blessing of President Charles de Gaulle.

De Gaulle's government has notified the United States it plans to recognize the Peking regime. Francois Benard, leader of the parliamentary delegation, told newsmen he would not be surprised if the recognition was extended during their trip.

$250,000 Negligence Action in Dutchess

A $250,000 negligence action instituted by Chester Gardella, a former tailor of 132 North Hamilton Street, Poughkeepsie against a Flushing, L. I. couple, will continue today in Dutchess County Supreme Court.

Gardella, a former employe at the Cardinal Farley Military Academy, Rhinecliff, sued Mr. and Mrs. John Halpin of Flushing, for injuries he claims he suffered Nov. 26, 1961, in a two-car collision on the Hutchinson River Parkway near Whitestone Bridge, New York City.

The Poughkeepsie man claims the Halpin car was involved in a collision with the rear of a car driven by John Sitterley, of Poughkeepsie, in which Gardella was a passenger in the rear seat. Gardella notes in his complaint that he suffered severe head, neck and back injuries.

Trial is being conducted before Supreme Court Justice Leonard Supple, of Fishkill, and a jury. Edward Rosen and Paul F. Diggins Jr., of Poughkeepsie are attorneys for Gardella. John J. Mulvey represents the Halpins.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

"Scotch Watch" Goose Returned To Work Through Want Ad

At Dumbarton, Scotland, thousands of barrels of Ballentine's Scotch Whiskey are guarded by a proud squad of white Chinese geese who are considered keener of ear, sharper of eye and twice as quick tempered as any dog.

When one named Clemetine disappeared, a Want Ad was placed in the Lenox Herald in Dumbartonshire, Scotland, offering L50 reward. Sure enough she was found wandering along Loch Lomond and returned to the "Scotch Watch Patrol" a sadder—but no longer a silly goose.

One Says Guilty To Part Taken in BigTrainRobbery

AYLESBURY, England (AP) —One of 20 persons charged with complicity in the $7.28-million British mail train robbery pleaded guilty at the start of their trial.

The others entered pleas of innocent.

Roger J. Cordrey, 42, pleaded guilty to one charge of conspiring to stop a mail train with intent to rob it and three charges of receiving shares of the loot.

The 20 men and women are accused of various degrees of involvement in the commando-like raid on the Glasgow-to-London mail train near Aylesbury Aug. 8.

As the trial opened, the ringleaders of the daring robbery are believed still at large.

Scotland Yard has recovered only about 12 per cent of the haul—some $840,000.

Leftist Spokesman From Panama to Talk About Canal

Miguel J. Moreno Jr., who took a hard line toward the United States when he was foreign minister in 1959, was briefed Sunday by President Roberto Chiari. He probably will leave Wednesday.

Informed sources said Moreno, appointed last week to replace Augusto Guillermo Arango as Panama's representative to the Organization of American States, will try to salvage peace efforts that virtually collapsed here between Chiari and President Johnson's special envoy, Edwin M. Martin.

Chiari, who severed diplomatic relations with the United States Jan. 10, has demanded a U.S. pledge to renegotiate the 1903 Canal Zone treaty as his price for resuming relations. President Johnson has agreed to discuss—but not negotiate—the treaty, which gives the United States perpetual control of the Canal Zone.

Rhinebeck Show Barn Will Be Rebuilt

A large show barn on the property of Ankony Farms, Rhinebeck, the scene of a $1,000,000 fire Thursday, will be rebuilt, according to Lee L. Leachman, co-owner of the internationally known Angus farm.

Five prize Angus bulls were destroyed in the blaze, including Ankonian Paragon, reserve champion at last fall's International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, and in which two-thirds interest had been sold for $186,000.

Leachman said that because of the extent of the farm, the loss of the five bulls will not interfere with the beef breeding activities. Fortunately, Leachman noted, two top Angus bulls, Ankonian President and Ankonian Junior, and others were at the National Western Stock Show, Denver, Colo., when the fire occurred. They also had been housed in the show barn which was heavily damaged by last week's fire.

Township to Vote On Library Contract

Qualified voters in the Town of Poughkeepsie will go to the polls today to decide whether the township should provide for a $23,980 payment in each of the years 1964, 1965 and 1966 for full services for town residents at the Adriance Memorial Library, Poughkeepsie.

Polls opened at 2 p. m. and voting will continue until 8 p. m. to decide whether the town will enter into contract with the library. It was noted that the town tax rate would, if the proposition is approved, increase an average of 54 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

At present, town residents are barred from any and all services provided at the library in the City of Poughkeepsie.

Snyder Heads Eight-Member Woodstock Constable Group

Headed by Clarence J. Snyder, the Town of Woodstock constabulary—once a solo feat performed by Snyder—is now at full strength of eight regular and part-time constables.

In addition to Chief Snyder, the complement includes: Warren A. Graver, Jr., John Melia, Albert Thon, Thomas O'Brien, Clifford Chase and Robert N. Reynolds and Paul Senecal.

Familiary known as "Clancy", Snyder has been a member of department for 16 years. He came to Woodstock 20 years ago from New York City. He is a member of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 and for years teamed with Charles A. (Buck) Farley on the local department.

Reynolds, who lives with his mother, Hannah Reynolds and a daughter, Wanda, 12, in Bearsville, is a gunsmith and coin collector. He is past Boy Scout Leader of Troop 63 in Shokan. He is a member of the Woodstock Republican Club. He worked for William West as a heavy machine operator.

Chase resides at Lake Hill with wife, Sharon, and a son Tommy, 3 years old. Employed by the town as a machine operator for 10 years, he is also a member of Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club and Woodstock Fire Company No. 3.

Retired Veteran

Thon resides at Bearsville. A retired employe of Consolidated Edison of New York, he is also a World War I veteran; past president of the Woodstock Square Club, a member of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 and the Masonic Order. Mr. and Mrs. (Jewel) Thon are soon to vacation in Florida.

Melia, employed by IBM of Kingston in the Memory Development division, lives in Lake Hill. Mr. and Mrs. (Margerite) Melia have two daughters, Kathleen, 11, and Tina, 3, and a son, John Peter. They have lived in Lake Hill for eight years. He is a six-year veteran of the U. S. Air Force with five years of overseas service, including Korea. He is a member of Woodstock Fire Company No. 3 and past president of the Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association. He is a graduate of the police school conducted by the FBI and Ulster County sheriff's office.

Graver resides with his parents Mr. and Mrs. (Martha) Graver Sr., on the Glasco Turnpike. He has a sister, Sharon, and brother, Varick. A graduate of Kingston High School, he is a navy veteran and served as a Damage Control Technician. He is a member of Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 and the Dutch Reformed Church of Woodstock. He works with his father in their plumbing business, Graver and Sons.

Boxing Champion

Thomas O'Brien resides at Lake Hill. He and Mrs. (Teresa) O'Brien have two sons, Keith, 6, and Thomas Jr., 10. He is a veteran of the U. S. Marine Corps, served in Korea and had seven years of special services. An outstanding athlete, he won the light heavyweight boxing championship of the Army, Navy and Marines and is a holder of the coveted Brown Belt Karati. Prior to moving to Woodstock, he served a year and a half on the New York City police department. He is employed by Mechanics Overall Service of Kingston.

The eighth member of the force, Constable Paul Senecal, is a retired member of the state police. He is now on indefinite leave of absence.

P-TA Sets Panel On OCS Building

A panel discussion on Present and Future Building Needs of the Onteora Central Schools system highlights the monthly meeting of the Onteora High School P-TA meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the cafeteria of the Boiceville central school.

The panel will consist of Philip Gordon, president of the Board of Education; Dr. George R. Sullivan, Superintendent of Schools, and Richard O. Langham of Woodstock, who will represent the public.

J. Robert Daggett, P-TA president, will be panel moderator. A question and answer period will follow the discussion. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Conference Day Set at Schools

A Parent-Teacher Conference Day has been scheduled by the elementary department of the Onteora Central Schools for Tuesday, Jan. 28, from 8:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Letters have been sent to parents inviting them to confer with their children's teachers at scheduled times in the building where the child attends school. Conferences will be held at the Bennett, West Hurley and Woodstock Elementary Schools and at the annexes at Ashokan, Mt. Tremper, Phoenicia and West Shokan.

A personal conference has the advantage of giving the parent a more complete report of the child's ability and performance than can be given on a report card. Additionally, the opportunity for parents and teachers to discuss a child's work frequently results in a better understanding of the child.

Each family is urged to take advantage of Conference Day by arranging an appointment with the child's teacher. Response to this year's conference will help determine whether or not the policy will be continued.

One Says Guilty To Part Taken in BigTrainRobbery

AYLESBURY, England (AP)—One of 20 persons charged with complicity in the $7.28-million British mail train robbery pleaded guilty at the start of their trial.

The others entered pleas of innocent.

Roger J. Cordrey, 42, pleaded guilty to one charge of conspiring to stop a mail train with intent to rob it and three charges of receiving shares of the loot.

The 20 men and women are accused of various degrees of involvement in the commando-like raid on the Glasgow-to-London mail train near Aylesbury Aug. 8.

As the trial opened, the ringleaders of the daring robbery are believed still at large.

Scotland Yard has recovered only about 12 per cent of the haul—some $840,000.

Leftist Spokesman From Panama to Talk About Canal

Miguel J. Moreno Jr., who took a hard line toward the United States when he was foreign minister in 1959, was briefed Sunday by President Roberto Chiari. He probably will leave Wednesday.

Informed sources said Moreno, appointed last week to replace Augusto Guillermo Arango as Panama's representative to the Organization of American States, will try to salvage peace efforts that virtually collapsed here between Chiari and President Johnson's special envoy, Edwin M. Martin.

Chiari, who severed diplomatic relations with the United States Jan. 10, has demanded a U.S. pledge to renegotiate the 1903 Canal Zone treaty as his price for resuming relations. President Johnson has agreed to discuss—but not negotiate—the treaty, which gives the United States perpetual control of the Canal Zone.

Rhinebeck Show Barn Will Be Rebuilt

A large show barn on the property of Ankony Farms, Rhinebeck, the scene of a $1,000,000 fire Thursday, will be rebuilt, according to Lee L. Leachman, co-owner of the internationally known Angus farm.

Five prize Angus bulls were destroyed in the blaze, including Ankonian Paragon, reserve champion at last fall's International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, and in which two-thirds interest had been sold for $186,000.

Leachman said that because of the extent of the farm, the loss of the five bulls will not interfere with the beef breeding activities. Fortunately, Leachman noted, two top Angus bulls, Ankonian President and Ankonian Junior, and others were at the National Western Stock Show, Denver, Colo., when the fire occurred. They also had been housed in the show barn which was heavily damaged by last week's fire.

Township to Vote On Library Contract

Qualified voters in the Town of Poughkeepsie will go to the polls today to decide whether the township should provide for a $23,980 payment in each of the years 1964, 1965 and 1966 for full services for town residents at the Adriance Memorial Library, Poughkeepsie.

Polls opened at 2 p. m. and voting will continue until 8 p. m. to decide whether the town will enter into contract with the library. It was noted that the town tax rate would, if the proposition is approved, increase an average of 54 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

At present, town residents are barred from any and all services provided at the library in the City of Poughkeepsie.
